Boston, Oct. 3, 1771. We learn from Topsfield that the copper-mine, some time since opened there, at 12 or 15 feet depth, affords such samples of fine, lively ore, extended in splatterings all over the pit, that experienced miners have declared the appearances preferable to any yet discovered in America.

PROCEEDINGS OF THE TOWN OF TOPSFIELD.

At a legal Town Meeting in Topsfield, May 18th, 1773.—Agreeable to an Article in the Warrant, the Town took under Consideration a Letter, a Pamphlet, and other Papers accompanying the same, sent to this Town by the Committee of Correspondence of the Town of Boston, containing a List of the Rights of the Colonists, and of this Province in particular; also a List of the Infringements and Violations of these Rights, for the Consideration of this Town. It being near the close of the Day, a Motion was made to chuse a Committee, to take under their Consideration the Letter, &c. and that the Meeting be adjourned, and the committee to make a draft in answer to said Letter (if they shall judge proper) and to lay the same before the Town at the adjournment of the said meeting.

The Town chose a Committee of nine Persons for the Purpose aforesaid, and adjourned said meeting to the Eighth Day of June—June 8th, 1773, the Town being met together on the Adjournment, the Letter, Pamphlet, and other Papers being read and duly considered, the Committee then reported the following Draft in answer, &c.

That it is the opinion of this Town that the Inhabitants of the Town of Boston, have truly and justly stated the Rights of the Colonists, and this Province in particular, as first their national Rights as men, secondly their Rights as Christians by the Laws of God, and thirdly their Rights as Subjects by the Constitution, all which Rights in the opinion of this town, the Colonists in general, and the Inhabitants of this Province in particular are and forever ought to be truly and justly intitled to, unless by their own Act, they forfeit them. It is also the opinion of this Town that the Infringements and Violations made on those Rights are truly and rightly stated, and that if such Violations and Infringements are still continued in, it will prove the Ruin of this Province, if not the whole Continent of America, and we fear the whole kingdom of Great Britain too; and we look upon it the Duty of this and every Town in this Province, in a legal way, to use our and their utmost endeavors to prevent the execution of any and all unconstitutional Act or Acts that has been or that may hereafter be made to deprive us of any of our just Rights and Liberties, or to take away our Property from us, without our Consent, and that this Town in particular will be ready at all Times, to join with their Brethren, in every legal way and manner, to defend the life and Person of his Majesty, and the Lives of our Brethren, his Majesty's loyal subjects, and in the same way to preserve and defend our own lawful Rights, Liberties, and Properties even to the last Extremity.

And that the Thanks of this Town be given to the Town of Boston, for their taking such early Care in stating the Rights of the Colonists, and making a Representation of the Infringements and Violations that are made of our just Rights and Liberties.

The Town voted to accept the above Report by a great majority, and then chose Capt. Samuel Smith, Capt. John Boardman, and Deacon John Gould a Committee for Correspondence with the Committee of Correspondence of Boston.

Also voted, That the Town clerk transmit an authenticated copy of the foregoing Votes to the Committee of Correspondence of Boston.

A true copy.

Attest, Elijah Porter,

Topsfield, July 15, 1774.

Monday the 11th Instant died, and Yesterday was decently interred, the Reverend Mr. John Emerson, Pastor of the Church in this Town. He was a Native of the Town of Newbury, was educated at Harvard College, the first Honours of which he received in the year 1726. Soon after he went into the study of Divinity, and was settled in the pastoral office in this Place sometime in the Month of November, 1728; and continued a faithful Labourer in the Gospel Ministry upward of 45 Years.

His religious Sentiments were the same, for Substance, with those of the good old puritanic Christians who first planted the Gospel in New-England: And he ever lamented and bore his Testimony against, as a real Apostacy from the Spirit and Religion of our pious Ancestors, the Growth of Principles of a very different Cast and Tendency, which of late Years, have obtained such Footing in many Parts of the Land. His Deportment was pleasant yet serious such as shewed that the Religion he professed habitually influenced both his Heart and Life.

His Preaching was plain, close and searching: as the Points he principally pursued and mainly dwelt on, were such as related to experimental and practical Religion.

His sorrowful surviving Consort has in him, lost a tender husband; his Children, an affectionate Parent; and the People of his Charge a good Minister.

His last Illness was of the lingering kind, as consisting in a universal ill Habit of Body: which notwithstanding he sustained with great Patience and Submission to the divine Will: meeting his approaching Dissolution with the Calmness; Fortitude, and Resignation of a Christian.

Salem Gazette, Apr. 20, 1784.

A gentleman at Topsfield has sent us the following account—

On Thursday the 3d inst. Mr Thomas Emerson, of Topsfield, invited a great number of his neighbors to assist him in raising a frame for a barn, 80 feet long and 30 feet wide; which they proceeded in, until they had got up the body of the frame. They had got the beams on the scaffolds, and had put on one plate, and were getting on the other, which was the whole length of the frame, and the timber very heavy; when about forty feet in the middle of the frame, consisting of five posts, in the front, as many beams, and a scaffold of the same length, and the whole plate, with all the braces, girts and joists belonging thereto, almost instantly fell to the ground.

It was judged by the spectators, that there were about 30 men on that part of the frame, when it fell; a large number of whom were wounded, five or six badly, and one mortally, viz. Mr. Jeremiah Pearley, an inhabitant of the town: his wound was a fracture in the skull, which was supposed he received by falling on a stone that lay under the frame; he died in about twelve hours after he was wounded.

He was about 35 years of age, and has left a young and disconsolate widow to mourn his untimely fate.

In an "extract of a letter from a gentleman at the new settlement of Muskingum (Ohio) to a person in this town (Salem) dated July 20th 1788" is the following.

The Rev. Mr. Breck is here, and this day preached the first sermon that was ever delivered on the banks of the Muskingum, from Exodus xix. 5, 6. Now, therefore, if ye will obey my voice indeed, and keep my covenant, then ye shall be a peculiar treasure unto me, above all people; for all the earth is mine; and ye shall be unto me a kingdom of priests, and a holy nation.

Salem Mercury, Sept. 9, 1788.

The Collector of Excise gave notice that he would be at Topsfield, at Samuel Hood's from 1 to 2 o'clock P. M. on Nov. 1st 1788. to collect excise.

Salem Mercury, Oct 14, 1788.

On Wednesday last, Colonel Waide's regiment was reviewed at Ipswich by the Hon. Majorgeneral Titcomb. After the review, a well planned representation of the storming a fort was exhibited with much spirit and propriety. The fort was situated on a hill near the meeting-house, and defended by a party of infantry and Capt. Brown's horse. The assailants came up in two columns from different quarters; when the fort was summoned, the commander of which resolutely refused to surrender.

The battle then began; each body of the assailants was opposed by a party of horse, the former were repulsed, when three cheers resounded from the fort; they, however, returned to the attack, displayed from the hill, surrounded the fort, and carried the works in an instant.

This performance gave great pleasure to many military characters who were spectators.

After this was finished, the line was formed, and the troops went through the firings with a regularity and precision which could not have been expected. The men were well dressed, well armed, and paid that strict attention to command which in a great measure made up for their want of experience, and gained them the approbation of their fellow citizens.

FOR THE SALEM GAZETTE.

Mr. Cushing.

Some of your country readers are well pleased when they meet in your paper, with a question fitted to exercise their skill in figures, as in that way, they may agreeably pass a leisure hour, especially in a winter's evening. It is but seldom I have an opportunity of peeping into a newspaper, and when it happens, it is commonly a stale one, of 2 or 3 weeks back—but I lately met with your fresh Gazette of August 30th—may be I shan't see another for a month to come. In that of August 30th I met with a question proposed in the following words: "suppose that ten seconds transpire from the first descent of a stone into a Well to the time of the echo, or the first hearing of the sound, what must be the measure of the depth of that

Well?" Which, at first sight, struck me as a curious and entertaining question—not attending to the implied intention of it to puzzle some particular person, I and two or three of my neighbors have done our possibles to answer it, but we can do nothing with it, not being able to 'sery out what relation the transpiring of ten seconds from the first descent of the stone into the well, to the time of the first hearing the sound, alone, has to the depth of the well; and we suspect that the propounder of the question has imposed upon your readers, by propounding a question which he knew, for want of having some one or more circumstances being made known, which he has concealed, could never be answered. Be this as it may, I wish you would please so far as to indulge me as to inform the propounder of the above question, that I have in my garden a well reckoned as deep as any in the neighborhood, the bottom of which, with the addition of my arm's length to my well pole I never could reach by (I believe) a good many feet—and when he, by knowing only the length of the well-pole, being 20 feet and 1 inch exactly, shall determine the depth of my well, I and two or three of my neighbors, all of us able bodied men, will have another tug at his question—and exert our utmost endeavors, from the circumstances of ten seconds transpiring as in the question set forth, to produce an answer to it, however fruitless the attempt may prove.

FOR THE SALEM GAZETTE.

Mr. Cushing.

I have seen the question in your paper respecting a Grindstone—which proved very amusing and entertaining to several of us, and which as far as my skill in figures will allow, I have endeavored here to answer—which, if you have not a better, your giving it a place in your paper will oblige one who sometimes turns the Grindstone, & (as the common phraze is) sometimes holds on.

The whole diameter is 60 inches.

The first person wears it till the diameter is  $51\frac{9}{10}$  inches—or about one hairs breadth less than 52 inches.

The second person wears it till the diameter is  $42\frac{1}{4}$  inches.

The Third ditto till the diameter is 30 inches.

It then remains for the fourth person to wear it out, allowing nothing for the eye.

If the gentleman who proposed the above question will allow my answer to be nearly right, I will beg leave to ask, how much must each of the above named persons wear of the said Grindstone, that each may have an equal benefit of it?

Mr. Printer,

The following list of Senators has been very generally approved by the landed interest—these are all gentlemen who have leisure to attend—ability to understand—and firmness to pursue, the true concerns of their country. Mr. G.'s [William Gray, jun.] name has been handed round the SEAPORTS—it is sincerely to be lamented that the very extensive Commerce that gentleman is engaged in, will by no means suffer him to attend to the important affairs of the County—and as the Commercial interest is more immediately the regulation of Congress—the best intended efforts, to that point, will be in a measure thrown away.

Salem Gazette, April 24, 1792.

On Wednesday last, Mr. Francis Perley, jun., and Mr. Daniel Chapman jun. went out in a small canoe upon a pond in the vicinity [Prichard's Pond now known as Hood's Pond] with the intention of taking fish; when Mr. Perley, in throwing out the anchor, unfortunately overset the boat, which threw them both into the water; Mr. Chapman, who could not swim, fortunately fastened upon the canoe, as it lay with the bottom upward, which sinking with his weight, bro't the water almost over his body; in that situation he called for help, while Mr. Perley, trusting to his skill in swimming, told his companion that he would make for the shore, which was upwards of 20 rods distant; but his strength failing, he sunk, and was drowned in the sight of his friend. The neighbors, at the fatal moment, were unhappily at a distance; but the cries of Mr. Chapman for assistance, were at length heard by Major Asa Perley, who immediately flew to his relief, stripped off his clothes and swam toward the canoe, tho he was in the 76th year of his age; but when he arrived he was unable to move the canoe, as it was fastened by the anchor; he therefore returned to the shore, when, with the help of a few, who were by this time collected, by means of a raft, Mr. Chapman was relieved from his distressful situation.

The body of Mr. Perley was then taken up, after it had lain in the water about two hours.

Every exertion was made to restore life to it, but all proved ineffectual.

Mr. Perley was in his 28th year, and was a person of strict integrity; he had the happiness of the universal esteem of his acquaintance, whose united testimony of his worth will sufficiently embalm his memory.

DIED. At Topsfield, Mrs. REBECCA GOULD, wife of Mr. Zacheus Gould, aged 69. She has for many years been in poor health, and thro all her indisposition has appeared to exercise Christian patience, and to have "Joy and peace in believing" in the rectitude of divine Government. She remained in her usual state of health till a few hours before her death, when being violently ceased with pain, it suddenly terminated in her dissolution. Her husband mourns under the loss of an agreeable and tender companion, and society is deprived of a useful member. "I was a stranger and ye took me in; an hungered and ye gave me meat; naked and ye clothed me!" might with truth have been said to her by the number of twelve persons, whom she has taken in infancy and childhood, from among orphans and dependants, and brought up to mature age. Her expressions of kindness toward them were apparently no less than those which are excited by parental affection and tenderness; many of them still survive to mourn her loss, and who were, and still are, ready to "arise up and call her blessed."

Salem Gazette, Oct. 23, 1792.

DIED at Topsfield, on the 2d instant, Mr. Zacheus Gould, in the 76 year of his age. In justice to his memory, it may with truth be said, that, through the whole of his life, he was an example of seriousness, piety and devotion; he was possessed of a penetrating mind, and of a good judgement; punctual to his engagements, and in his dealings with mankind.

He represented the town in the General Court, in the most critical and trying period. He has been long employed in the town in its most important offices; the duties whereof he discharged with integrity, wisdom and ability.

He was friendly and obliging to all—the kind and tender husband,—sincere and agreeable to his friends—candid and forgiving to the inimical—a father to the fatherless—and a generous benefactor to the indigent and distressed—exemplary in his public walks and private conversation—a sincere lover of religion and of its upright professors—constant in his attendance on public and divine worship, and in all the ordinances of the gospel. He could with pleasure take a retrospective view of his life, and have the testimony of his conscience, that he had lived according to the precepts of the gospel; knowing that he had strictly adhered to them through life. This composed and calmed his mind under the apprehension of his approaching dissolution, and in the solemn and important hour of death; and therefore could cheerfully and willingly resign his soul into the hands of a merciful Saviour and Redeemer, relying alone on his merits for justification before God the father. His exemplary virtues endeared him to a large and extensive circle of friends and acquaintance; the solemn gloom which hangs on their countenances fully evinces the regard they had for him, and the value of the man; and which manifests, that they are sensible of the loss they have sustained by his death. His virtues must embalm his memory more than sons and daughters—and the many who have been under his care, and have experienced his beneficence, must rise up and pronounce him blessed.

“Why should we mourn departing friends,

Or shake at death's alarms?

*'Tis but the voice that Jesus sends,
To call us to his arms.”*

FOR THE SALEM GAZETTE.

Fellow-Citizens,

The 1st Monday in April is fast approaching, when we are called upon by our happy Constitution to exercise one of the most important rights of Freeman, viz., the election of a First Magistrate. Here we will pause a moment for a few reflections, and consider what are the prerequisites for the Electors truly to exercise this right; and I believe it will be granted by every person of common sense, that knowledge in the Elector of the Person to be elected, is an essential prerequisite; but as the territory of this Commonwealth is so extensive, personal knowledge in all the Electors of any one Man, cannot be expected. In the next place, what are the principal qualifications in the person to be elected? That they are, information, probity and integrity, I believe will be as readily granted—from thence it will follow, the person best known to most of the Electors, and possessing the aforesaid qualifications, is the only person in favour of whom the suffrages for a First Magistrate ought to be given—When these principles are sacredly adhered to, then it is, the Citizens shew themselves worthy the character of Freeman, and act conformably to the principle and spirit of our free Constitution, and when this is the real state of Republics, happy are the people—but when the Electors are led by cabals and factions, the citizens condition is truly deplorable.

Now personally to apply the premises Conformably to the foregoing propositions, no nomination for a First Magistrate, appears so eligible, as the Honourable JUDGE SUMNER—who for near twenty years has filled one of the most conspicuous and important offices in the Commonwealth, with the entire approbation and satisfaction of the citizens at large—When on the Bench, coolness and candour marked his temper, while Law and Justice governed his judgment. Add to these the knowledge he must have of the Commonwealth, by means of his Circuit travels; and of the qualifications of persons necessary for filling Offices, are such irresistible reasons, as will induce the free Electors of Essex, and the Commonwealth at large, to give him their fullest support; and in so doing they will shew Republican virtue, by supporting a real friend to rational liberty and the indelible rights of mankind.

A person who had lately a just occasion to pass on Topsfield Road on the Lord's Day, after service, could not refrain from observation upon the careful observance of it by all classes of people. In the space of eight miles after five in the afternoon, he did not see one person abroad, or a single person of either sex gazing through the windows. While a free country can preserve such sacred regard to primitive manners, they may expect the continuance of the public happiness, and the best virtues which can belong to national character.

An enlightened people, under the influence of social and long established institutions of religion, associated with hours of meditation sober conversation, and devotion may hope for the best blessings of heaven.

FOR THE SALEM GAZETTE.

MR. CUSHING,

THE DOG ACT gives general uneasiness in this part of the county, not only as being founded on principles extremely unconstitutional, but also as carrying on the very face of it a degree of partiality to one part of the community, equally injurious and offensive to the other.

Had this act restricted itself to a responsibility on the part of the owner of a dog committing damage, it would have been consonant to the sound principles of jurisprudence.

But, sir, how happens it that the District of Maine is exempted from this oppressive tax on private prop- erty? If dogs are serviceable to the District of Maine, are they not equally so to farmers in other parts of the Commonwealth? Are there no other parts of the Commonwealth thinly inhabited, and abounding in game, but the District of Maine? Pray, sir, inform me if the act would not go down without exempting the District of Maine from its operation.

To obviate the effects of this hasty act, it is proposed here to vote a bounty of one dollar to every one who may be liable and shall actually pay a tax of one dollar for one dog. And as the act very wisely vests the money arising from this tax in the disposition of the towns—a town may doubtless appropriate it as it pleases; those, therefore, who pay a tax of one dollar, will be reimbursed, and the act restricted to its proper limits—a responsibility for damages.

Yours, Z.

Topsfield, March 19. 1798.

P. S. The act ostensibly is to prevent the ill consequences from canine infection. Pray, sir, are not the dogs in the District of Maine liable to this infection? In short, those who keep dogs as an article of luxury can or will pay this tax for them. The farmer, and others to whom dogs are really useful, cannot possibly afford to pay a tax so entirely disproportionate to any tax ever known to this country. It might perhaps have been usefully provided for in the act that young dogs should be wormed. It is said to be the case in England.

MARRIED. At Topsfield, Mr.

DIED. At Topsfield, on Wednesday last, Mr. JOHN BALCH, aged 56. At quarter past eleven o'clock in the forenoon, he was suddenly seized by a most violent spasmodic disorder, and after enduring much pain, expired at three in the afternoon, having been attended by an able physician. He was, when seized, in full health and strength, of which he possessed an uncommon share, being in stature 6 feet 4 inches. He was noted for his probity, integrity of heart, and exact punctuality in all his engagements; and he was attended to the grave by the largest concourse of friends and acquaintance ever before witnessed here. He has left a worthy and afflicted family to lament the loss of a most kind and tender husband, parent, brother and friend. A long and painful disease is generally, and seems naturally to have been, placed between life and death, to the end, perhaps, that death itself might be viewed as a friend by those who die, and by those left behind; but under such sudden and awful dispensations of Divine Providence, how much must the suddenness of the shock add poignancy to the affliction! But the more awful the dispensations of God are, the stronger sense shall we be impressed with of our dependence on him; and the more able shall we be to turn this sense to our moral and spiritual advantage.

A Historical Sketch of the Methodist Episcopal Church in Topsfield.

BY MRS. CLARISSA GLAZIER.

In that part of Topsfield now known as "The City" was the beginning of Methodism in this town. "The City" was then known as "Hobbs' City" from the fact that there were so many families by the name of Hobbs living there.

In May 1830, Charles Dodge and Ezra Glazier, both of Ipswich, at the earnest invitation of Sister Olive Clarke kindly consented to come to Topsfield and hold meetings in the North School-house.

Charles Dodge was a brother of Manning Dodge of Ipswich, and Ezra Glazier was a native of New Hampshire, a baker by trade. He came to Ipswich and set up his business there.

Mrs. Israel Clarke, more familiarly known as "Aunt Olive," was a native of Topsfield, living on the road to Ipswich at what is now known as "Willowdale." Her maiden name was Redington. She was very eccentric in her ways, tall and graceful in appearance; she usually wore a black silk calash, calico dress and a black silk handkerchief across her shoulders. She became interested in Methodism while visiting her sister in Lynn, and as there was no Methodist church in Topsfield she frequently rode to Ipswich with her neighbor, Mr. Amos Gould. Here she became acquainted with Mr. Dodge and Mr. Glazier, two earnest church workers.

By her invitation they came to Topsfield and held a meeting in the North School-house in May, 1830. The building was then located in the field lying in the corner of the Ipswich road and the Bonny's Feather-bed road, so-called being perhaps a hundred feet from the corner.

We quote the words of Mr. Glazier: "On approaching the school-house we saw a few standing outside the house and remarked one to the other that we supposed those were all the people we would have to talk to on that day. However we were very much mistaken, for when we reached the door we saw that the room was well filled. After introducing ourselves we opened the service by singing, this was followed by prayer, then a portion of the scripture was read, followed by earnest exhortation, then singing of revival hymns." Mr. Glazier was a fine singer, and frequently started a hymn during the service appropriate to what had been said, which was taken up by the congregation. One of Mr. Glazier's favorites was, "The judgment day is rolling round." Near the close of the service, as a great interest was manifest, Mr. Glazier asked all those who wished to seek the Lord to rise. A young lady quietly arose and asked to be prayed for. At the end of the service a vote was taken to see how many were in favor of their coming the following Sunday. Every hand was raised. When the next Sabbath came around a still larger number gathered in the school-house. Three meetings were held on that day. At the close of the third meeting a similar invitation was given as on the previous Sunday. In response to this invitation eleven arose and while standing the young lady who had asked to be prayed for on the previous Sunday arose and expressed the joys of her own salvation. At the close of the meeting held on the third Sabbath five more manifested a desire to follow Christ. On the following Sunday the school-house, which would seat about sixty persons, was so crowded that the brethren could hardly find standing room in which to address the people, of whom many were standing outside. Before separating that day some of those present said they would try to get permission to hold the meetings in Capt. John Adams' barn, which was large and commodious. This barn is now owned by Barney Mulligan. Permission was soon obtained and accordingly the barn was cleared and seats of rough boards provided for all who might come, and all agreed that it was a delightful place. As Mr. Glazier himself has said: "The swallows were feeding their young up in the top and singing to them, and down on the floor God was converting souls. How beautiful the thought that our dear Savior was born in a barn, and that He condescends to make this a place for redeemed souls."

Deacon Adams, grandfather of Mrs. Susan Perkins, and father of Mr. John Adams, who owned the barn where the meetings were held, had been a deacon of the Tabernacle Church in Salem for twenty-five years and was an earnest exhorter, proving of great help in the meetings. Rev. Jacob Sanborn of Ipswich came and preached occasionally during that summer. In haying time, as the barn was needed, they were compelled to returned to the school-house. A class meeting was organized and regular meetings held. The converts were put on six months' probation before uniting with the church as was customary. In August thirteen were baptized in the Ipswich river back of Captain Adams' barn. Joshua Wildes, Israel Wildes, Stephen Bartlett, David Hood, Phoebe Hood, Captain Israel Elliott, Mary Elliott, Mary Blaisdell, Celinda Averill and Clarissa Wildes were led into the water and immersed by Rev. Jacob Sanborn and three others were sprinkled while kneeling on the bank: Elizabeth Rust, Sally Adams and William Cummings. A large number of people gathered to witness the ceremony. The services consisted of singing, reading of scripture and prayer. The baptismal robes of the Ipswich Church were borrowed for the occasion. These were of a slate color with lead in the bottom of the skirt to prevent it floating on the surface of the water.

In September a young man, William Nancawen, was appointed to this charge by the presiding elder. He remained only a few weeks and was followed by Rev. Isaac U. Swinerton, who remained until the following session of the Conference.

On Oct. 20, 1830 the society was organized into a Methodist Episcopal Church, called a branch of the Ipswich church, and had fifteen members.

METHODIST CHURCH IN 1840.

At the session of the New England Conference held in May, 1831, Rev. R. D. Easterbrook was appointed to this charge. He advocated the immediate erection of a church building and the members and friends entered heartily upon the work. Mr. Timothy Monroe of Lynn was engaged to build the house. He prepared the lumber and had it brought to Topsfield all ready to be put together. Land was given by Mr. Aaron Kneeland on the Newburyport turnpike. The frame of the building was raised Oct. 19, 1831 without the use of ardent spirits, which is very significant from the fact that at that time it was customary for the builders to be "strengthened" in their work by ardent spirits.

The building was forty feet square in size, having a plain pitch roof with chimney in the rear end. There were two doors at the front end opening directly into the audience room and located between them, high against the wall, was the pulpit built in the form of a semi-circle. At the rear were three raised pews or slips used by the singers. Two stoves, on either side and in front of the pulpit, were used to heat the room.

It was customary with the Methodist churches to hold in the Fall what was called "Four Day's meeting." In September the presiding elder appointed a camp-meeting here as there was, as yet, no church. Accordingly a maple grove belonging to Mr. John P. Peabody, on the old Ipswich road, was hired for four days for forty dollars. The underbrush was cleared away and large trees felled for seats. A preacher's stand was erected and the different societies set up their tents about it in a circle. Societies came from Boston, Salem, Lynn, Newburyport and from many small towns in the district. They brought their tents, cooking utensils and other similar necessities in large baggage wagons. The meetings were conducted by presiding elder Lambert, assisted by the ministers in the district. Father Merrill and Father Taylor were two of the most important.

During the meetings one of the sisters went into a trance and appeared dead. Some wished to give her restoratives but others said, "No, she will come out of it all right and tell us what she has seen," and it so happened that she came out shouting "Glory to God."

A feature of the meetings was the enthusiastic singing of the congregation; also the great interest in the ministers words shown by hearty responses of "Amen!" and "Glory to God!"

The meetings went on gloriously for four days and many persons were converted. They were largely attended by visitors from all the adjoining towns, for an open air meeting had never before been held in this vicinity. Notwithstanding the great success of the meetings it was a number of years before another "camp meeting" was held and then at Asbury Grove, Hamilton.

Having referred to the camp-meeting the dedication of the church is the next incident of note, it occurring Dec. 28, 1831. The dedicatory sermon was preached by Rev.

Enoch Mudge of Lynn, using for his text II Chron. 6: 18: "But will God in very deed dwell with men on the earth? Behold, heaven and the heaven of heavens cannot contain thee; how much less this house which I have built!" Scriptures were read and prayer offered by Rev. Jesse Fillmore of Salem. The house was crowded with an attentive audience. The interest manifested during the following year was good.

Rev. R. D. Easterbrook remained here one year. He was followed by Thomas Stetson, who removed from his appointment in June 1832. The only information which can be gained of his pastorate is the following brief notice in Zion's Herald:—"Our Zion here when seen by mortal eye appears quite feeble, and we are often ready to cry out with the prophet 'By whom shall Jacob arise? for he is small.' But when with an eye of faith we view the Lord as he is seen in all his works, a far more pleasant prospect opens before us. We have been cheered of late with some tokens of the Divine Presence in our meetings. Much more union prevails in the church, and a number of souls are enquiring the way to Zion. To God alone be all the glory."

At the session of Conference in 1833, Rev. David Culver was appointed to this charge.

Mr. Culver was the first married minister who was sent here by the Conference. They lived in the house where Miss Hattie Porter now lives, then owned by Mr. Jacob Towne, occupying two rooms, one on the lower floor, the other upstairs and at the opposite side of the house. The rent was twenty dollars a year. A singular contrast to the accommodations now given our modern clergymen.

Mrs. Culver had a visage marked with intelligence. She wore a white satin cap crown bonnet, a drab-colored dress, a plain white shawl over her shoulders and always appeared singularly neat and plain. She was upright, graceful and remarkably active, and possessed a fund of anecdote that made her company agreeable as well as instructive. Zion's Herald of July 24, 1833 says the following of Mr. Culver's pastorate: "There is a general quickening in the church, and many appear to feel an unusual hungering and thirsting after righteousness and manifest that it is the longing desire of their souls to be filled with perfect love. There is also an increasing attention in the congregation to the preaching of the Word."

Mr. Culver remained one year and was followed by Rev. Benj. King, a licensed preacher from Lynn, who supplied a few weeks, when he asked to be removed. Mr. King was paid his expenses to and from Lynn but received nothing for his services as preacher. Rev. Charles S. McReading of Boston supplied until November. Previous to coming to Topsfield he was stationed in Salem, where, finding his people proud and arrogant, he preached them a sermon from the text found in Ecc. 10; 1: "Dead flies cause the ointment of the apothecary to send forth a stinking savour; so doth a little folly him that is in reputation for wisdom and honour." The people resented it and he left at his own request. There being a vacancy at this church he came here.

His family consisted of a wife and one child. They occupied the same rooms as Mr. Culver. The society furnished their housekeeping goods, they being the first who were supplied with furniture by the society, and regularly received their Sunday morning breakfast of baked beans and brown bread hot from the brick oven of Mrs. Eunice Wildes.

In November Rev. Henry Skinner was sent here by the presiding elder; he remained until July 1835. During his pastorate many were converted. At this time the number of church members including probationers was twenty-three with a Sabbath school of between thirty and forty scholars. The society was then without a pastor till Jan. 1836 when the presiding elder appointed Rev. John E. Risley who remained till April. He was followed by Rev. S. E. Pike who remained till December. From December to July Rev. G. T. Poole a Lynn preacher supplied so acceptably that he was stationed here by the Conference for the following year. During his ministry eleven persons joined the church. In July 1838 Rev. G. W. Bates, brother to Lewis Bates, D. D., of Boston was appointed here. He was a young man of pleasing address, full of faith in God and generally beloved by all the people. During the first part of his ministry he decided to have a "Four Day's Revival Meeting," beginning Sept. 26th. Such an interest was manifested that the meetings were continued until mid-winter. About one hundred souls were converted of whom twenty-six united with the church, others joining the Congregationalists here, at Linebrook and at Hamilton. The following is from Zion's Herald of Nov. 1838: "God is reviving his work in a most glorious manner in this place. Our church has been rising in spirituality; our meetings have been increasing in interest, and there have been awakenings and conversions among us for months past. Within a few days fifty persons have been brought from darkness to light and from the powers of Satan unto God. The aged, the middle-aged and the young have been converted; but the greater number are young persons and a large proportion young men, promising much usefulness to the Church. Twenty joined us on trial last Sunday and others are ready to do the same. Our church has been small from the beginning, numbering only thirty-four members last June. A few individuals have borne the burdens here for years. God is now adding to them grace and numbers. Of some large families in which there were no professors almost every member is converted to God. We hope this work will not cease until all are brought to the knowledge of the Truth. Our meetings continue very interesting. Praise is due our singers who are punctual in their attendance and perform their part of divine worship with spirit and with a good understanding. We feel very grateful also for the timely and faithful labors of Bros. Israel Washburn and George Knight, but all the glory belongs to God; for we were never more convinced that a work was His."

as the congregation had come to be composed mainly of people from the village, it was decided to move the church to that part of the town. Accordingly it was started Jan. 9, 1840, Mr. Pearl Tapley of Tapleyville moving the building with fifty yoke of oxen. It followed this route: through Mr. Aaron Kneeland's field, across the road over Mr. Simonds' plain, now owned by Mr. Henderson, across the field between Boardman's and Simonds' over the meadow back of Mr. Batchelder's house, now owned by Mr. Cram, and through the field into the main road, then back of the houses of Abram Welch and Gilbert Balch. While it was going across the meadow back of Abram Welch's house the cable broke three times so that it was likely to have to stay there and some very uncharitable thoughts were expressed by some, that it was in a good place and they hoped it would have to stay there.

However it got along all right and was placed on land west of Main street near what is now the house of John B. Lake. The use of this land was donated by Mr. Richard Phillips. After moving the church it was repaired and painted for the first time at a cost of about two hundred dollars.

Rev. Mr. Field remaining here one year was followed by Rev. L. B. Griffin who held special revival services, as a result of which twenty-five persons joined the church on trial while fifty more were reported as attending class meetings.

In July 1841 Rev. Amos Walton was appointed to this charge. He lived in the house now occupied by E. Otis Gould. During his ministry several persons united with the church and the Sunday school was in a flourishing condition. The next minister was Rev. H. C. Dunham, who was followed by Rev. I. J. P. Collyer. He remained two years, being the first minister to remain that length of time. He lived in the stone house at the top of Pingree's hill, which was torn down a few years ago, attending meetings twice a week at "The City," during his first year. He carried on revival services in the churches. As he entered the door and while taking off his overcoat he would commence to sing his favorite hymn, "Jerusalem, my happy home, name ever dear to me." During his second year he lived in Mr. Billy Emerson's house, now owned by Mr. Humphrey Balch. His successor, Rev. Moses Webster, was transferred from the Maine Conference and stationed here in May 1845. A very pleasant year was passed by pastor and people. He was followed by Rev. John Paulson, who remained one year. His successor was Rev. Wm. R. Stone, who remained two years.

In May 1849 Rev. Kinsman Atkinson was appointed to this field of labor, and entered upon his pastorate with a determination to build a parsonage. He bought land of Mr. Thomas Lane and commenced to erect a building at his own expense. Soon the trustees assumed the task but the work went on so slowly that the building was not completed until the close of Mr. Atkinson's second year. Like Moses of old he could look into but could not enter the promised home. Mr. Atkinson was born in Maine and was one of twelve children. He was graduated from Harvard College in 1834 and for five years preached from Congregational pulpits, but in 1843 he changed his views of church government and joined the M. E. church. While stationed in town he hired the Topsfield Academy building and taught one term of eleven weeks. During his pastorate he also taught a winter term of school at Linebrook parish and at the East school in Topsfield.

Rev. John G. Carey, who was appointed here in April 1851, was the first minister to occupy the parsonage. He remained two years and took some steps toward erecting a more commodious church building. A building committee was appointed consisting of Andrew Gould, William Ray and Alfred Towne. The site selected was that upon which the church now stands. The land was bought of Mr. Humphrey Baleb for four hundred dollars and the building now used was commenced. The architect was H. Graves of Boston, who being a Methodist gave his services. The carpenters were: Samuel Clarke, Daniel Willey, Isaiah M. Small, Cyrus Peabody, William Welch, Jacob Foster and John H. Potter. The painters were: A. Harden of Georgetown and James Henderson. Rev. Mr. Carey remained two years and was followed by Rev. A. F. Bailey who remained one year during which time the work of building continued.

In May 1854, Rev J. W. Bemis, transferred from the Vermont Conference, was stationed here.

The church structure being completed was dedicated June 14, 1854. Through Mr. Andrew Gould's efforts the bell had been procured and placed in position. Mr. William Ray donated the pulpit, Mr. John Cary gave the Bible and hymn book, Mr. Stephen Bartlett gave the communion service. The Ladies' Society furnished the house.

On the morning of the dedication the presiding elder, Rev. L. Crowell, preached the sermon. Rev. Mr. Collyer preached in the afternoon.

Mention has been made of the gift of a pulpit. In this connection it is interesting to note that the pulpit in the old building was given to Mr. Stephen Bartlett and in time came into the possession of James Manning, who gave it to Hon. George B. Loring of Salem.

The old church building was sold to Isaiah M. Small, who built it over into a barn at his house long known as "High Rock Cottage," from the fact it is modeled after singer John W. Hutchinson's house at High Rock, Lynn. It is standing today, the double window in one end having occupied the place of honor behind the pulpit in the old days.

When the present church was built, there was no public hall in town of more than very moderate seating capacity, so the lower story of the building was fitted up for use as a public hall in connection with church uses. A platform was built and here for many years the annual town meeting was held and public gatherings of whatever nature. The outbreak of the Civil War saw many stirring meetings and when the project of erecting a Town Hall was canvassed, one town meeting was adjourned from Union Hall, as it has ever been known, to the wide expanse of the "common," until the constables could line up the "yeas" and "nays" and duly count the same.

Rev. Mr. Bemis remained till September. Mr. Huyler, a local preacher, supplied till the next Conference. His successor, Rev. John Smith, remained one year. In April 1856 Rev. Franklin Furber was stationed here, who said of his pastorate, "It was remarkable only for accomplishing nothing." His successor, Abraham Osgood, held revival services. Thirty were converted.

The next minister, Rev. George Sutherland, gathered the fruits of his predecessor's revival. Soon after his arrival he learned that a heavy debt of three thousand and three hundred dollars was resting upon the church. Having consulted with the trustees and found them favorable to any plan for cancelling the same, he raised sufficient money by subscription and church aid to cancel the debt. The church should ever hold him in grateful remembrance for this noble service.

The Sunday when Mr. Sutherland preached his last sermon was long remembered in town. At its close he publicly announced that the services of the choir would be no longer needed.

This was a dismissal of Samuel S. McKenzie, who had served as chorister for many years.

In the old church he had introduced the use of instruments in connection with the singing and his brass clarinet, the product of his ingenuity, shrill in tone and ever the object of much interest, now rests on exhibition in the rooms of the Essex Institute at Salem. Other players were John Peabody on the clarinet, Benj. F. Adams on the bass viol, and sometimes Frederick Stiles who was very proficient on the double bass.

In April 1860, Rev. J. W. Lewis was appointed to this charge, passing a quiet year. His successor, Rev. A. D. Merrill, more familiarly known as "Father Merrill," was thought much of by the people. He tried to improve the parsonage grounds by planting trees and vines and raised sixty dollars' worth of strawberries on the parsonage land.

Rev. E. S. Snow, who was sent here next, was very well liked by the people. His successor, Rev. F. G. Morris, was a very talented preacher and remained two years. In April, when Mr. Lincoln was shot, services were held in the churches all over the country. Mr. Morris preached the funeral sermon in this town.

In 1866, Rev. George Chapman was stationed here. At the last quarterly conference of the year it was voted to ask the Bishop to leave Topsfield "to be supplied." The vote was passed because the brethren thought it would be impossible to pay a minister enough to support him. During the session of the Annual Conference, however, the people changed their minds and wrote the Bishop to try them one year more. Accordingly Rev. Wm. Bridges was sent here. In his words, "The budding and the blossoming was unpropitious but the fruit was good." During the first half of his first year the average attendance at midweek meetings was five, but in the winter revival services were held, continuing for several months. In these meetings, which were held for one hundred successive evenings, Mr. Bridges was assisted by Mrs. Holway, his wife's mother, also by his own mother, both very talented women. Eighty-five persons joined the church on probation.

Near the close of his first year an organ of English make, costing nine hundred dollars, was purchased, and the pastor's salary raised to one thousand dollars. His successor, Rev. C. F. Chase, remained one year. During that time the church was painted at a cost of four hundred and fifty dollars.

The next minister, Rev. J. F. Mears, was liked by everyone. On August 3, 1870 it was decided to have a Sunday school picnic at a large grove at Groveland. About one hundred of the school attended and one hundred outsiders. The time was well enjoyed in sailing, singing, playing and swinging. About forty-four dollars were collected to defray the expenses of the children. The expenses were twenty-nine dollars and forty cents, leaving the balance of fourteen dollars and seventy-five cents, which the school voted to give toward erecting a new tent at Hamilton camp-ground. This among other excursions and picnics was largely due to the effort of Mr. C. J. P. Floyd. During Mr. Mears' pastorate one hundred and fifty dollars worth of books were added to the Sunday school library and new furnaces costing three hundred dollars put into the church.

In 1872 Rev. S. A. Fuller received his appointment. His successor, Rev. G. W. Buzzell, worked hard amidst much discouragement. Some repairs, amounting to one hundred dollars, were made on the church. In April 1875, Rev. W. H. Meredith was sent here. Beginning with a watch night service near the close of his second year, he held special services every night either in the church or in the district school house until April. Quite a number of persons were converted, twenty-nine joining the church on probation. Rev. S. L. Rodgers succeeded him. He was followed by Rev. George H. Clarke. His pastorate is best described in his own words. "Upon coming to the place and learning that the spiritual thermometer was near freezing point and the estimate for minister's salary of the previous year was only one-half paid, I was well nigh discouraged. But the promises of God were my support. From the beginning of my labors here until now I have worked as hard as my strength would allow, and have been permitted by the blessing of God to accomplish a few things, but if in this life only we were to look for our reward, and if, while in one short itinerant resting place we are to look for all the results of our labor in that place, I should feel sad at the little accomplished. The thought, however, that some seed may yet spring up and yield an abundant harvest so that in the harvest both he that soweth and he that reapeth may rejoice together gives me some joy."

The 14th of June, the 25th anniversary of the dedication of the church was celebrated. Early in Mr. Clarke's second year some repairs were begun upon the church. The vestry was painted and kalsomined, a new platform erected, the halls painted and the organ moved from the gallery to the right of the pulpit.

Beginning on Tuesday, Oct. 19 the semi-centennial of the church was celebrated, the services lasting one week. On Tuesday there was a grand concert of vocal and instrumental music, and reopening of the church. On Wednesday, semi-centennial day, several former pastors and members were present, also the presiding elder, L. Crowell, D. D. In the afternoon an excellent address was delivered by Dr. Crowell, prayer offered by Rev. Wm. Bridges and excellent music rendered by a select choir. A collation was served at five o'clock. In the evening brief speeches were made by former pastors and a social reunion enjoyed by the large number who had assembled at this time. A four days' meeting followed the anniversary. Rev. W. F. Mallalien, D. D., of Chelsea, Rev. Geo. Whitaker of Cambridge, Rev. A. W. Baird of Groveland and Rev. S. F. Chase of Salem assisted in the afternoon and evening. Twelve persons were converted.

In February all debts to the amount of three hundred and twenty dollars were cancelled.

Mr. Clarke was returned for the third year.

Beginning on Dec. 14, 1881, an eight page paper, "The Topsfield Herald," was published on alternate Fridays until April 7th. One hundred and five dollars were realized from its sale.

On laying down the editorial quill Mr. Clark wrote as follows:—The time has come when, in accordance with the itinerant system of the Methodist Episcopal church, we move from this to some other field of labor. Our three years' stay in Topsfield has been exceedingly pleasant and we shall carry with us cheerful recollection of this delightful town, "beautiful for situation," and charming for a temporary country residence. The many kindnesses of the people, and tokens of esteem received from them, will not soon be forgotten.

In April 1882, Rev. A. C. Manson was appointed. Although he was very conscientious and did his best, he did not meet with very great success.

In April 1883, Rev. N. H. Martin was stationed here. During his ministry there was great depression in business causing many families to move out of town. He was followed by Rev. James S. Docking.

In 1887, Rev. O. H. Curnick was appointed, remaining two years. In Jan. 1888, he had a three weeks' revival meeting at which thirty were converted. During this year the church was painted on the inside, new shutters put in and the steeple was cut down and remodelled at a cost of six hundred dollars.

Rev. Theodore Haven followed him, staying for one year.

In April 1890, Rev. Charles Fuller

was stationed here. He was beloved by all and remained two years. Rev. Samuel Reid succeeded him, remaining one and one-half years.

From that time to the year 1896, the pulpit was supplied by students from the Theological School. Rev. Joseph Simpson was the first. While here he raised nearly two hundred dollars by church aid to repair the interior of the church.

The next student was Rev. John Reeder. He raised quite a sum of money for missionary purposes.

His successor was Rev. John B. Gough who was very quiet and retiring. The present pastor, Rev. I. Murray Mellish, is now entering upon his second year. Several new members have been added during his pastorate and the church still stands free from debt.

The Life and Work of Rev. Anson McLoud.

BY MISS HELEN E. PEABODY.

One scarcely realizes the meaning of biography till he begins to study and write the history of a life. Be that life long or short, complete or defective, fertile or barren, there is a sacredness about the individuality that makes one pause as he approaches the theme. The story of a life that originated with the infinite, possessing possibilities beyond human power to measure, and which only eternity can unfold, is not a subject to be carelessly or thoughtlessly treated.

The man whose life-work we are about to consider was a typical New Englander of the old school, who served his generation before the days of Smyth and the Second Probation, and who would have had little sympathy with the "New Departures" or "Higher Criticisms" had he been in active service today. He would have been slow to accept and teach the later theology, not for lack of a progressive spirit, for his mind was ever on the alert to gain the newest element of advance, but because of his eagerness to hold against any innovation the great essentials of the spiritual life, and could not accept anything that savored of unsoundness.

Though Rev. Anson McLoud was a representative New Englander in many of his strong points of character, he possessed some qualities of mind and heart that are rare in any period or clime. He was mortal and finite, with the weaknesses of our common brotherhood, yet he seemed to stand on a higher plane and breathe a purer atmosphere than most of his cotemporaries. There was a something in his bearing that at once arrested the attention and commanded the respect of every one with whom he came in contact.

His life on earth began June 22d, 1813, in the town of East Hartland, Connecticut. Like many another "who has left his foot prints on the sands of time," he was reared on a farm, which in many ways was of decided advantage, laying for him the basis of a strong superstructure. It was his good fortune to be the son of parents who did not think it beneath their dignity to plow and reap and gather into barns. Not only many of our poets, who like Bryant could sing, "To him, who in the love of nature holds communion with her visible forms, she speaks a various language," but many of our greatest statesmen, scholars and divines spent their earliest years where unrestrained they could revel in Nature's wonderland, and drink of many a fountain denied the city bred youth. The schools give much, books give more, but the free, every day acquaintance with nature's glories is needed in life's great lessons for the best moral and physical development. The farm life of Mr. McLoud taught him to sympathize with those to whom he ministered during a long pastorate, to enter into their labors, limitations, and trials, and share in the affairs of a rural neighborhood, as no other training could have done. That his trapeze was the hay loft, his dumb bells the scythe, his Swedish Movement the rake and pitchfork, accounted largely for the strong, vigorous, physical health it was his privilege to enjoy till his service as pastor was completed. Mr. McLoud never owned a horse, and his visits to a scattered community were always made on foot. He learned the nearer and more convenient ways over pasture and field, brook and meadow, and did not hesitate to remove stockings and shoes in order to ford a stream. He invariably walked to Boxford, Georgetown, Wenham and Danvers when making exchanges, and was ready for another tramp when Monday morning came. No summer or winter vacations relieved the strain of this long and important pastorate, and when once invited to accompany a party of friends as guest, on the opening of the Baltimore and Ohio R. R., he declined to leave his charge even for a short time when there seemed signs of a spiritual awakening.

Mr. McLoud's early opportunities for gaining an education were limited, which no doubt in some degree accounted for his so eagerly seizing and prizing them when later presented, and also for his great desire to see all the young, who came under his influence, appreciate the value of an education. He never advocated a superficial, one-sided, half-finished development, but a symmetrical, all-round, mental, moral, physical and spiritual education that would fit one for time and eternity.

At thirteen he entered a select school, where his mind began that unfolding which continued through his whole life, for he was a man who never ceased to grow. It was in this school that he received an inspiration to teach, which he subsequently did with acceptance for several years, indeed it might truthfully be said that he always taught, for he ever aimed to teach his people from the pulpit. During the years he directed the youthful mind in Connecticut, he boarded around, and often would he regale his intimate friends in after years with recitals of the varied and frequent ludicrous experiences of this eventful period of his life.

The college career of Mr. McLoud was spent at Yale, and his theological course was divided between Union and Andover. In 1841, when about to graduate from the latter institution, he made an agreement to preach in Candia, N. H. Mr. Blackmer, a fellow student, had promised to occupy the Topsfield pulpit on the same date, but for some reason felt disinclined to keep his engagement, and asked Mr. McLoud as a favor to go to Topsfield, which he did, Mr. Blackmer occupying the Candia pulpit. Thus was he introduced to our fathers, which proved to be the beginning of his long and only pastorate. The people heard him, were pleased, and called him to a ministry of twenty-seven years, closing in 1869. This was a time when pastoral engagements were not ephemeral, and although several times this leader could have gone to other fields with increased salary, he felt he had a mission in Topsfield, and a message to Topsfield, and would not allow his conscience to be bruised by leaving. He believed he was called, and called to stay, and no temptation could swerve him from his purpose to do the specific work that he thought had been assigned him.

In the year of his settlement he married Miss Jane Cornish, who proved not only a companion, but a true helpmate in all his private and professional career. Gifted, like himself, with strong, scholarly instincts and religious convictions, she stood ready to aid him in any work for the benefit of the parish, and not only hand in hand, but heart with heart they trod the roadway of life, each an inspiration to the other, till 1883, when the beloved husband passed beyond the gates. Four children blessed this happy union, Willie, who went early to the home of rest, Helen, a mother of mature years, who has recently joined her father, and Malcolm and Norman, who still survive him.

From 1841-1869 was a well defined and marked period in the history of the Topsfield church, and Topsfield town as well, for whatever contributes to the welfare of the church is valuable to the town, as one cannot be a good churchman and a poor citizen. Religion and politics each have a distinct place in our life, but they are not so far divorced that they act in opposite directions. The Congregational church of Mr. McLoud's early ministry was composed of many strong families; of men and women of unusual fibre for a country town. Of more than ordinary intelligence, character and mental ability, they were people who could think and act for themselves, and who would be led by, nor ministered to, by no man, who did not combine these qualities in a marked degree, and did not possess a strong personality.

The Historical Society does well to pause amid its researches to consider the character and influence of such families as the Huntingtons, Clevelands and Todds, the Peabodys, Balches and Adamses, the Perkinses, Wildeses and Townes, whose names are a benediction; and to whom the present generation owes a debt it never can discharge. They were a tower of strength to the pastor, a power in the town, and the community today are enjoying the result of their force. They believed in the church and prayer meeting and supported them by their presence, pockets, and words; they had faith in the Town Meeting and the 4th of March found them discharging their obligations in civil affairs, as the Wednesday evening and Sunday witnessed to their zeal in spiritual matters. Each one seems appointed to a specific place and work, one sowing, another reaping, and as we glance over this period of history it appears clear that it was the sphere of Mr. McLoud to bring to glad fruition the labors of his predecessors. The great religious interest of 1832 and 1833, resulted in 111 additions to the church, and the awakening of 1840, the year preceding Mr. McLoud's coming, brought 41 more into membership, so that when in 1841 Mr. McLoud assumed the charge, the church was approaching its maximum number, though it slowly but constantly received additions for many years. Those years of marvelous religious interest would naturally be followed by a time of seeming retrograde, but if the ingathering was comparatively small, they must not be considered years of stagnation. It was a period of growth, education and harmonious development of the church, and when it learned that to live meant to go outside of itself.

It has already been said that this pastor was a true teacher, and it was this characteristic that reacted upon his parish. He instructed by constantly being an object lesson, because he was a student, and identified himself so closely with his people that he was able to direct their thoughts in the channels of his own thinking. He loved books, and as the years sped on, his attachment for them grew stronger and stronger, till he cherished the best as well known and well tried friends. To his little daughter, who was once treating a book harshly, he said, "Those who love books never hurt them." His knowledge of literature was phenomenal for a country pastor of those days, and the fact that he accumulated a private library of over fifteen hundred volumes, on a salary of never more than eight hundred dollars, shows he made many sacrifices to gratify his literary taste. He had the faculty of grasping an author's meaning without seeming effort, and easily assimilated the thoughts presented. To follow an author from step to step, to catch the thoughts and retain them, so that at the close of a book one can form a symmetrical whole, is the mark of a well trained mind. No superficial, ordinary reader can do this. Says the Rev. Geo. L. Gleason when speaking on this subject: "In my visits to Topsfield during my theological course, it was always my custom and delight to spend one evening in the study of Mr. McLoud, examining and discussing the latest literary works, and the stimulus and guidance he afforded me were of inestimable value."

His pulpit style was didactic, forceful, rapid, concise, emphatic and clear. No one could fail to understand his meaning or misconstrue his intentions, for he was frank and sincere, and when his duty was clear, was fearless in rebuking a wrong. His gestures were few, but telling, and always left an impression of reserve force and unspent energy. His best efforts are universally conceded to have been done for special occasions. On Thanksgivings and Fasts he rose to the occasion, and his people expected and received a treat. It is to be regretted that his extreme modesty never permitted the publication of any of these discourses save one, that is now the property of this society. At the earnest solicitation of the leading spirits of the church the Thanksgiving sermon of 1852 was published and given free circulation in the town. It is a strong but calm review of the political situation, upon the text "The lines are fallen unto me in pleasant places, yea, I have a goodly heritage." Though written for the exciting days attending the advent of the administration of Pres. Pierce, the principles he lays down and the comments he gives are as applicable now as then, and would make delightful and instructive reading for an evening gathering. It was his habit to prepare series of sermons on special subjects, which drew large audiences of people from this and adjoining towns. One of these holding a firm place in the memory was a series of expository sermons on several books of the Bible. They were productions, had they been put in permanent form, that would have been to Scripture students of great value. Another series which were very popular, and drew people from so long a distance as Salem to hear them, related to church history, and which was, at the earnest solicitations of Mr. Huntington and Mr. Lord, placed in the archives of the Essex Institute and are now its property.

A strong, energetic, healthful, life-giving, missionary spirit marked this ministry from beginning to end. This pastor believed in the conversion of the world, and that it is the province of the church to send the message to the remotest lands. It was not simply a theory, but a belief that permeated his very soul and which took tangible form in doing. To him the world was an organic unit, and to keep one nation or people in ignorance of the glad tidings was comparable to the loss of a vital part of the body. He had that larger, later, nineteenth century conception of missions which is the result of close scrutiny of man's relation to divinity, and critical study of the whole scheme of redemption. Of such cast were Judson, Goodell, and the broad-minded men that have carried the interests of the American Board for nearly a century. It was his grasp of the oneness of the human race that led him, like our beloved Whittier, to voice the New England heart in advocating universal human freedom, and although he did not leave his sentiments embodied in imperishable verse, he did impress them on immortal lives. If one class of meetings stand out more prominently in the memory of this era than others, it was the Missionary Concert. Regularly, once a month, young and old came together for instruction and impetus, and "Among the many pictures, that hang on memory's wall," is the reverend pastor with pointer in hand and maps before him, giving the geography and missionary history of every land in turn. He never came to his task unprepared, waiting for a chance remark to give a suggestion, but he planned for every concert and prayer meeting conscientiously, and taught and encouraged the church to take up and discuss the subjects presented, which resulted in few silent moments.

Rev. Anson McLoud was gifted with strong personal characteristics, which were apparent to every one with whom he came in contact. To the stranger he seemed stern and unapproachable, but when once his confidence had been gained, he was free, social and winning, for never one lived with a kindlier heart or more lovable disposition. In speaking of him in this connection, one who knew him best quoted Cicero's opinion of Pompey: "Those that lived with him the longest were the happiest," and added "Those happy days when I was free to go to his home, wore away so fast without my thinking they would ever end."

In the sick room he was always a welcome visitor. One who was often the recipient of these pastoral calls has recently said, "I anxiously waited for his footstep, knowing he would have some word of cheer." Never did he leave the sick or afflicted without leaving his impress behind. He taught great lessons when making these visits, as well as from the pulpit, and it was often done in such a delicate, indirect manner, that the effect of the lesson would be intensified. One that came under his care was sick so long that she was discouraged and inclined to fret, and was well nigh the "Slough of Despond." After listening a suitable time to the tale of woe, he said: "I'll tell you a story I have recently heard if you will promise that you will not take it to yourself." Then he related an incident of an officer in the Rebel service, who was bemoaning his lot since his capture by the Yankees. He was swearing vociferously, when a Quaker approached him and said: "Swear, on my friend, swear on, for you can never enter heaven with all that in your heart." It is needless to say a personal application was made, and the lesson learned.

Extremely careful of others' feelings and desirous to avoid being a stone of stumbling, he often took steps most people would consider unnecessary. In the congregation was a regular attendant upon public worship, though not a member of the church, who possessed some very strong peculiarities. Mr. McLoud honored him, loved him, understood him, and always was very careful never to strike against his sharp points. His greatest singularity was an avowed determination never to hear a Methodist preacher. It was the custom to exchange pulpits annually, and when the time came, it was the invariable habit of Mr. McLoud to walk to the outskirts of the town and inform Mr. S. of his intention, the Saturday preceding, so the brother could make arrangements for worship elsewhere. On one occasion, by some mischance, the notification was overlooked, and Mr. S. walked down the long aisle to the side of the pulpit. Discovering the intruder, he turned and quickly retraced his steps, much to the merriment of those that understood the situation. Upon apology Mr. McLoud was pardoned, but to his dying day Mr. S. never listened to a follower of Wesley.

Mr McLoud was very careful of his statements when questioned. When in doubt, he would say "I am not quite sure of that. I shall have to think that over before I give an opinion." The same prudence extended to his financial affairs and domestic life. By strict economy and careful management, he gave each of his children a good, substantial education, built a comfortable residence, gave liberally to missionary enterprises, helped many of the poor in his parish privately, accumulated a large library and always kept out of debt.

A keen sense of humor pervaded his nature, and a quickness to recognize and appreciate true wit, and that it has a legitimate place in life, made him an agreeable companion when one had learned to know him.

In 1881, when the writer felt she was reading before a critical audience, "Mary had a little Lamb," she was gratified and encouraged when spying the grave and dignified pastor shaking with merriment, showing he recognized in the characters portrayed, the quick-witted Irishman, and the slow moving Dutchman. When speaking of him, Mr. Sewall of Lynn once said: "He is the life of our association."

Mr. McLoud's ideals were lofty, but the standard he set for others, he followed closely himself. Charity and generosity were prominent in his make up, as many a home of penury could testify, though he never allowed his left hand to know what his right hand did. His influence was not confined to the limits of the pulpit, for he was a citizen as well as a pastor. Duty and privilege were synonymous terms with him, and he considered it both, to cast his vote for the party that had the interests of state at heart.

The educational matters of the town were of great moment to him, as they are to all thinking and progressive men. When serving on the school committee, which position he held from 1875-1882, he knew every child by name, and it is safe to say there was no child but knew and loved him. From the printed reports it is clear he understood the true and more modern meaning of education, for his method of dealing with both teacher and pupil shows that he believed to awaken the dormant, mental faculties is of far greater value than to store the mind with facts. While he conceded that "knowledge is power," he recognized the greater truth that the quality of the power depends upon the nature of the knowledge and the nature of the man who uses it. It is the tendency of knowledge to make good citizens, but the true function of education is to enable one to overcome all the insidious temptations to use knowledge for wicked purposes.

It is to the efforts of Mr. Sidney Merriam and Rev. Anson McLoud that we owe the town library. It is a grand monument to their memories, and an incalculable benefit to the town. Starting with a nucleus of 520 volumes gathered from the Old Athenaeum, Agricultural Library and the circulating library of 268 volumes, the property of the Ladies' Society, it has constantly enlarged its borders, till today Topsfield can boast of one of the largest and best selected libraries in Essex county. The collection of books formerly belonging to the ladies deserves a passing notice. They were all purchased by Mr. McLoud and paid for by the ladies, and comprised the best books of the day, there being none of lighter vein than the poems of Longfellow. This library was taken in a large clothes basket from house to house where the society chanced to meet regularly every two weeks, during the winter months. This is one of the many ways in which this pastor taught his people to read. Long familiarity with books made Mr. McLoud a valuable librarian, which position he filled with ability from the founding of the library until his death.

The love for the beautiful in nature, and a desire to be of service to his fellowmen led him to assist in adorning the public common with the most lasting and attractive of trees. The lofty and graceful elms, as they raise their branches heavenward, speak to the passer-by from out the silence to come up higher, to leave the paths of sin and come into the purer realms of spiritual life.

In politics this clear headed man was a staunch Republican, but he never unnecessarily or beyond the proper limit brought state affairs into the pulpit. But when the country was in peril, or weighty matters to be settled, like our Revolutionary fathers, whose true son he was, he did not hesitate to freely speak his mind. It is not strange when his services were available, that his party should honor themselves and the town by sending him in 1872 to the state legislature, where his vote always told though his voice was seldom heard.

The Sabbath school always received Mr. McLoud's heartiest support, and as far as records show, the largest membership was in 1863 and 1864 when the numbers reached the astonishing figures of 210. Teachers' meetings were conducted by him several times for short periods, but languished for want of patronage.

It is due to the men and women of the Topsfield Congregational church of this time, and their descendants, to say that they were a large hearted, generous, unselfish people. They did not recognize the claim of a minister to a munificent salary, but gave liberally in the form of private gifts and surprise parties. The 25th anniversary of Mr. McLoud's settlement was a "Red Letter" day; few happier occasions ever graced a pastor or people. Mr. Nehemiah Cleveland presided over the exercises at the church, and his speech, when presenting $1000 as a gift from a grateful and united parish, was characteristic of that illustrious family. The reply of the pastor was calm, unembarrassed and dignified, his subdued voice showing he appreciated the situation. The collation following in Union hall, the music by a detachment of Gilmore's famous band, and the after dinner speeches by ministers and friends from abroad, contributed to make Dec. 8, 1867. a memorable occasion.

In the spring of 1883 Mr. McLoud was appointed with Mr. Samuel Todd as a committee upon cemetery improvements, and with his characteristic zeal, went to work with his own hands to beautify it. It was here under a scorching July sun that he received the stroke that proved to be the beginning of the end of his earthly life. After a few months of languor and decline he passed, Feb. 21st, 1883, from the vision of his loving friends to the companionship of those who had preceded him.

One of the most difficult questions a young man is called upon to decide is his vocation. As he steps over the threshold that separates youth from manhood, the question "What shall be my place in life?" confronts him, and often the decision proves a disaster for him and all concerned in his welfare. Many a good artisan has been spoiled by trying to make an artist, but no one could ever think of the subject of this sketch as mistaking his calling; that he was designed for the pulpit was apparent, and no one ever questioned his ability to hold this sacred position.

As this sketch is brought to a close one naturally inquires the purpose of such an historical review. Why does this society peer into the by-gones and bring to view that which has been covered with a mantle of years? Is it from mere curiosity or an attempt to pass an idle hour agreeably; is it simply to put into tangible, permanent form, that which we wish our descendants to peruse, or is there a higher, nobler aim in taking these retrospects? Has the past of Topsfield any relation to its present and future? Have we as successors of a grand and honored ancestry any responsibility to our inheritance? If any permanent good is to result from these investigations, comparisons must be made, relations traced, deficiencies remedied, and reform and advance attempted. Human life is an organic whole; no one liveth to himself. We are here to act and react upon each other in manifold ways; to take up and carry on work planned by others, and so plan and execute that those who follow us will be benefited.

For nearly a half century Rev. Anson McLoud went in and out of the homes of Topsfield, ministering to spiritual necessities, directing educational interests, uniting in marriage sons and daughters, weeping at the bier of loved ones, and in a modest, dignified, Christian way, touching every side of life. To fully summarize his work would from this point of view be impossible, but to discover the secret of another power is the surest path to our own success. Each church, town, or hamlet, as truly as empires, has its period of rise, power and decline. What the age of Elizabeth was to England, the era of Pericles was to Greece, the early and middle years of this century were to Topsfield. The Congregational church was then at its zenith of power, which, coupled with Mr. McLoud's strict adherence to duty and devotion to his work, unflinching belief in what he preached, sincerity of soul and earnestness of purpose, a well balanced and properly trained mind and a consecrated heart, made this period of Topsfield's church history a conspicuous one, and this pastor a prominent figure in its life. He has passed on to a higher sphere of action, and from an exalted position we seem to hear his voice bidding us to be true to our trust; to make no compromises with evil; to stand firmly by the dear old church and all it represents, and sacredly guard the interests of our historic town.

TOPSFIELD AND ROWLEY VILLAGE MEN WHO TOOK THE OATH OF ALLEGIANCE AND FIDELITY.

BY SIDNEY PERLEY.

THE oath of allegiance and fidelity to the sovereign might be required, by the ancient common law, of all persons above the age of twelve, and it was repeatedly used as a test for the disaffected. It was first imposed by statute in the reign of Elizabeth. Its early form was exceedingly strong and comprehensive.

Charles II was in special favor of the established church, and the fact that only members of the Congregational church had the right of suffrage in New England greatly disturbed him. His Episcopalian friends here were ever ready to inform him of incidents that could be construed to indicate the liberty and independence of the colonies. He had real cause for anxiety when the people dwelling north of the Merrimac river refused to obey his mandates and the officers whom he had sent to enforce them. Foreseeing this result, on the decision of the court in England in the Mason claim, in 1677, he immediately had the oath of allegiance and fidelity taken, and repeated it the next year. This repetition indicates how unsettled and alarming the condition of the country was at that time. This indication of distrust in England is given additional force the next year (1679) by the creation of a royal province in the northern portion of the Mason domain, and seven years later by the elimination of the principal part of the right of self-government of the Massachusetts Bay and other New England colonies, and placing them within the king's control.

The following lists of the inhabitants of Topsfield and Rowley Village, who took the oath of allegiance and fidelity in 1677 and 1678, are found recorded in Ipswich Deeds, Volume IV, the first on page 167 and the second on page 225, those marked by an asterisk, being of Rowley Village:—

A list of those of Topsfield who according to an order of the Gen'l Court appeared before Ens. John Gould, in decemb: and January 1677 and have taken the oath of Alegance & fidelity.

Letters From a Gold Hunter.

CALIFORNIA JOURNALS AND CORRESPONDENCE OF DAVID LAKE OF TOPSFIELD,

EDITED BY GEO. FRIS. DOW.

In the spring of 1848, San Francisco on the Californian coast was a village of about seven hundred inhabitants, and boasted of two weekly newspapers, the "Californian" and the "California Star." On the 15th of March of that year the former printed a short paragraph saying that gold had been discovered at Sutter's mill on the American river. The news received but passing attention at the time but soon came accounts of the increasing production of gold and men began to leave for the mines in large numbers. By the middle of June the news had spread over the whole territory, and stores, workshops, wives and even fields of ripened grain were left to care for themselves.

The Pacific seaports were soon filled with the contagion of gold excitement, but it was not until the latter part of the year that the news reached the Atlantic sea board, and even then it was received with but little credence, but the arrival of large amounts of "dust" at Panama and New York in the latter part of the winter, put an end to all doubt and caused a rush of migration unparalleled in modern history. Rumor had it, and the newspapers of the day confirmed the story, that the valleys and ravines of the Pacific coast showed the presence of vast deposits of nuggets and particles of pure gold. Any man who could wield a pick and shovel and a tin pan for washing the dirt was sure of a fortune. The wildest excitement prevailed throughout the country and every city and town furnished its quota of feverish gold seekers. Men of all ages and occupations joined in the mad rush for sudden wealth.

The adventurers had several routes from which to choose. Those from New England and the Middle States generally went by sailing vessel via Cape Horn; those from the Southern States chose the Isthmus of Panama, or Mexico, while the Western pioneers braved the perils and hardships of the prairie trails and Rocky Mountain passes. The Essex county men in the early stages of the rush almost without exception went via the Cape in small sailing vessels from Newburyport or Boston. Schooners, brigs, sailing vessels of all ages and conditions were transformed by a coat of paint, and after fitting out for the long voyage sailed with full passenger lists, too often in the direction of misery, shipwreck and death.

The first to go from Topsfield were the brothers Constantine and Alfred McKenzie and Nathaniel Foster, the first two sailing from Boston Nov. 13, 1849 in the B. L. Allen, a schooner of only 150 tons, Capt.

Isaac Morgan, afterwards of this town, commander, while Foster sailed on the same day from Newburyport in the bark Anna, Capt. Savory. Singularly enough the two vessels reached Cape Horn on the same day, the passengers of the B. L. Allen making a landing on Horn Island. The Allen carried twenty passengers and a crew of nine men. The passage cost each man $125. Constantine McKenzie found a permanent home in California, at last meeting an untimely fate in Jan. 1896 in a lonely gulch in the mountains. No one knows the exact manner of his death, but his remains were found in the ruins of a burned log cabin and it was supposed that robbers had committed the fell crime. Alfred McKenzie is now living in Peabody and Nathaniel Foster lives in Linebrook Parish, Ipswich.

The early 50's saw a number of Topsfield men start for the Golden Gate. Ariel Gould, who afterwards carried on a large butchering business in town; Peter Creelman, a Scotchman who lived on what is now the Webster place; Emerson P. Gould, who afterwards enlisted in the army and died in a hospital at Baton Rouge, La.; Charles Foster, who lived just over the line in Boxford; John Brown Lake, who returned home after reaching Panama; Dean Perley, who now lives in Danvers and is engaged in the blacksmith business; Gorham Scribner, David Lake, the principal of this journal and David G. Lake his son, were among the number. David Lake, Jr., was the son of David and Sally Lake. He was born in Topsfield in 1807, and married first Lucy Putnam

Gould, second, Harriet Wilkins of Middleton. His children were David G., who went to California in 1854 and is now living in Peabody; Henry W., now living in Topsfield; George W., living in Nagasaki, Japan; Sarah H., married Wm. Garrett, lives at the old homestead; Edward, in business at Nagasaki, Japan.

His California journals and correspondence are here arranged in the form of a personal narrative though not confined to his exact phraseology.

NARRATIVE.

It was on Monday morning, February 2nd, 1852, that I left home bound for California. William H. Balch drove me to Salem, for the Newburyport railroad had not been built. We reached Salem at about 12 o'clock and after waiting about the station until after one o'clock I asked the depot master when the train would arrive. He said he didn't know, it should have arrived an hour before. As the train for New York left the Worcester depot in Boston at 3 o'clock, it looked rather discouraging for me, but Balch went to Leavitt's stable and had a fresh horse harnessed and we put for Boston. The travelling was bad but we reached the depot at five minutes before three, so I had just time to get my ticket and put my baggage aboard. At New Haven I found John Brown Lake who had left Topsfield the previous day, and in New York we found Myles and Charles Sweeney of Boston who were known in Topsfield and afterwards lived there.

We arrived in New York after midnight, and the next morning purchased our tickets for Chagres, the port on this side of the Isthmus of Panama, sailing at one o'clock on the steamer Crescent City, the decks crowded with men bound for California. Not a great deal happened of interest on the voyage. At first a good many were sea sick of course, but after reaching the Gulf stream the weather was fine and we enjoyed the voyage. The fare was good, generally beef and pork with bread and coffee for breakfast; for dinner beef, boiled beans and bread, and boiled rice, boiled in grease I should think. When supper time came around we had bread and butter and apple sauce with plenty of hot tea. We were divided off into messes of one hundred each. The third day out a man was killed by the crank of the engine. He died instantly. His neck was broken and his head badly crushed. They threw the body overboard without much ceremony. The last part of the voyage we got but two meals a day, but as it was hot, and not being able to exercise very much, it was all we needed. One day one of the waiters, a young fellow, was punished for insulting some of the passengers. He was taken to the hurricane deck and his hands were tied to the railing. Then the mate took the hose and gave him a soaking. The captain was present.

We reached the harbor of Chagres on Sunday morning. The steamer had to anchor about two miles from the shore and we were taken to the landing in small boats. As soon as we reached land a bargain was made with some native boatmen and about noon we started in a small boat up the Chagres river bound for Panama, making about twenty miles that afternoon. Early the next morning we were off again and at night had arrived within six miles of Gorgona. We slept in the boat as we had the previous night and in the morning with about 200 others, started on foot for Gorgona, with two Indian boys as guides. The current of the river was very rapid at this point and the boatmen could only take our baggage, so there was nothing to do but walk. Our sail up the river was very pleasant, the flowers were so bright and everything looked so green. We saw several small alligators sunning themselves on the trunks of trees as they lay in the water. On the tramp to Gorgona the guides lost their way twice and we were pretty tired on reaching the town.

After breakfasting, mules were hired to carry us to Panama, about twenty-five miles further on. We were nearly nine hours in going and the road was the worst thing called a road that I ever saw in my life. It was nothing but a narrow path. Sometimes the banks on each side were higher than my head and only wide enough for one mule to pass through. The first part of the road was composed of water, stones and mud—mostly mud. The mule would first pitch me on to his neck; then his hind feet sinking deeply into the mud would throw me back towards his tail and every now and then he would suddenly lie down and bring me up standing in mud half way up to my knees.

Finally reaching Panama we put up at the California House. The rate was \$1.50 per day. Our party consisted of Myles and Charles Sweeney, Peter Creelman, John Brown Lake and myself. While looking round for a passage up the coast we decided to board ourselves and so took part of our baggage and started for the woods, locating about  $2\frac{1}{2}$  miles from Panama, near a small brook. We built a shanty with the branches of trees, a very comfortable shelter. There were hundreds of just such cabins all around us.

Panama was a miserable looking place. The buildings were very old and a great many of them tumbling down. The drinking water was very poor. All the wells were dry and water had to be brought on mule back from some distance. In wandering around one day I came across the ruins of the old city of Panama which I found out was destroyed by Spanish pirates more than two hundred years ago. On some of the crumbling walls were trees that had grown to a diameter of five or six feet. There was an arched gateway some forty feet high, and ruins of stone fountains and baths.

Near our camp were a great many Indians. They were a shiftless lot. The women did the washing for the inhabitants of Panama. It was a great sight to see them on the banks of the brook washing clothes, having only a small piece of cloth tied around their hips. The men, or the greater number of them, were as lightly clad, while the children never wore anything. One day an Indian woman came up near our cabin without the least thing on and dove into the water in front of quite a crowd.

She swam under water a longer distance than I ever saw anybody before.

But we didn't expect on starting for California to spend our time waiting around Panama. The gold fever had brought an immense number of men from the States and the few steamers and sailing vessels on the Pacific coast couldn't begin to furnish a sufficient number of passages. Several sailing vessels were in the bay and the steamer Tennessee as well, but she was a mail steamer and would only take passengers having tickets sold via the mail line. The prospect was discouraging and after waiting about for nearly two weeks, John Brown Lake and Samuel Goodell, who was from Boxford and arrived shortly after we did, became faint hearted and announced that they were going home. I was sorry to part with them, but they couldn't be shaken from their purpose, so February 25th they started back across the Isthmus, carrying with them many messages to the loved ones at home.

The days dragged slowly by until finally, early in March, I secured a passage in the bark Emily, Capt. Hervy. The Sweeneys went on the Clarissa Andrews, sailing a few days after I did. There were about 200 of us on board and the food was at first sufficient and in a way satisfactory, but the supply of water soon became reduced. When we started each man's ration per day was  $1\frac{1}{2}$  pints of water, a pint of coffee, a pint of beef tea, plenty of pork, about half a pound of bread and half a pound of flour which we made into "duff", nothing more or less than flour mixed in water and boiled in a bag. But before long supplies began to run short and the latter part of May the daily ration was a quart of water, five table-spoonfuls of flour, three ounces of bread, a pint of rice and three table-spoonfuls of sugar. Not a very large amount of eatables for a hungry man. To be sure salt beef could be had, but with so little water we found we had better stop eating it as a hollow stomach was preferable to a burning thirst.

On the 28th of May we reached Massanilla on the Mexican coast and put in for provisions. The natives came off to our vessel in boats made of the butt of a tree. The town wasn't much of a place; only about thirty native huts. After staying here two days we sailed for San Blas, 180 miles farther up the coast, arriving there on the afternoon of June 9th. Fourteen vessels lay at anchor in the bay and the view along the shore line was magnificent. About the town was a collection of native huts, simple affairs roofed with grass and palm branches, but the natives of the better classes, Spaniards and Mexicans, lived and dressed much as we do, save that all had a fancy for bright colors. The men went about with a richly hued blanket hanging over one shoulder. Sometimes for a change a hole would be cut in the centre and the blanket would hang down before and behind. All wore broad brimmed hats.

At San Blas some ninety of our passengers left, each receiving $15 passage money from the captain, and went on board a bark lying in the bay bound for California. Those of us who were left didn't feel sorry over their departure for it gave us more and better accommodations. We little thought as we saw them sail out to sea that more than a month would elapse before we got away from that half dead and alive Mexican settlement.

When we reached San Blas the supply of provisions on the Emily was nearly exhausted, and we had not been there very long when it came out that Capt. Hervey hadn't money to buy enough more to take us to California. After making some arrangements on shore whereby we were supplied with fresh cow beef and coarse bread every day, he started for Tepic, a town about 40 miles inland, where the United States consul lived, to try and raise money on the vessel. The cargo of the Emily consisted of about 500 tons of coal and that was really the only thing that saved us. Coal was in demand on the coast and brought a good price at Acapulco, where the steamers made a landing. The captain didn't want to give up his vessel into the consul's hands for the benefit of the passengers and so made several propositions to committees we sent to see him. There were two or three other vessels near by and one of them wanted to take us up the coast, so Capt. Hervey drew up a subscription paper and passed it around. All he could raise was $1020, not enough with what he already had to charter the vessel, so that fine plan went up in smoke. Finally after wearisome delays the consul took possession of the Emily and advanced us $37 apiece indemnity, the value of the coal. A committee was then appointed to charter a vessel and after more delays they reported that the captain of the brig Archibald Gracia would take us for $40 a head. That meant $500 more than the coal would bring, and we attempted to raise it, but $400 was all we had. After more negotiations somebody paid the $100. I think it must have been Capt. Hervey.

Capt. Peters of the Archibald Gracia hired three or four native huts and July 18th we left the Emily for good. Instead of receiving daily rations we were given a loaf of bread and twenty cents each to purchase provisions. I went to the baker's every night and bought good warm bread or cakes. There were two bake-houses but they would only bake at just such times. They were an awfully lazy set. Might have sold three times as much bread as they did if they would only bake it. For that matter I couldn't see what supported the natives, anyway, for they never seemed to do any work.

There were three butchers in San Blas and the sign they hung out was a red flag. I was interested in the way in which they cut up their beef. They would hang up a quarter and beginning on the leg cut down the whole length in narrow strips. What little meat was left on the bone was dried and called jerked beef. Beef was worth 12 cents a pound and pork the same. About a pint of the smallest potatoes I ever saw brought  $6\frac{1}{4}$  cents. Flour was worth \$12.00 per hundred pounds, and coffee was sold done up in small papers, about three teaspoonfuls for  $6\frac{1}{4}$  cents. The women appeared to do about all the business, tending store, buying provisions, etc.

Sunday was the same as any other day in the week. The shops all kept open. There was a Catholic church about two miles away from the town, but I couldn't find out that they ever had any service.

There was a tavern in the place kept by an Englishman, who had married a Mexican woman. She was enormously stout, and must have weighed 300 pounds. Near the tavern were a few very large shade trees and on a branch of one of them I carved my full name and the town I came from.

Not far off were the ruins of an old castle and near by was a new one only half completed. It was situated on a very high hill from which there was a splendid view of the bay and the river winding its way back into the country. Pious Catholics had erected a shrine at the foot of the hill, with an altar and crucifix, ornamented with candles and flowers.

Fourth of July we had spent on board the Emily. All the celebration I saw was a sunrise and sunset gun on board the American bark with colors flying all day. My thoughts went back to the old home in Topsfield, and I wondered if my boys had got their fire crackers and were enjoying themselves. We were in particularly hard lines about that time. Nothing was cooked for us save tea night and morning, but as there was plenty of rice aboard we boiled that and got along as best we could with only two cooking stoves among 150 men. The man who got his rice on the stove first was the best fellow.

Early on the morning of the 27th of July we went on board the Archibald Gracia and just after sunrise sailed out into the bay. Nearly 200 passengers were on board; 152 coming on the Emily, 16 more from Mazatlan on the Archibald and about 20 from a vessel that had been condemned at Massanilla. The captain had his wife with him. She was a Mexican and it was reported, very wealthy. There were several other Mexican passengers, one having his fifteen year old wife with him.

The brig carried two bulls and seventy-five pigs to help out on the provisions. At first we fared very well with soup made of jerked beef; boiled beans and potatoes;  $\frac{1}{2}$  lb. of bread, with coffee, tea and  $1\frac{1}{2}$  pints of water per day. The second Sunday out one of the bulls was killed and we had bull-beef soup for dinner. The weather was pleasant and we made Cape St. Lucas on the southern California coast on Aug. 14th. On the thirteenth day out we were given only a pint of water and a little beef soup. There was a good deal of sickness on board, over sixty being on the doctor's list ill with dysentery or fever and ague. A great many suffered from lack of water, and for three days in succession I gave my allowance to some sick men. My health was excellent considering the surroundings, for which I was very thankful, for the sick suffered greatly from lack of water and proper nourishment. They had the same allowance of food as we well men, but no medicine, for the small supply on board was soon exhausted. The water allowance was cut down again on the 18th, and my dinner that day consisted of ten little pig potatoes and a piece of jerked beef about as large as two fingers. The next night a young man from New Jersey named William Little, who had shared my berth and was one of our mess, died of dysentery. The body was tossed over the side after a short burial service. It was a most revolting sight to see the sick passengers crawling about the decks, pale and yellow as death, mere walking skeletons. Some had very sore mouths, and could eat our coarse fare only with difficulty. A few days later the water ration was cut down again, this time to only a pint daily, with no tea or coffee. Our dinner that day was ten small pig potatoes, and a small raw onion. They told us that our supper would be what we could get, and that was all we did get—absolutely nothing, and so the days dragged slowly by. Capt. Peters had expressed great surprise at our treatment on the Emily, when the Archibald Gracia was chartered, but he had now proved himself a two faced villain. The water and provisions taken aboard on our account were of poor quality and insufficient for even thirty days. We didn't reach San Francisco until Sept. 11th, spending forty-seven days in his starving pen. Toward the latter part of the voyage drinking water became almost priceless; a junk bottle full was worth a dollar. Many a dollar have I seen spent for water, dollars that were needed badly enough when California was finally reached. I remember one day I was fortunate enough to get a bone a sailor was about throwing overboard. It was salt pork freshened somewhat, and had a little meat clinging to it. After eating all I dared, I gave it to a young man near me. How he thanked me—I remember it even now. Nothing but the bone remained when he had finished. At last land was sighted, a most welcome sight and with it came an extra pint of water for each, but a small amount when a man was as dry and faint as we were. The weather fortunately had been cool or our sufferings would have been intense.

On the afternoon of the 11th of September we sailed through the capes into the Bay of San Francisco and the next morning landed, grateful that our lives had been spared. Health officers came aboard and took off thirteen men who were unable to help themselves and carried them off to some hospital. I never learned how many recovered, most of them, no doubt. We were all barely able to move about, mere skeletons. I could easily clasp one hand around my ankle. For the last fourteen days of the voyage we had had no bread and but a pint of water a day, nothing but pig potatoes and a little pork to keep soul and body together.

I kept a list of those who died and were thrown overboard on the two vessels, the Emily and the Archibald Gracia. The list is of interest and may be historically valuable. One case in particular struck me as singular. Leonard Batchelder and Albert Kathern, both from the same town in Vermont, were great friends, always together, sleeping in the same berth. Strong fellows born and bred in the country, the hardships of the voyage were too much for them. They died on the same day, the 21st of August. The bodies lay side by side on the deck, the burial service was read, and all that was mortal sank into the waves far away from home and among strangers.

List of those who died on board the brig Emily between Panama and San Blas, and on the brig Archibald Gracia between San Blas and San Francisco in the year 1852.

The day we landed I found near the wharf Capt. Wm. Morgan who afterwards lived in Topsfield and married Miss Ellen Kimball, daughter of William E. Kimball. He told me where I could find my wife's cousin, Wm. Wallace Wilkins, who was from Middleton. He was living about twenty miles south from San Francisco, carrying on a farm called Bolemus Ranch. There was no way of getting there except by water, so I thought myself fortunate in finding a boat going down the coast that very day. William was glad to see me, and as it was said to be unhealthy in the mining camps at that season of the year he told me to stay with him and work what little I could on the ranch, and so I did, for nearly three months, slowly gaining in flesh and strength.

Game was plentiful and our farm products brought big prices in the San Francisco markets. Eggs were worth $1.50 a dozen and butter the same price per pound. Potatoes brought four cents a pound, beans eight cents, and milk easily sold at thirty-seven cents a quart.

But gold dust was what I was after, and as my strength came back I grew anxious to try my luck in the camps, so early in December I said good-bye to Bolemus Ranch and started for Sacramento city. When I arrived, there was but little of the city left, for a fire had swept away everything but a few scattering buildings a few days before. A large number of temporary buildings were going up and everything was in confusion. It was the dirtiest and muddiest place I had ever seen. The river was high and a levee along the bank was the only thing that prevented an inundation.

From Sacramento City I started on foot for Mormon Island, a mining camp on the south fork of the American river. The settlement comprised some twenty-five fair sized frame buildings, and hundreds of miner's huts built of a few pieces of joist or straight limbs of trees stuck into the ground and then covered with canvas. It was a curious mixture of nationalities gathered in that mining camp. Men from all over the United States, with a good many foreigners. Chinese were there and passed up and down daily from the settlements up the river, while a few digger Indians hung around the taverns. They were an ugly looking lot. I was told they burnt their dead as an emblem of mourning, afterwards using the ashes mixed with the sap of the pine tree as a paint to daub on their faces. I saw several Indian women so decorated.

It was the rainy season and mining at that time of year meant exposure with much hardship. Fortunately a good berth turned up at a tavern kept by a man named Jarvis where I earned my board and forty dollars a month until the following spring. One Sunday afternoon the latter part of April, I took a walk down the river to a place called Brown's ravine, and happened to find a man there washing for gold. We talked mining and I soon struck up a bargain for a cradle and a right to work in his claim. The next day came my first actual experience in gold mining. It was slow work washing out the dust. The first two weeks I earned a little over $32, it costing me about fifty cents a day for provisions, but I soon grew more skillful and by July the weekly average was about $30. Some weeks it would be nearly $50, and one day early in August I washed out dust that brought $12.75. I continued successful, having better luck than any of the men around me. Skill I called it, for I had bought a claim that was considered of little value and yet was washing out more gold a day than any of the other miners at the Island. My claim was on top of a hill back of our cabin. Water came from a spring near the top and was diverted to flow over a ledge into sluice boxes where the gravel was washed and the particles of gold separated. It was monotonous work, the day's labor beginning at sunrise and lasting until darkness came down upon us.

Life at the Island offered usually but little excitement. I saw but little of the gambling and rioting said to be associated with mining life. Once in a while an accident would happen, timbers giving away in some shaft, with broken limbs as a result, and sometimes a poor miner buried alive. Theft of course was not unknown, but when caught the miners were not particularly careful how they handled the thief. One day two fellows who stole $200, from a sick man were lashed with knotted ropes until their backs were raw and streaming with blood, then taken before a justice who sent them to Sacramento jail. One of the rogues died from the effects of the whipping. Another time a negro stole eleven dollars from a miner's cabin. In some way it was discovered that he committed the theft and after a barrel head hearing of the evidence, a rope was brought and in no time the poor devil was swinging from the limb of a tree near at hand. Murderers were treated to the same medicine. A Spaniard stabbed a man in the side one afternoon as the result of a quarrel. The miner lived only a few hours, dying at about five o'clock. Twenty minutes later the Spaniard was hanging lifeless from the limb of a tree. Lynch law, you will say. True, but in some respects better than the long drawn out trial in Massachusetts, where the lawyer pleads insanity and after hunting up evidence in proof, the murderer is finally sent to an insane asylum, in time to become cured and turned loose again on society.

New men from the States frequently reached the Island, many of them expecting to find fortunes waiting for them and when realizing the difficulties in the way wishing themselves safely home again.

David Lake abandoned mining in 1855, and returned home early in the Fall, via the Isthmus. Of the return trip I can learn nothing, there being no written account, but the motives for the homeward journey are shown to have been unsettled business matters at home, and ill health, brought about by a fractured hip resulting from an accidental fall while mining. Mr. Lake lived on his farm in Toppsfield until the Spring of 1859, when the old liking for the yellow dust caused him to start out again bound for California. April 15th found him on the steamer St. Louis, off the harbor of Aspinwall. A hurriedly penciled note, the last message his family ever received, told them he was about landing, and spoke of a slight illness that had overtaken him the previous day. This caused no alarm at the time, but as the weeks and months rolled by and the mails brought no news from across the continent, the conviction slowly grew upon them that a second letter would never be received, that sickness and death had crossed his path. The captain of the Pacific steamer when questioned in San Francisco by a friend of the family, told of Mr. Lake's death on the first day out from Panama. He had crossed the Isthmus only to find a sailor's grave in the blue waters of the Pacific.

The Howlett Mills.

WITH SOME ACCOUNT OF THE HOBBS FAMILY IN TOPSFIELD.

BY MARIETTA CLARKE.

The date of the erection of Howlett's gristmill may be placed, as nearly as can be ascertained from the records, between the years of 1738 and 1740. The sawmill was built some two or three years later. There is a tradition that a gristmill was located there much earlier than the above named date. The old mill is said to have been some distance back of the present one, at a bend in the brook directly opposite the site of William Howlett's house. I am also told that the conformation of the channel seems to indicate that there might have been at some time a dam farther back than the present one.

This is only hearsay and conjecture, but I have positive proof from old deeds that there were mills here of some kind, previous to the date above given. I quote the following from a deed given by William Howlett to his son Thomas Howlett dated July 30, 1709: "To my son Thomas Howlett, all that my farm, messuage or tenement on which I myself and my said son dwells. All which said tracts of land, whether pasturage, tillage, woodland or meadow ground on these bounds contained, together with all the buildings or dwelling houses, barns, outhouses, wells, springs, watercourses, fences, mills, trees, etc." Also from another deed given by William Howlett to his nephew John Howlett, dated May 21, 1715: "Convey all the said tracts of land with all the buildings, dwelling houses, barns, outhouses, fences, mills, trees, etc." There is no mention of "mills" in Ensign Howlett's will dated 1677. They were therefore probably erected at some time between that date and 1709 by William Howlett.

Tradition further claims that these mills fell into disuse on account of trouble about flowing the meadows in the vicinity. This would seem to be confirmed by the following deposition given in one of Benjamin Hobbs' numerous lawsuits which also fixes, as nearly as can be ascertained, the date of erection of the present mill. Deposition: Dec. 20, 1803. "I, Mary Potter of Ipswich, in the county of Essex, widow, of lawful age, do testify that when I was about eighteen years of age, I was at a place called Howlett's in the town of Topsfield, in said county, where Mr. Hobbs' mill now stands, which was about sixty-five years ago, at which time there was no mill where Hobbs' mill now stands according to the best of my recollection." She also states that her brother, Elisha Cummings, then 85 years of age, was about twenty-five when the sawmill was built, and that the cornmill was erected some two or three years previous, both first owned by Thomas Howlett.

I have in my possession the first deed of these mills, given by Thomas Howlett to Nathaniel Hood, July 22, 1746. As it seems to me both an interesting and valuable historical document, I quote from it at length. "I, Thomas Howlett, of Topsfield, in Consideration of Eight hundred pounds to me paid by Nathaniel Hood, Housewright, Have given, etc., a Certain Tract of Land with a Corn Mill and Saw Mill Standing upon it and Containing by Estimation Six acres be it more or be it less, and bounded as followeth, Beginning at the South westerly Corner of the Bridge which is below the Mills Called Howlett's Bridge, thence westerly to a Stake and Stones on the Southerly side of both roads and about one pole and a half Southwesterly from the Little bridge near Tho. Howlett's house, thence Northwesterly about Ten poles to a Stake Standing about one pole from the middle of the road Leading from Capt. Perkinses to Ipswich, from thence to Capt. Tobijah Perkins his land, having one pole from the middle of ye road on the Southerly Side all along to ye fence in said perkins Line, thence northeasterly with sd perkins Land till it Comes to the Brook then Crossing the Brook by sd Perkinses Line till it Comes to mr. Burleys Land, then Southerly by sd Burleys Land to the northerly End of the Mill Dam, thence southerly about five or six Pole to an Eln Tree Standing on the northeasterly Side of the Brook, from thence to the Bounds first mentioned. To Have and to hold, etc.—

Thomas Howlett

Lydia Howlett

I have good reason to believe that the land here deeded to Nathaniel Hood is the same six acres which, in 1651, was granted by the town to Ensign Thomas Howlett "wheare the said Ensigne have built his house." But in this deed there is no mention of any dwelling house, and Thomas Howlett is living on what was afterwards the Robinson place. I therefore conclude that he took advantage of the clause in his father's will which stated that "my son Thomas shall have liberty to pull down and carry away the newest end of my now dwelling house," and allowed the old part to go to decay.

I have tried to conjecture how it happened that this old deed should be in our possession and have thought it probable that Nathaniel Hood lived with Andrew Burley on what is now our farm while his own house was building. For Nathaniel Hood did build a house, as we ascertain from a deed afterwards given to Abraham Hobbs and dated 1749. Nathaniel Hood, who was a grandson of Richard, the first Hood who came into these parts, and an uncle, twice removed, of our esteemed townsman S. D. Hood, Esq., therefore lived here and owned the mill three years. By this second deed the owner reserves to himself "one half of the Saw Mill with Half the Saw Mill Tools & also Convenient yard room for the use of His part in sd Saw mill, it is also to be understood that the said Hood & his Heirs is to maintain a quarter part of the Dam now in being belonging to the said Mills, it is further to be understood ye sd Hood for Himself and Heirs doth Reserve Half the Stream leading to the Saw Mill, also the Dwelling House & Orchard Standing thereon." This dwelling house referred to must be the present

Perkins house. I am told that the frame of this house plainly shows that it was built at three different times. The east part is the oldest, therefore we conclude that this part was erected by Nathaniel Hood and must be about 150 years old.

The deed above referred to, dated March 25, 1749, gives us the date of Abraham Hobbs' first appearance in this part of the town. Henceforth the history of the Hobbs' is the history of the neighborhood. I have therefore endeavored to find out as much as possible about the family.

Jonathan Hobbs is said to be the first Hobbs who came to Ipswich. From him it is supposed that the Abraham was descended who married Susanna Abbott and lived in Hamilton. His son baptized Apr. 24, 1720 is the Abraham who married Sarah Brown of Ipswich, May 15, 1738 and afterwards came to Topsfield. Tradition claims that he had twelve children who were named after the twelve tribes of Israel. This, however, is not quite correct. We find recorded the births of ten children, all having good old Bible names. They were Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, Joseph, Benjamin, David and Jonathan, Sarah, Elizabeth and Susanna. Of Isaac, Jacob and Joseph we know little except like other people they were born, married and died. The names of the other sons are found in many deeds and records.

The next deed of the mill, in order of time, is given by Abraham Hobbs to Arthur Browne, Feb. 25, 1752. Lydia Howlett, left a widow by the death of her husband Thomas in 1746, married Arthur Browne in 1751. The deed is as follows: "In consideration of the sum of four hundred seventy and five pounds to me in hand well and truly paid by Arthur Browne Clothier, I have given etc., one half of a certain Corn Mill and one quarter of a certain Saw mill being the same mills which Mr. Thomas Howlett dec'd once sold unto Mr. Nathaniel Hood: together with half of the Corn Mill and a quarter part of the saw mill Tools, also a proportionable part of the Dam and Stream belonging to said Mills."

May 5, 1758, we find the following paragraph in the will of Arthur Browne: "I, Arthur Browne, miller, being about to go into His Majesty's Service, give unto my well beloved wife Lydia Browne all my estate both real and personal to be at her own disposal forever."

Extract from inventory of his estate. "To half a corn mill and a quarter of a saw mill. A negro girl."

When Nathaniel Hood and Mrs. Lydia Browne made over their rights in the mill to Abraham Hobbs I have not been able to ascertain, but they probably simply gave quit claim deeds which were not recorded.

In 1767 Abraham Hobbs purchases of the heirs of Thomas Cummings the farm afterwards known as the Robinson farm. The first recorded deed of this place is given by the heirs of Thomas Howlett to Thomas Cummings May 6, 1763. "In consideration of the sum of two hundred sixty seven pounds six shillings convey etc: a certain tract or parcel of upland and meadow containing about thirty nine acres be the same more or less with ye Buildings thereon situated in Topsfield afores'd bounded beginning at a Stake with Stones about at ye Northerly Corner, said Stake standing one Rod from the Highway thence southwesterly by Land of sd Thomas Howlett and Ammie Howlett about Sixty Pole to a Stake thence southeasterly by Land of Lieut. Luke Averill and sd Thomas Cummings and by land of John Lamson & William and Stephen Brown thence by land of Pelatiah Cummings Easterly to the River thence Northerly and Northwesterly by ye River and by Land of Abraham Hobbs to the Bounds first, mentioned."

The second deed of this place given by the heirs of Thomas Cummings to Abraham Hobbs Apr. 21, 1767, gives the bounds of another piece of land making the whole amount conveyed at this time about fifty four acres.

It is probable that the senior Abraham now took up his abode on the new farm, as his eldest son Abraham was already married. His wife was Elizabeth Cummings and his children Elizabeth, Lydia, Salome, Abraham, Lydia, Hannah, Dolle, Polly, and Susanna. Isaac, the second son, was also married to Susanna Smith, May 13, 1766, and his children were Sarah, Elijah, Priscilla, Isaac, Priscilla, Elizabeth. Munson, Samuel, Susanna and Humphrey. They could hardly have all lived in the Perkins house even if the west part had been added, as it perhaps was at about this time.

We find Abraham Hobbs now owning the mill and two farms with doubtless many outlying pieces of land. He was also held in some esteem in town, as he was selectman in 1771 and '72, and representative to the State legislature in 1779, 1783-85.

In 1782 he begins to deed his property to his sons. The first deed is a deed of the Perkins place and the mills to his son Benjamin. "In consideration of three hundred and thirty eight pounds silver money to me in hand well and truly paid me by Benjamin Hobbs of Topsfield—cordwainer—do convey unto the said Benj. Hobbs all the dwelling-house & one half of all the land and one half of all the buildings on the land hereafter mentioned to be divided equally according to quantity and quality."

Apr. 29, 1785 a companion deed is given to Abraham Hobbs, jun. and Philip Mackenzie: "Convey unto the said Abraham Hobbs & Philip Mackenzie the other half of all the lands, tenements & buildings thereon of what I sold to my son Benjamin Hobbs."

May 4, 1785 a deed was given by Abraham Hobbs to Abraham Hobbs jun. of one half of the farm he had bought of Thomas Cummings.

By a deed of the same date the other half of this farm was conveyed to another son, Jonathan Hobbs.

About this time the sixth son, David Hobbs, comes into full possession of the Averill place. I have been unable to find any deed given to him, and am obliged to base my dates upon tradition. Mr. Austin Averill tells me that his grandmother, the wife of Solomon Averill, was a granddaughter of Joseph Cummings. When she was eighteen years of age she came to live with her grandfather on the hill. She remained there two or three years and while there came to the raising of the present Averill barn, by David Hobbs. She died in 1851, being 85 years of age. It is rather a roundabout way to get at it, but it fixes the date of the raising of the barn at about 1785 or '86. Probably the house was built first, and therefore these buildings would be something like 110 years old. We presume also that David Hobbs dug the well by the roadside. There is still an old fashioned well sweep here. Modern pipes are convenient but they do not improve the taste of the water. If you wish to prove this, on some hot day in summer when you are weary and thirsty, stop and get a drink of the finest water to be found anywhere in this vicinity.

March 26, 1792 Benjamin Hobbs becomes sole owner of the Perkins place and the mills, receiving at that time a deed from his brother Abraham, of his share in this property, having received five years before a similar deed from Philip Mackenzie. Two years previous, Apr. 20, 1790, Jonathan Hobbs gives a deed of his half of the Robinson place to his brother Abraham, who already owned the other half.

We now have distinctly a Hobbs neighborhood, owned by the three brothers, Abraham, Benjamin and David. Mr. Samuel Mackenzie used to tell me there were so many Hobbs' here that the place was called the City of the Hobbs'. As they passed away their name was dropped, but the term "City" still remains.

Mr. David Hobbs married Rhoda Cummings Apr. 20, 1774. His children were David, Lucy, Nabby, Rhoda and George. His eldest son David married Sally Perkins 1799, and his children were David, Moses and David Cummings Hobbs. A few months previous to his marriage, Dec. 18, 1798, he purchased the present Bell place of Charles Davis. I have endeavored to trace the ownership of this place as far back as possible, and find that it was in the possession of Nathaniel Low in 1748. The first deed I found was given by Nathaniel Low to Samuel Low and John Bradstreet, June 9, 1753.

Apr. 9, 1726 a deed is given by John Bradstreet to Samuel Low "of the one half of a certain Parcel of Land lying in Topsfield which they formerly bought together of Nathaniel Low of Topsfield."

Samuel Low gives a deed of this homestead to Charles Davis Feb. 26, 1787.

Of the three Hobbs brothers previously referred to, I think I have heard the most about Benjamin. I am told that he used to sit in the door of the mill and compose poetry, an example which I recommend to the present miller. The only scrap of his verse which I have been able to obtain runs as follows:

"Now from the high and lofty hill
I see the meadows dressed in green,
The winding river gently flows
The everlasting hills between."

Nothing very remarkable, to be sure, but it shows that Benjamin had a poetical soul; he also, according to report, was considerably belligerent, and his law suits were numerous. He quarrelled with Jacob Peabody about the mill-dam, and with my grandfather about the boundary line between their farms. It is related that they disputed about the possession of the willows by the brookside. My grandfather claimed them and cut them down, whereupon the redoubtable Benjamin hauled them away under cover of the darkness. This gave rise to more poetry attributed to a great aunt of mine, Ann Clarke. It is not at all in the style of Anne Bradstreet, but nevertheless may not be without interest to the unregenerate mind :—

"There was a miller I knew once,
And he took double toll,
I'd not be in that miller's place
For all his weight in gold.

A poor man cut some willows down
To make himself a fire,
The miller hauled the trees away,
Which made the poor man swear."

Benjamin Hobbs was thrice married, first to Mary Friend of Wenham, published Nov. 2, 1771; second, to Mrs. Mehitable Searle of Rowley, published May 20, 1804 and third, to Mrs. Mary Jane Fuller of Salem, Feb. 25, 1812. He had only one son, Daniel, born Apr. 25, 1779. It is said that Mr. Hobbs was very proud of this son's strength, and would put the heaviest grists upon his back in order to show to those who came to the mill how he could lift and what feats he could perform. This in time caused a terrible deformity and in his later years he was unable to walk. The old people say that he went upon all fours and hopped like a toad. He came in once to make a call upon my grandmother, who felt herself in rather an embarrassing position, as she was in the habit of asking her callers to sit down, but did not know as this one could sit down.

Daniel Hobbs married Hannah Friend Apr. 20, 1802. In a deed dated May 26, 1804, his father Benjamin Hobbs conveys to him "in consideration of two thousand dollars one half of all my real estate with the westerly part of the dwelling house and also the whole of the land that the store stands upon with all the privileges thereto belonging."

The building here designated as the store was built by Benjamin Hobbs for his son, as on account of his deformity he was unable to do the harder work of the farm and mill. It is said that he used to spring up on the counter like a rat. It has been made into a house within my recollection and was occupied by Miss Mary Jane Perkins until her death.

Abraham Hobbs gives to Abraham Hobbs, jun., a deed of half the Cummings farm, dated Jan. 14, 1809. About this time the old house, probably the first house upon the place, caught fire from an overturned lamp and was utterly consumed. The present house was soon erected, probably during the same year, making the old Robinson house, as we call it, about 88 years old.

In 1810 I find the first record of the connection of Benjamin Hobbs and John Mackenzie. This is a deed from the former to the latter of "one undivided moiety of all the lands and real estate and personal property belonging to said Benjamin."

In the same year also "I, Benjamin Hobbs, miller, have constituted, etc., John Mackenzie of Lynn, wheelwright, to be my lawful attorney for me to receive of and from all and every person, etc., such money, debts, etc., as shall be payable or coming unto me the constituent by any means whatsoever, and I here assign, etc., to said John, all my personal Estate, all outstanding debts and demands and empower him to collect, receive and demand the same for his own use, giving him my full power and authority in the premises."

Still another deed is passed between the same parties, bearing date Feb. 7, 1812. "I Benjamin Hobbs, yeoman, in consideration of two thousand dollars paid by John Mackenzie of said Topsfield, wheelwright, give, grant and convey all my real and personal estate, to wit, one undivided moiety of all my homestead in said Topsfield with the buildings and mills thereon, etc."

Thus closely were the affairs of the Mackenzies and Hobbs intermixed. What trouble afterwards arose between them I do not know. In the course of my investigations I have found two instances where their interests conflicted.

I have already stated that Abraham Hobbs jun. received a deed from his father of half the Cummings farm in 1809. It seems this Abraham inherited the bellicose tendencies of his family. At or about this time John Mackenzie was tending the mill and associated with him was his brother William. He being of small stature, the stalwart Abraham thought him an easy prey and visited the mill one day in John's absence for the purpose of picking a quarrel with him. William defended himself as best he could and drew his antagonist farther and farther out upon the bridge over the flume. There he managed to push or pull him over and soon both were struggling in the water. Here William had the advantage, as he could swim while Abraham could not, and soon reached the land. By this time John Mackenzie had appeared on the scene. William vowed that Hobbs might drown for all the help he would give him, but John sprang into the water, held up the drowning man's head and assisted him to land. Safely on land Abraham at once bestowed his blows upon the new comer. Here he had found his match in size and strength, but John, unwilling to fight, retreated up the hill, simply keeping his antagonist at bay. At length his Highland blood was roused, and by a well directed blow he felled Abraham to the earth, breaking two of his ribs. Then the numerous Hobbs family, who had been watching the battle from afar, came and bore away the helpless form of their fallen chieftain. Abraham Hobbs afterwards brought suit against the man who had saved his life, but for once law and justice were on the same side and John Mackenzie won the case, but agreed to remit the fine if Hobbs would leave the place. This he did, removing to Nottingham, N. H. After a while he returned and when he appeared again among his old neighbors they slyly whispered "Nottingham." This was exceedingly unpleasant to him but the name clung and thereafter he was always known as "Nottingham" Hobbs. I had heard Mr. Alfred Mackenzie speak of him by this name and supposing it to be his christian name, looked through the records for "Nottingham" Hobbs in vain. When next I saw Mr. Mackenzie I stated my difficulty and he related to me the preceding story. I find that John Mackenzie afterwards had some trouble with Daniel Hobbs and recovered judgment against him for $222 20, dated Aug. 1, 1812.

In March, 1813, Daniel Hobbs, Benjamin Hobbs and John Mackenzie give deeds of the mills and the adjacent farm to Moses Newman and Elisha Perkins.

Daniel Hobbs died May 28, 1814. Sept. 30, 1825, the senior Abraham Hobbs died in Topsfield poorhouse, aged about 85.

The following year his son, Abraham "Nottingham" Hobbs, gives a deed of the Robinson place,—the old Cummings farm—to David Hobbs, jun. and John Rea, jun., dated March 21, 1826.

Abraham Hobbs, David Hobbs, jun., and John Rea, jun. give a deed of the same farm to Moses Wildes, dated May 10, 1826.

Moses Wildes sells it to Joseph Adams March 10, 1829. and Joseph Adams to Benj. Robinson Apr. 15, 1842.

The Robinson family staid on the farm till 1874, since which time it has had four different owners.

The last Hobbs who lived upon this place, though I believe he had no ownership therein, was George Hobbs, a son of the first David. He it was who worked in the shop near the old schoolhouse and whose portrait was drawn upon the door by Mrs. Samuel Mackenzie, (see History of Mackenzie Family.) He was a blacksmith by trade and was always called by the old people "Master George." His work was rude and bungling, yet strong and enduring. Often have I been told when viewing some household utensil with childish curiosity, "Oh, Master George made that." We have a mortar which at one time had an idea of splitting in two. The services of "Master George" were thereupon called in, and an iron hoop was placed around it big enough and strong enough to belt in a man-of-war, fastened also with a cunning device which would have been impossible to a person of ordinary mind. I think that mortar will outlast the centuries.

The father of "Master George," Mr. David, died at the present Averill place, Feb. 25, 1830. During his last years he was blind, a state of things, I am told, largely caused by undue indulgence in New England rum. His physician warned him that if he persisted in his course he would lose the use of his eyes. "Then farewell eyes" promptly responded the patient. And so he lived and died happy in the possession of that which in his view gave value to life.

The estate was sold by his second wife and widow Rebecca Card to Cyrus Averill, March 30, 1826. She then went to live with her stepson, David Hobbs, at the present Bell place, where she died Oct. 1, 1851 at the great age of 96 years.

This place was the last place owned by the Hobbs in our vicinity. There have been two houses on this farm, probably built by the two brothers Nathaniel and Samuel Low, when they owned the estate together, that is, it seems so from the deeds. The cellar of one of these houses may still be seen, while the remaining house has the appearance of being very old. Like the Perkins' house it has had additions at different times, one part being made of one kind of wood, another part of a different kind and so on. Nathaniel Low owned here in 1747; very likely the beginning was made at that time, perhaps before.

I am told that interesting relics of the Hobbs family are still to be found here, various ancient articles, with tools and implements large enough for the use of giants.

And they do say that this last Hobbs house is haunted. It is a fact that a family left the house on account of the unexplainable noises heard therein. Doors opened noiselessly, mysterious footsteps were heard crossing some of the rooms. At times a fearful clangor broke out in the old blacksmith shop and all the spinning wheels were set a-whirring. To be sure, the present owner making light of these things, skeptically states that the doors in old houses will rattle and get out of order and even speaks of rats in connection with the mysterious noises. But we all know there are some people who never believe anything. I confess to a love for the marvellous. "There are more things in heaven and earth, Horatio, than are dreamt of in your philosophy."

The mill and the accompanying estate passed entirely into the hands of the Perkins family in 1826. Jacob Perkins had previously bought his brother Elisha's part. This deed is dated March 15, 1823.

"Homestead, dwelling house, barn, grist mill, carding mill and other buildings therein, including all the carding and other machinery in and pertaining to said mills."

The homestead still remains in the family. The mill was retained by them till 1878, when it passed into the hands of its present owner, Mr. Wellington Donaldson.

"The Treason of Lieut. John Gould."

BY REV. FRANCIS A. POOLE.

The accession of James II to the throne of England boded no good to the colonists of Massachusetts Bay. At the beginning of his reign they were an independent people living under a representative government, levying their own taxes, conducting their own courts of justice, coining their own money. At the close of the third year of his reign they were none the less independent in spirit but the privileges of independence had been taken away. Legislation and taxation had become the prerogatives of Edmund Andros, the Governor of New England; the courts of justice were under his influence; even the process of "countenancing and encouraging the Church of England" was well under way and Episcopal services were held every Sunday in the Old South Meeting-house at Boston.

So decided a change in their condition was naturally very depressing to the colonists and the smouldering fires of their indignation threatened at any time to become a blaze. But the oppression was so shrewdly conducted that the opportunity for concerted action was long in presenting itself.

Only gradually were changes in the judiciary and in the system of taxation consummated, and then under the cover of professed advantage to the citizens. Remonstrance only resulted in making the burdens heavier and for the most part the people seemed to realize that "discretion was the better part of valor."

But the spirit of liberty taught by their religion and nourished by their past privileges was not easily restrained. Passive submission was impossible to some high-strung natures. It was inevitable that in isolated instances at least the suppressed indignation would find an utterance, and so it was in fact. In Essex county especially the independent spirit was too strong to keep the silence. And while it is said that several towns in the State refused to conform to a certain odious measure, it is said that in Essex county every town but three joined in this refusal. In Ipswich the opposition to the measure was particularly strenuous and the leaders in the opposition, six in number, were arrested and heavily fined.

But the beginning of the attempt to coerce Massachusetts was even prior to the coming of Andros, and at the very outset the ire of the independent Puritan was aroused. Among the first to express his indignation at the new order of affairs was a respected citizen of the town of Topsfield, Lieut. John Gould.

The abrogation of the charter of Massachusetts was the act of Charles II, but before any arrangements had been made for the government of the colony his death had suddenly occurred. There were too many affairs at home engaging the attention of his successor for him to consider the situation across the Atlantic and accordingly he directed that for the present all the officials in the colonies should exercise their functions as heretofore. As a provisional expedient, therefore, the government of Massachusetts Bay was conducted according to the old charter, while the people awaited the pleasure of the King. They were not left long in doubt as to the nature of his policy. By the influence of Edward Randolph a temporary government was established with Joseph Dudley as President, William Stoughton as Deputy President and Edward Randolph himself as Secretary. "Their functions were judicial and executive. They had no legislative authority." Before the General Court of Massachusetts Bay, which however the officers of the new government refused to recognize in an official capacity, Dudley and Randolph laid their commissions. On the third day following, but under protest, the old government was dissolved, the General Court having first passed by a unanimous vote a reply to the terms of his Majesty's commission.

The first criticism that they made was this: "We find that there is no certain determinate rule for your administration of justice, and that which is, seems too arbitrary." This was upon May 20, 1686. And as we may well believe, the knowledge of what had taken place furnished material for discussion in every village of the colony. Some of the weaker men were doubtless resolved already to support the new order. The stronger ones were indignant against it, and none more so than Lieut. John Gould of Topsfield. He seems to have had special feeling against the court regulations referred to above, and between May 23d and May 30th was heard to say: "That if the county was of his mind, they would keep Salem Court with the former majistrates, and if the county would go the rounds, he would make the first, and would go and keep Salem court and he would have his company down to do it." The events of a month seem not to have cooled the ardor of his resentment, for on or about the 11th day of July he broke out again with this declaration: "That he was under another Government and had sworn to another Government, and did not know this Government." Heroic John Gould! But his liberty of speech cost him dearly. There were those who heard his words of noble indiscretion and upon the representations of Isaac Cummings, John Wild and John How he was charged with treason. A warrant was issued for his arrest and he was committed to jail in Boston. This was upon the 5th of August, 1686. A copy of the original warrant is here appended:

Boston, Sc.

To the Keeper of his Majesty's Jail in Boston.

The President of his Majesty's Territory and Dominion of New England, with the Deputy President and others of his Majesty's Council assembled, the 7th day of August 1686, having received information upon the oaths of Isaac Cummings, John Wild, and John How, of several treasonable and seditious words, spoken by John Gould of Topsfield, against our Sovereign Lord the King, &c. These are therefore, in his majesty's name, to require you to take into your Custody the body of the said John Gould, and him safely keep until he shall be delivered in due course of Law, and for doing this shall be your warrant, given at the Council House in Boston, the said 5th day of August, Anno Dom. 1686. Anno que R. R. Jacobi Dei Gratia Angliae &c.—secundi.

Vera Copia. ED RANDOLPH.

Sec.

He appears to have been suffering from some physical ailment and therefore sent a petition to the President and Council of his Majesty's Territory and Dominion of New England, in consequence of which it was ordered: "That the Prison-keeper do permit the said John Gould to have the benefit of the Prison yard to walk in during his sickness (the keeper taking care the said Gould make not an escape) till further order."

Council House Boston, Aug. 12, 1686.

(signed)

Ed. Randolph, Sec'y.

On August 19 he was brought to trial before a special session of the Court held in Boston. He was found guilty of the charge of treason and sent to prison.

A copy of the original document in which under oath John Wild, John How, Isaac Cummings & Ephraim How witness against John Gould is herewith inserted.

CASE OF JOHN GOULD CHARGED WITH TREASON.

Rez Contra Gould in Sessione Speciali, 19th Aug. 1686.

The Jurors for our Sovereign Lord, the King, do upon their oaths present, that John Gould, sen., otherwise called Lieutenant Gould of Topsfield, in the County of Essex, husbandman, by force and arms, that is to say, between the 23d and 30th of May, in the second year of the reign of our Sovereign Lord, &c., being evilly affected against our most sacred Lord the King aforesaid, his supreme and natural Lord, and devising with all his might, and intending to disturb the peace and common tranquillity of this his Majesty's Territory and Domain of New England, as the same is now settled by his Majesty's Royal Commission under his great seal of England, and the introducing again of the late Government dissolved by law, at a Riotous Muster of armed men gathered together by him, the aforesaid John Gould as their pretended officer, at Topsfield aforesaid, in the County aforesaid, in the year aforesaid, he the said John Gould as aforesaid, then and there being, did against the duty of his Allegiance, and in terror of his Majesty's liege People, maliciously, wickedly, seditiously, treasonably, and advisedly, speak and utter these malicious, treasonable, and seditious speeches following, viz: If the Country was of his mind, they would keep Salem Court with the former Magistrates, and if the Country would go the Rounds, he would make the first, and would go and keep Salem Court, and he would have his Company down to do it. And, further, he, the said John Gould as aforesaid, on or about the 11th day of July, at Topsfield aforesaid, in the County aforesaid, in the year aforesaid, maliciously, advisedly and treasonably, did say and utter these malicious, treasonable and seditious words, following, viz: That he was under another Government and had sworn to another Government, and did not know this Government, and this in manifest contempt of his Majesty's laws and Government here in New England, to the will and pernicious example of all others in the like case offending, and against the peace of our said Sovereign Lord the King, his Crown and dignity.

Ephraim Howe,

The punishment thus meeted out to him was hard to bear. His family, consisting of wife and eight children, was deprived of the means of support and he therefore sends a special petition "to the honorable President and Council of his Majesty's Territory and Dominion of New England." He promises allegiance to the new government, states that he is "heartily sorry for the idle words he uttered" and asks "that upon his payment of twenty pounds, fees of Court, and giving sufficient security for his good behavior he may be freed from his imprisonment." The total amount of the bill of costs was £10.01.00, itemized as follows:

The petition of John Gould was as follows.

To the honorable, the President and Council of his Majesty's Territory and Dominion of New England

The humble petition of John Gould humbly sheweth.

That your petitioner shall ever pray for your Honours' prosperity, as in duty bound, for your favorable answer to his late petition; which, if he were able, he would readily embrace without further troubling your honours; but his fortune being very inconsiderable and that incumbered; and being incapable to get a penny toward the support of his wife and eight children. He, therefore, most humbly prays, that your honours

The first thing I noticed when I stepped out of the car was the cold. It was a sharp, biting cold that seemed to seep into my bones. I shivered as I walked towards the building, my hands tucked into my pockets. The air was thick with the scent of old books and the faint smell of coffee. I took a deep breath, savoring the familiar scents. The building was a grand old structure, its walls made of dark stone. The windows were tall and narrow, some of them with leaded glass. I walked up the steps leading to the entrance, my heart racing.
 The door was open, and I stepped inside. The interior was dimly lit, with the light coming from small lamps on the walls. The air was warm and smelled of old paper. I walked through the hallways, my eyes taking in the details of the architecture. The walls were covered in tapestries, and the floors were made of polished wood. I reached the end of the hallway and turned right. The door was slightly ajar, and I pushed it open. The room was large and empty, with a high ceiling and a fireplace. The walls were covered in bookshelves, and the floor was made of stone. I walked towards the fireplace, my hands still in my pockets.
 The fire was burning brightly, and the room was filled with a warm glow. I took a seat on the sofa, my eyes fixed on the fire. The room was quiet, and I felt a sense of peace. I closed my eyes and let the warmth of the fire envelop me. The world outside was cold and dark, but here, in this room,
 I felt safe. I stayed there for a long time, until the fire had burned down to a low flame. I stood up and walked towards the door, my hands still in my pockets. The door was closed, and I turned back. The room was empty, and I felt a sense of loss. I walked back to the car, my heart heavy. The cold was still there, but it didn't feel so sharp anymore. I got into the car and drove home, my mind filled with thoughts of the room. I knew I would go back, and I felt a sense of hope.
 The room was a part of me now, and I knew I would never forget it.

will be pleased to take his deplorable condition into further consideration, (he being heartily sorry for the idle words he uttered) that, on his payment of twenty pounds, fees of Court, and giving sufficient security for his good behaviour, he may be freed from his imprisonment. And your petitioner, as in duty bound, shall ever pray, etc.

JOHN GOULD.

His petition was granted and on Aug. 25 he was released from confinement. There is apparently some confusion regarding the terms upon which his release was secured. For there seem to be two documents in which his discharge is ordered. In one of these it is required that he pay the sum of twenty pounds beside prison fees and fees of prosecution and furnish bond for his good behavior.

In the other the amount additional to the charges of prosecution is fixed at fifty pounds instead of twenty and it is stated that on this being paid the remainder of his fine will be respited. Both documents are signed by Ed. Randolph, Sec'y.

Ordered, that upon the petitioners payment of the sum of twenty pounds to the Treasurer and Prison fees and fees of Prosecution, that he be discharged his imprisonment upon giving bond for his good behaviour.

ED. RANDOLPH, Secretary.

By the President and Council of his Majesty's Territory and Dominion of New England.

Upon reading the petition of John Gould, and considering the poverty of his family it is ordered,

That upon the payment of Fifty Pounds in Money, and charges of Prosecution, the remainder of his fine be respited and he be released of his imprisonment, he giving bonds for his good behaviour, according to order of Court.

ED. RANDOLPH, Secretary.

Aug. 25th, 1686.

As security for his future good behavior Lieut. Gould bound himself in the sum of 100 pounds, a copy of which bond is inserted herewith.

Know all men by these presents, that I, John Gould, senior, otherwise called Lieutenant Gould of Topsfield, in the county of Essex (in his Majesty's Territory and Dominion of New England.) husbandman, am holden and firmly bound unto the most Illustrious Prince, James II. of England, etc., King etc., his heirs, or lawful Attorney in the sum of one hundred pounds, to the which payment, well and truly to be made, I bind myself firmly by these presents, sealed with my seal, dated the twenty-fifth day of September, in the 2d year of the reign of our said Sovereign Lord, James II. of England, etc., and in the year of our Lord, one thousand six hundred eighty six. The condition of this obligation is such, that if the above bounden John Gould senior, do well and truly keep the peace of our Sovereign Lord, the King aforesaid, and shall also be of good behavior towards our said Lord, the King, and all his liege people, especially to the inhabitants of Topsfield, aforesaid, then this recognizance to be void and of none effect, or otherwise to be and remain in full force, power and virtue.

JOHN GOULD, Senior.

Signed, sealed and delivered to the use of our said Sovereign Lord, the King, in the presence of Benjamin Bullivant.

The readiness with which the gallant lieutenant swore devotion to the King's government, now that adversity had followed his resistance, is at first surprising, but in the absence of any wide spread disposition to rebel against the authority of the King, it may have seemed useless that he should become a martyr, and in praying for release upon the terms stated, he did but follow the example of the majority, who, much as they disliked to do so, realized that submission was for the present the wisest course.

He seems to have suffered nothing in the respect of his fellow citizens, for when by the accession of William and Mary to the throne of England, the Andros administration came to an end, John Gould was re-elected to his old office as selectman of the town, "and in 1690, and afterwards, he was chosen the deputy of Topsfield to the General Court." It seems also from the record of a church meeting held in the house of Rev. Joseph Capen, June 13, 1692, that the church in Topsfield approved his course and was displeased at the conduct of John How and others.

In consequence of John How's testimony against Gould at the time of his trial, a coldness had sprung up and continued to exist between them. Both were members of the church, but Gould concluded, as is surmised, that "if How is a worthy member of the Christian church, and one with whom it is fit and proper for brethren to hold communion, why, then I am not such a member, and I will just stay away." Accordingly for a considerable time he remained away from the communion service. It was in the endeavor to bring about more cordial relations between the two men that this meeting of the church was called. The church expressed its disapproval of the conduct of those who had testified against Gould, and How acknowledged that he was heartily sorry for his part in that affair.

The church also disapproved of Gould's neglect of the table of the Lord and he expressed contrition. The two men then shook hands in token of mutual forgiveness, each no doubt made happier by this manly course, while the blessing of the peace maker was the portion of the church.

Such in brief is the story of the treason of John Gould. Treason against tyranny whose other name is devotion to justice and to freedom!

And such is one of the many instances by which from time to time the spirit of our sturdy forefathers found expression, prophetic always of that memorable day to which they looked forward, on which we look back, that day of Independence, when it was declared and soon in bloody conflict proven, "that these united colonies are and of right ought to be free and independent states."

REPORT OF THE SECRETARY.

In presenting to the society my fourth annual report, I have pleasure in being able to chronicle a continued increase in the membership, and a growing prestige among kindred societies scattered about the county, and in fact the state and nation. The year just closed has added thirty-seven members to our rolls—members who reside in thirteen different states.

We have lost two members by death, Mrs. Eunice Perley of East Boxford, and Mrs. Mary A. Colburn of Wellesley Hills, while four have resigned their affiliation.

Eight meetings of the society have been held during the past year and papers have been read by Sidney Perley, Esq., of Salem, Miss Marietta Clark, Benj. J. Balch, Mrs. George Warren Towne, the president and your secretary.

The society now has a total active membership of 271, resident in twenty different states. Every New England state pays its tribute. We have three members on the Pacific coast and one in the southern state of Alabama. An effort will be made during the coming year to largely increase our rolls and proportionately our income.

One event during the past twelve months comes to the fore with much prominence—the highly successful field meeting held on July 27th, the Essex Institute of Salem, uniting with us in extending a cordial invitation to the thirteen Historical societies in the county, to be represented at the gathering, and every one without exception sent its delegation, large or small. Methuen on the extreme northwest and Lynn on the southeast sent parties of enthusiastic antiquarians. A stranger within our gates, a Westerner visiting New England's shrines for the first time, left "Cold Roast Beef Boston," or as we affectionately term it, Nahant, at the seasonable hour of five o'clock in the morning, and after spending the day in our midst told the reporter of a great metropolitan newspaper, that he had known the ideal New England country village only by what he had read and seen in picture, but at first glance he recognized in Topsfield a most delightful type. He had travelled the wide world over and never seen any spot more picturesquely rural than this same Topsfield of ours. At the public exercises in the afternoon the Town Hall was filled by an interested audience that heard eloquent speakers of national reputation. The Hon. Robert S. Rantoul, president of the Essex Institute; Prof. Edward S. Morse, administrative head of the Peabody Academy of Science; Gen. Francis H. Appleton of the Governor's staff; Mrs. Alice Freeman Palmer, ex-president of Wellesley College and an educator of national reputation; Rev. D. O. Mears of Albany, N. Y., the orator; Hon. Alden P. White of Salem; John W. Hutchinson, the famous singer of emancipation and other speakers of almost equal note, contributed to the unqualified success of an occasion that ever will remain a marked day in the history of our society. To unite the historical societies of the county at one common field meeting was something unknown in county annals. It remained for the Topsfield Historical Society to achieve this event and years to come will feel the good fellowship and influence of that July day.

But this society must not rest upon its oars and drift with the tide, for in the rapidly approaching year, 1900, must be celebrated with all pomp and honor possible, the 250th anniversary of our birth as a town, the 28th in order on the list of settlements incorporated in the Massachusetts Bay colony.

We should all take a wholesome pride in our honorable record as a town and make every effort to crown the anniversary of our natal day with a round of becoming festivities. It is perhaps none too soon to discuss at the annual town meeting the question of "ways and means," and even the election of a committee having power to outline the exercises of the day and submit estimates of cost at a future meeting. He who goes forewarned goes armed in all points.

A consideration of the matter in ample season may prevent mistakes of both omission and commission.

One other matter I would keep ever before your eyes—the eventual ownership by the society of a permanent home, a resting place in some ancient building, where our collection of historical objects can be housed and feel a natural growth, and where associations with the shadowy past may sharpen our appetites for things historical.

Such a movement must be made in the not distant future. It only needs the sinewy arm to guide the plow, for necessary funds will be forthcoming with the successful launching of the project.

Shall we not unite in bringing the question to a successful solution before the dawn of our anniversary year, the year when objects of historical interest will be most in repute?

Let a continuation of the good fellowship and earnest work of the past be hoped for in the future. Let our society be the spot where all creeds and stations can meet upon common ground, bound by a common tie of veneration,—a research into the storied past.

Respectfully submitted,

GEORGE FRANCIS DOW.

MARY A. (BLANCHARD) COLBURN was born in Shrewsbury, Vermont, June 28, 1824, and died at her younger son's home in Wellesley Hills, Mass., Dec. 26, 1897. She was the daughter of Stephen and Rebecca (Lake) Blanchard. On the twenty-fifth of November, 1846, she was married in Winchendon, Mass., to John Colburn, of Leominster. He died in Wellesley Hills, Dec. 15, 1886. Both are buried in the family lot at Leominster, Mass.

Four children were born to them; the eldest died in infancy; John Henry, who married Helen T. Bliss of New Bedford and lives in Boston; Mary Eleanor, who married Thomas Guthrie. He was born in Glasgow, Scotland, and died in Boston, March 12, 1897; Frank Martin, who married Ida E. Childs of Roxbury. She died Nov. 26, 1894.

Mrs. Colburn joined the Topsfield Historical Society in 1895. She was until within a few weeks of her death, an active, energetic woman, and maintained a lively interest in current events at large, as well as in the minute details of her daily life, the care of her son's motherless children, and the domestic duties which she personally supervised. She was the true type of a New England woman of the old school.

Her unselfish life and beautiful character will be a precious memory to a large circle of friends, and to the children and grandchildren who survive her.

EUNICE PERLEY, died at Boxford Sept. 4, 1898, at the age of seventy-three. She was daughter of Thomas and Lydia (Guilford) Peabody, and was born in Topsfield Nov. 19, 1824. She married Humphrey Perley of Ipswich Sept. 16, 1844; and lived in Topsfield and Boxford. Her life was uneventful, and was wholly devoted to her family. Three sons, Elbridge Perley and Humphrey Perley, Jr., both of Boxford, and Sidney Perley of Salem, and one daughter, Mrs. Emma J. Chase of North Andover were born of this union.

HISTORY OF THE TOPSFIELD ACADEMY.

To the Topsfield Historical Society was due the inception of the reunion of the teachers and students of the old Topsfield Academy, but to the enthusiastic cooperation of the students of "auld lang syne," was largely due, the instant success of the reunion, held on an August day, when Nature's brightest smiles strove to make the day one of dearest memory.

The morning trains brought many from a distance, and every winding road paid its tribute as the noon hour drew near. Lunch was served in the Town Hall, by resident students of the Academy, and an informal reception followed, with many happy renewals of old acquaintance; men and women who had not seen each other for fifty years or more, recalled the bygone days, and many were the effecting scenes and incidents. As the hour for the literary exercises drew near, a large number of students grouped themselves about the entrance to the Hall, and were photographed, in memory of the day. The Hall presented a beautiful picture, as flowers were abundantly used in decoration, the speakers platform being completely hidden by masses of ferns, sweet peas, and other flowers, and when the chairman, Jefferson K. Cole, of Peabody, called the assemblage to order, he faced an audience that taxed its seating capacity. Nearly three hundred of those present attended the old Academy at some time in its history. Rev. Alfred Noon, of Boston, offered prayer, and was followed by Mr. Cole, who delivered an address of welcome, in which he recalled many scenes and incidents of Academy days. Prof. John W. Perkins, of Salem, delivered the oration. His topic was the personal and local side of education. This address was replete with timely thoughts, and was frequently applauded. Prof. George Conant, of Pasadena, California, who was principal of the Academy in 1852, read an original poem. This was followed by the ode, written by Eugene Tappan, Esq., of Boston. Mr. Nathan Dane Dodge, of Newburyport, conducted the singing. Mr. M. V. B. Perley, of Ipswich, then delivered the historical address, an able record of the glories of the old Academy, that was greatly appreciated. A reminiscence address, by Rev. George L. Gleason, of Haverhill, carried memory back to "the days that used to be." Brief addresses followed from Hon. Israel W. Andrews, of Danvers; Prof. George Conant, who asked those present who were instructed by him, in 1852, to rise in their seats, and the surprising number, twenty-eight, responded. Rev. Alfred Noon, John W. Porter, Esq., of Danvers, and Eugene Tappan, Esq., spoke briefly. The exercises concluded by singing a hymn to the tune of "Auld Lang Syne," Rev. Francis A. Poole, pastor of the Congregational Church, of Topsfield, pronouncing the benediction. Seated on the platform, with the speakers, was Deacon John J. Gould, of Ipswich, who attended the Academy in 1830.

The following committee, Justin Allen, M. D., Charles J. Peabody, Benjamin J. Balch, Joseph B. Poor, Henry W. Lake, Albert M. Dodge, Mrs. Sarah K. (Leach) Woodbury, Mrs. Ellen A. (Hood) Welch, Mrs. Catharine (Gould) Perkins, and George Francis Dow, members of the Topsfield Historical Society, or resident students of the Academy, arranged and carried to a successful conclusion the first, and probably the last, reunion of the teachers and scholars of the Topsfield Academy.

CHAPTER I.

THE TOWN OF TOPSFIELD AND THE INCORPORATORS OF THE ACADEMY.

Every mortal has his birth, his life, and his death, or as we are taught, his change of life, and after that the judgment; so, many human institutions, particularly those of mental and moral design, have their birth and life, and change in the sphere and manner of their activity, and after that a judgment.

Topsfield Academy is a case in point; she has pursued the common path, as if impelled by a common trolley. The day of her birth was one of joy throughout the grand old borough; her life was a gem, every facet of which reflected its own peculiar attractive color and brilliancy and beauty; her changed activity now lives hidden in a thousand measures of meal, and we, today, filial in our love and devotion, with breadth of view, cognizant of results, and just in our estimate (as she ever taught us), review her life and accord to her her proper meed of praise.

The birth of this institution was during an academical period. The spirit of education was rife; the time was opportune. From 1628 at Salem, almost to 1828 at Topsfield, when this Academy was instituted; from 1634 at Ipswich, of which town Topsfield was, eighteen years, a part; from 1650, the date of Topsfield's incorporation; from King Philip of Mt. Hope to King George III of England, even to 1815, when closed the war that wrung from the mother country the last prerogatives of our nationality, the history of this people would be a well-written history of the wars. Indeed, it was the first opportunity, when the people, free in their nationality, big with the possibilities of free institutions, and persuaded of the value of moral culture and practical learning as a corner-stone of an enduring republic, could hopefully, earnestly and practically, pursue and cultivate the arts of peace.

At this time the spirit of education was rife—it brooded with propitious wing over the entire country. Time fails me to tell you of the Gideons, the Davids, and the Samuels, who, through an inspiring faith, wrought righteousness, escaped the edge of the sword, out of weakness were made strong, waxed valiant in fight, and turned to flight the armies of the aliens. Many of these men were college-bred; they were of high social culture, and they realized, as we did not, and as we cannot even now, the sentiment of the legend raised for years over the rostrum of the Academy: "Knowledge is Power." They instituted public and private schools as soon as there were pupils to attend them. From that early day, during all the trying vicissitudes of ancestral life, the week-day when the school door was not open to the inquiring student has no date. Through all those years, school privileges abounded, as opportunities were possible, and means could be afforded. The public school was eminently practical, and the private school was no less practical in meeting a higher demand. There was no conflict, each rejoiced in the growth of the other, and each maintained her relative ratio of numbers. Gov. Dummer early scented the sweet aroma of this century plant, and endowed his academy in 1763; Phillips followed at Andover in 1780. A radical change in the common system was inaugurated about 1800, towns being divided into school districts, prudential committees chosen, and school work and government made comparatively definite and positive. From 1806 to 1820, Mr. Felt, the historian, counted no less than seventy-five advertisements of private schools.

At the time of the institution of this Academy, this century plant, so cherished and cultivated by our ancestors, and so hopeful in its fruition, was about to spread its broad petals and distill upon the balmy air the richness of its treasured sweetness. The common school, so recently established on its new vantage ground, was now to be supplemented by a permanent higher grade of moral and educational training within the means of the common people, and a permanent connecting-link between the common school and the college was to be established.

Nine academies in our immediate vicinity were instituted in thirteen years. "The Trustees of Merrimack Academy" at Groveland were incorporated Feb. 7, 1822; "The Visitors of the Theological Institution in Phillips Academy in Andover," Jan. 17, 1824; "The Proprietors of Haverhill Academy," Jan. 28, 1828; "The Proprietors of Ipswich Academy," Feb. 28, 1828; "The Proprietors of Topsfield Academy," June 12, 1828; "The Trustees of Abbot Female Academy," Andover, Feb. 26, 1829; "The Proprietors of Boxford Academy," March 4, 1831; "Lynn Academy in the Town of Lynn," March 13, 1832; "Beverly Academy," Feb. 7, 1835.

Topsfield was part and parcel of that ancestral avalanche of educational force. She had her Winthrop who left his name to a commanding elevation in the northern part of the town, and who, in 1642, sold for £250, 300 acres of land "situate in the hamlett, village or place called Toppesfeild* in the parish of Ipswich"; she had her Bradstreets, Perkins, and Peabodys; her Cleavelands, Merriams, and Cummings; her Goulds, Balches, and Howletts; her Hoods, Townes, and Averills; her Clarks, Lamsons, and Kimballs; a host of worthies. She appreciated the golden opportunity and rejoiced, as an Elisha, in the cast mantle of the fathers.

But besides these common inheritances, she had two others peculiarly her own. She was centrally located and "beautiful for situation."

The Newburyport Turnpike had contributed to the former of these for twenty-five years, telling daily the news and business of cities south and north. The crack of the coachman's whip and the chuck of heavy-laden dray-wheels had been heard upon the north-west and west, for many years.

*This is the earliest known record of the name as applied to this territory. The phrase here quoted is found in a deed, dated March 20, 1642, and given by John Winthrop, Gent., of New England, then residing in London, England, to Edward Parks, citizen and merchant-taylor of London, England. The deed conveyed land whose south-east bound was six feet from the spring in the present northern boundary of Topsfield; whose north-west was near the old gate leading to the residence of the late Emerson Howe; whose north-east was probably just east of the Corp. John Foster estate.

Three stages passed daily between Boston, Salem and Newburyport, and one between Salem and Haverhill, and three mails were each day opened. This village was in daily touch with every part of the county. Here was the central relay of horses. Here were brought merchandise and passengers, and political and literary conventions. Here convened the famous Essex Junto, Oct. 6, 1808, whose voice national in its influence, waked the echoes of the gilded dome and vibrated along the corridors of the White House; here followed the great anti-junto, Feb. 20, 1809; here the Essex County Agricultural Society held its first exhibit, Oct. 5, 1820; here was the great Lyceum convention, Dec. 30, 1829, backed by such men as Edward Everett, Daniel Webster, and Horace Mann; here the Essex County Natural History Society organized, April 16, 1834; and here also the Essex County Teachers' Association had its birth. The central location was an advantage of expanding value, and demanded strenuous exertions to be further utilized.

[Of the Lyceum convention, Hon. Daniel Appleton White wrote: It was "a large concourse of gentlemen of influence. I do not remember ever to have witnessed a more interesting and enlightened assembly. Very animated, earnest, and protracted debates took place. By a full but close vote," the following resolutions were adopted:—Resolved, that it is desirable to establish a general lyceum for Essex County—that previous to such formation, local lyceums should be established in the several towns—that a committee be appointed by this meeting to prepare a circular letter and address it to suitable persons in each town in the county—to call a general meeting to adopt a constitution—to draft a form of constitution. Mr. Vose was placed on the committee, and the meeting for adopting a constitution was called at Ipswich Hotel, at 10 o'clock, on March 17, 1830. The object of the lyceum was "the improvement of its members in useful knowledge and the advancement of popular education, by reading, conversation, discussions, dissertations, illustrating the sciences, or other exercises, which shall be thought expedient; and as it is found convenient will be procured a cabinet consisting of books, apparatus for illustrating the sciences, plants, minerals, and other natural or artificial productions." The title used by the committee was Confederation, or Convention, of Lyceums. Topsfield had another meeting Jan. 18, 1830.—Essex Hist. Coll., vol. 9, part 2, p. 50, and vol. 18, p. 293.]

Her "beauty for situation" had been long recognized; her rural quiet and social amenities long attested; her village homes and farm villas indicated persistent diligence, a learned intelligence and stored wealth; the lake and river were an added charm to her landscape, and invited to aquatic sports; her hills afforded a great variety and extent of scenic beauty of land and ocean. Not, however, that she so far excelled her sisters; but that these natural gifts, each enhancing the value of the other, made her the first choice of towns for academic life.

Topsfield was a pioneer in establishing the new system of schools. "Miss Floyd's Academy" was located here as early as 1819*. Preceding this or succeeding it, or both and the while, was Mrs. A. P. Curtis and Lydia R. Ward's Academy. Mrs. Curtis' school is mentioned as late as 1827. The sessions of Miss Floyd's Academy were held at Dr. Nehemiah Cleaveland's house, and it may be that a knowledge of her success placed the Doctor among the foremost advocates of a public academy.

The original document, the initial formal action, in relation to this school, reads as follows:—

"Our country has already risen to a high rank in civilization and mental culture; and the present period is distinguished for the rapid improvement in almost every useful art

*We have been shown, by Mrs. N. Rawson Underhill, of Ipswich, a manuscript book whose title page reads thus:—"Miscellaneous Exercises on Composition by Lucy Martin of Salem, at Miss Curtis and Miss Floyd's school, Salem, June 12, 1816." The latest date in the book is July 18, 1819.

Informs her friends and the public, that she will open a SCHOOL on the first Monday in April, in the chamber over Mr. Stearns' store, Essex Street, formerly occupied by Mr. Blyden for that purpose, where she will teach Reading, Writing, Arithmetic, English Grammar, Rhetoric, Composition and Needle-Work —Also an intermediate School from 11 to 1 o'clock.—Salem Gazette, Mar. 17, 1809.

and science. We the undersigned fully believing that the town of Topsfield is very favorably located for an Academy, and desirous to keep pace with the country, while we secure to ourselves and posterity the means of acquiring useful knowledge, agree to pay the sum or sums annexed to our respective names, for the purpose of erecting a building or buildings suitable for an academy in said town, the site to be hereafter selected by the promoters of the aforesaid object and whoever may have the munificence to endow the institution, it is our most cordial wish, and design, that it shall bear His name forever, with the privilege of appointing, while living, all the Trustees, of which body He himself shall be the President.

This paper seems to have been intended as a suggestion, but their active purpose could not wait for respondents to grow, and the following action matured in the next September:—

"We the subscribers do hereby covenant and agree together, and do hereby severally promise to pay the sums set to our respective names to be appropriated to the sole purpose of procuring a proper site and erecting thereon, a suitable building for the exclusive purpose of keeping such high school or schools therein, of either or of both sexes, as shall from time to time be agreed upon by the proprietors or by those to whom the management of the same shall be entrusted; and we do hereby severally promise to pay said sums at such times and in such proportions as shall be required by any committee duly authorized to receive the same, and it is hereby agreed that in all proceedings hereafter to be had in the premises, each subscriber shall be entitled to one vote for every twenty dollars by him or her subscribed, provided however, that no person shall give more than ten votes in his or her own right,—To the prompt and faithful performance of all that is above written we do hereby jointly and severally bind ourselves and our respective heirs.

Witness our hands this sixth day of September 1827.

The building was begun in the fall of that year, but a se-were cold coming on in October (when Jack Frost through out the country placed an embargo on unharvested potatoes and confiscated thousands of bushels), the lumber was piled till the next year. The structure was 45 by 36 feet on the ground, two stories high, was covered by a hip-roof, which was surmounted by a belfry in the center, whose bell one of the worthy instructors used to say was toned to the key of P. Each story contained a large school-room with ante-room and stairway. A writer, in the Salem Gazette, about that time records: "The building is perfectly and commodiously finished, in two departments, upper and lower, with blinds to the whole house. It is on an elevated, and most beautiful spot, a little retired from the public road."

The land was purchased of Dr. Nehemiah Cleaveland, 3 acres and 59 rods, for $637.50, and was conveyed by deed dated Oct. 23, 1828. An entrance upon the land was near the blacksmith-shop, in low ground, it is said, and unfitted for the purposes of a school. The present entrance on Main Street was purchased of John Rea, Jr., guardian of Harriet Josephine Emerson, minor daughter of Joseph Emerson (and late the wife of Charles H. Holmes, Esq., long known as the tallest man in the county), 12.7 square rods, for $17, and was conveyed by deed dated June 10, 1829.

The following names appear in the act of incorporation: Nehemiah Cleaveland, who was a leading physician and in practice here many years; Samuel Hood, who was a carpenter by trade, a house-wright and master builder. He was master-carpenter on the Franklin Building, Salem, and on other noted structures,—and was chairman of the Academy building-committee, and the contractor and builder of it; Billy Emerson, who was the most extensive general trader Essex County ever had, and of whom it is said, he could journey to Canada (as he used to) and stop at his own hotel every night; Jacob Towne, Jr., who was town-clerk for twenty years; Isaac Killam, who was a captain in the militia and an independent farmer; Moses Wildes, who was a blacksmith and counted among the wealthy citizens; Samuel Gould, who was a grocer, and who exercised many town offices; Frederick J. Merriam, who was extensively engaged in both trading and farming, (is styled "drover," in the Salem Gazette, April 25, 1835); John Rea, Jr., who kept a hotel where Mr. John Bailey's residence now is, who was later of Portsmouth, N. H., and afterwards a farmer in New Brunswick; William N. Cleaveland, who was sometime a manufacturer at "The Mills," Byfield, and later a wealthy farmer in Boxford; Jeremiah Stone, M. D., who was a skillful physician, located in town about eight years, and afterward removed his practice to Provincetown, where he died; Moses Wright, who was a captain in the militia, and, it is believed a boot-manufacturer in Topsfield and in Georgetown where he later made his home; Edward Hood, who, in modern phrase, was a cattle-broker, and conducted a large business; Nathaniel Perley, who was a General in the militia, and kept a country store, till he sold to Benjamin Perley Adams, and removed to Danvers. The property is now owned and occupied by Joseph Bailey Poor, a general merchant. The act of incorporation further states that the above named persons together with such other persons as now are, or may hereafter be associated with them and their successors * * * * shall be a corporation by the name of the "Proprietors of Topsfield Academy;" that by that name the institution "may sue and be sued;" may have a common seal, and may purchase and hold any real and personal estate not exceeding $30,000 in value, and may at any legal meeting make and establish rules, orders and by-laws for the well ordering and governing the affairs of said corporation provided the same are not repugnant to the laws of the Commonwealth, and may annex penalties for the breach of any such rules, orders or by-laws, and the said corporation is hereby vested with all the powers necessary for carrying into effect the purposes of this act; and further that the property of said corporation shall be divided into shares, and the proprietors of said shares, at any legal meeting may make assessments upon the shares for the use of said corporation and the same collect, in such way and manner as may be agreed upon, and all votes shall be determined by a majority of the voters present, counting one vote to each share provided no one member, in his own right shall have more than ten votes, and the share of any proprietor who shall be delinquent in paying any assessment may be sold at auction for the payment thereof, by the person appointed to collect the same, giving due notice of the time and place, and after paying the assessment and all the necessary incidental charges, the overplus money, if any, arising from the sale, shall be paid to the delinquent proprietor, and the shares shall be deemed personal estate and the proprietors may establish the manner of transferring the same; also, that said corporation may appoint all necessary officers and with such authority as by their by-laws they may establish for the due management of its affairs and the regulation of the school; and that the said Jacob Towne Jr., may call the first meeting and appoint the time and place thereof: provided nevertheless, that nothing in this act shall be so construed as to prevent the Legislature from altering or repealing it at any time hereafter.

The term incorporators as used above embraces such persons as appeared by name in the act of incorporation, and they do not differ otherwise from the proprietors. The following is a complete list of the first owners of the institution, showing their respective interests or number of shares. It is noticed that the certificates were not cashed till a year or two after the school had its birth. All the certificates are dated Oct. 20, 1829, except the last three which are dated Sept. 7, 1830.

The stock-book shows twelve certificates signed in blank by N. Cleaveland, President.

Jacob Towne, Jr., called the first meeting, of the proprietors and was treasurer till 1832, when Dr. Royal A. Merriam was chosen. Dr. Jeremiah Stone was the first secretary and Rev. James F. McEwen succeeded him. Nehemiah Cleveland, Royal Augustus Merriam, Jeremiah Stone, Samuel Gould, Solomon Wildes, John Lamson, John Rea, William Munday and William N. Cleaveland were the first standing committee.

The institution was dedicated May 7, 1828, Rev. Rodney G. Dennis, pastor of the local church, delivering the address, which was printed. That was also the first day of the term. Mr. Dennis' address was well written, well delivered, and well received. The standing committee requested the manuscript for publication. It was published by subscription in a pamphlet of sixteen pages. Sylvester Cummings took twenty copies; N. Cleaveland, Billy Emerson, Francis Vose, Jeremiah Stone, Samuel Gould, ten each; Israel Rea, Jr., and Susan Cummings, six each; Joel Lake, William Munday, William Gunnison, Benjamin C. Perkins, Hannah P. Bradstreet, Samuel Hood, Jacob Towne, Jr., five each; W. N. Cleaveland, Benjamin Kimball, four each; David Lake, W. Conant, Thomas Balch, Cornelius B. Bradstreet, Nathaniel Perley, Moses Wright, Aaron Conant, John Wright, Lydia B. Emerson, Joseph Batchelder, Isaac Killam, W. R. Hubbard, Josiah Peabody, three each; eighteen others, two each; nineteen others, one each. The list of sixty-seven names probably shows, other things being equal, the enthusiasm with which the new institution was received.

The occasion was a red-letter day in the town's history. Mr. Dennis had spoken the right word; the school opened prosperously; the teachers were professionals; and the proprietors were in earnest and sanguine of success.

One of Mr. Dennis' opening sentences reads as follows: "Your attention is, therefore, solicited, while the attempt is made to offer some remarks, on the importance of connecting piety with knowledge. By piety will be understood a devout disposition of heart, accompanied by a course of life in correspondance with the divine commands, and by knowledge, the improvement of the mind."

Near the close he said: "This morning forms a new epoch in the annals of literature, and may we not say of piety, in this place. An Academy, in Topsfield, had, for many years past been a subject of conversation; many sanguine wishes had been expressed that there might be one, but never till now has one been opened. May we not hail its commencement, as a new occasion to the cause of learning, especially in this place? And may we not cherish the hope, too, that it will afford a fostering hand to that piety which as far excels mere human knowledge, as the unwithering glories of Heaven excel the fading, perishing treasures of this life? We congratulate its patrons on its establishment. The design does credit to your wisdom and public spirit, and the accomplishment of it to your decision. The building which you have erected is commodious and neatly finished. It does honor to the superintendent and to the architect. The spot on which it is located combines many excellences. You have been no less judicious and successful in choosing for instructors those in whom the public can put confidence, both as to their literary qualifications and their uprightness of moral character. May we not say, then, that this literary seminary has been opened under auspicious circumstances? Sustained by that wisdom, and public spirit and decision which planned and created it; and in the care of so able instructors; and in the near vicinity of so many populous towns; being easy, too, of access; and combining the advantages of salubrity of climate and beauty of surrounding scenery, can we suppress the hope that it will flourish? May the blessing of Almighty God rest upon it."

CHAPTER II.

THE EARLY INSTRUCTORS, FRANCIS VOSE, EDWARD D. SANBORN, MOSES P. STICKNEY, ASA FOWLER, ALFRED W. PIKE, AND MISS ANNA SEARLE.

The first instructors were Francis Vose, A. M., principal, and Miss Matilda Leavitt, preceptress. An advertisement of the school informs us, that she was "a lady highly qualified for the situation—the care of the ladies' department." Mrs. J. R. Towne, of Evanston, Ill., wrote, that Miss Ann Cofran was Miss Leavitt's successor, and left, she thought, when Mr. Vose resigned. She says, "I was a student at the opening of the Academy, and also during the Autumn of 1835, under Mr. Pike, who left soon after that term." The advertisement continues, that the principal had "been for several years past, engaged in the business of instruction", and had "fully established the character of an able, faithful and successful teacher."

Besides this recommendation, Prof. Vose had a reputation of his own. He had been, in some way, associated with his uncle Prof. John Vose, at Atkinson, N. H., the most distinguished teacher, says Dr. Geo. Cogswell, that Academy ever had. He married his cousin, one of Prof. John Vose's daughters, and thus became more vitally connected with the good name and work of his uncle. These things joined with his good ability and aptness to teach, creeping out quietly and widely into literary circles, made Prof. Francis Vose a very promising man, as governor and instructor of the new Academy.

The course of study, as in all academies, was arranged for mental discipline, moral culture, and practical life. The exercises of the commencement, Aug. 10, 1830, consisting of music, declamations, compositions and discussions, show that the Academy enjoyed a high degree of prosperity. There were twenty-one compositions, thirty-one declamations and an original hymn. These are some of the subjects treated, and the names of some of the writers and speakers: "Men may live fools, but fools they cannot die"; "Is public opinion a just criterion of moral character"; "The only amaranthine flower on earth is virtue"; "The world is infectious, few bring back at eve, immaculate, the manners of the morn": Miss Harriet Josephine Emerson told of "The Aborigines of America," and John G. Hood gave "Some reasons, why the custom of wearing mourning apparel should be discontinued". T. P. Munday declaimed of "Africa's future Glory"; George F. Choate, of "Mount Sinai"; J. G. Hood, of the "Cause of Missions"; and C. Cummings, of "The Grave". "The effect of Juvenile Libraries", was told by Moses K. Cross; "The importance of reading history", by A. F. Richards; "Love of Fame", by W. A. Peabody; "Lectures, a mode of instruction", by J. Peabody. There were discussions: "Does the King or peasant enjoy most happiness", by C. H. Rhoades and A. Gould; "Does the fear of law, or the loss of reputation, deter most from crime", by D. C. Gallup and E. Towne. There were these declamations: "Extirpation of the Indians", by M. K. Cross; "Talents", by E. Batchelder; "Influence of the higher classes of society", by P. Lovett; "Love of Country", by W. H. Lackey; "Slothfulness reproved", by C. Treadwell; an extract by G. F. Eveleth; "Solace of Hope", by M. B. Wildes; "Influence of Charity", by F. Cox; "Encouragements to Benevolence", by H. F. Putnam; "Nations of New England," by C. Page; "Intrepidity of our Ancestors", by J. B. Eveleth; "Pilgrim Fathers", by A. Bradstreet; "Tomorrow", by J. Rea; "The Prize", by F. M. Lord; "The Cause of propagating the Gospel should stand on its own claims", by A. Gould; "Character of the Philanthropist," by A. T. Richards; "Right of suffrage", by S. W. Bradstreet; "The instability of earthly greatness", by R. West; "Protection of the defenceless," by C. H. Rhoades; "Resistance of the Colonies encouraged", by J. D. Black; "Tears of Science", by M. Wildes; "Obligation of Americans", by W. A. Peabody; "Intemperance", by J. Peabody; "Avarice in Government", by E. Towne; "Claims of the Colonization Society", by D. P. Gallup.

Besides these there were Latin and Greek declamations, and an original hymn by Miss Harriet Josephine Emerson, which Rev. M. K. Cross says was very fine, far beyond her years. D. Peabody, also, gave "a short, pertinent and eloquent address."

At the commencement, of Aug. 9, 1831, there were fifty assignments: vocal music, nineteen compositions, an original poem by George Hood, two discussions, and twenty-six declamations—one Greek, one Latin, and two original.

Prof. Vose was a severe disciplinarian. He believed in the letter of the law. Dr. Cogswell, when eighty-two years of age [1890] related an instance in point. It was at Atkinson Academy, at the time the Doctor's youngest brother fitted for college, about 1820, or perhaps a little later. Four young men having completed their preparatory course for college desired of Master Vose the usual recommendation to Dartmouth College. But the evening before leaving, in violation of the school rules, they walked out with some of their female companions and school-mates, and the recommendations were withheld.

"What dire offense from friendly causes springs!
What mighty contests rise from trivial things!"

What lady indulging in reminiscence of academic life will not pronounce the punishment extremely severe, and what gentleman will not wonder what in contrast would be the condign punishment of the pretty features, grace of manners, and cultured intellect that Eve-like proffered the forbidden fruit! Sic volvere parcas.

It was, however, Prof. Vose's business to rear a careful man, an exact man, a just man, a liberty-loving and law-abiding citizen, as well as a thinking man in scholastic walks. Rev. Benjamin Howe, late of the Linbrook Church, who was a student a year under Prof. Vose, esteemed him highly and spoke of him as a dignified Christian gentleman, a pleasant and thorough instructor, a ripe scholar.

The Academy at once became a literary center, and Prof. Vose stood among the best educators in the county. It was at this academy, and during Mr. Vose's principalship, Dec. 4 and 5, 1830, that the Essex County Teacher's Association had its birth. Mr. Vose was the first recording secretary and continued in that office several years. There had been a preliminary meeting, presumably here in the June preceding. At this meeting in December a full board of officers was chosen and a constitution adopted. The annual and semi-annual meetings, by a provision of the constitution, were to be held here. The association was incorporated April 19, 1837, and the names appearing in the act of incorporation are N. Cleaveland of Byfield Academy (Dr. N. Cleaveland, of Topsfield, died Feb. 26, 1837), Benjamin Greenleaf, the mathematician, late principal of Bradford Academy, and George Titcomb, "Master Titcomb," as he was familiarly called, in Newburyport, where he first taught a private school and then the "Brown High School." The corporation could hold real and personal property to the value of $20,000. The association still lives, and as it has done in the past, so it is now doing, a good work. Mr. Jefferson Kimball Cole, now many years a teacher in Peabody, was several years its secretary.

At the same time the Academy was made a Publishers' Repository of New Books. In this it acquired a merited distinction. Here centered the learning of Eastern Essex County. About this pole revolved the interest of the reviewer, the critic, the litterateur. It was a thoughtful and apt use of the institution. Our nation then had no literature worthy the name, when compared with the world of letters. Nor is the fact startling! Colonial and provincial labors were works of necessity; there had been no time for anything else. But this, the period of which we write, permanently free from martial strife, was opportune for civic expansion. The national lyceums movement of 1829 indicated the popular sentiment in regard to literature. This repository was to supplement the labors of authors, by conning and pruning, by suggestion and commendation, thus enlarging the sphere, the influence and the value of their productions. The Academy was certainly in honor.

Prof. Vose was taxed in Topsfield, 1829-30-31. A record places him in Topsfield as late as the first of December, 1831. He called a meeting of the Essex County Teachers' Association over the date: "Haverhill, Nov. 10, 1832." The programmes of the commencements 1830 and 1831 are beyond a doubt his. But Superintendent of Schools Albert L. Bartlett, of Haverhill, wrote, "Francis Vose was the Preceptor of Haverhill Academy in 1831." Probably he taught a term in the fall of 1831. This is the nearest approach to the exact date of his resignation.

Francis Vose was son of Francis* and Phebe (Clement) Vose, and was born in Francestown, N. H., Oct. 31, 1788. He graduated at Dartmouth College in 1817, and took his Master's degree in course. He taught, says an apparent authority, in Francestown, Atkinson, and Hampton, N. H.; in Colchester and Bloomfield, Ct.; and in Haverhill, Topsfield, and Newburyport, Mass.

His son George T. Vose, of Alexandria, N. H., writes:—"My father was a professional teacher for more than twenty years. His health failing, he bought and cultivated, during his later years, a farm in Pembroke, N. H. He was elected a trustee of the Pembroke Academy very soon after locating there, and was placed on the executive committee, where he remained, until his death, by a throat difficulty, Aug. 13, 1851.

"He was twice married, first in Pembroke, N. H., to Miss Elizabeth Quincy Vose, ['a more than ordinary woman', said Dr. George Cogswell], daughter of John Vose, Esq., who as author of an astronomy, was titled 'Hon'. She died of consumption, in Hampton, N. H. By that wife he had only one child John Francis, who died young in May, 1831, in Hampton N. H., where he was born.

"He married, second, Jan. 24, 1830, Mary Ann Brackett, daughter of Thomas and Mary Pickering Brackett, of Greenland, N. H. She was born Sept. 4, 1800. Her last years were spent in the family of her son in Alexandria, N. H. For eight years next previous to her death, she was confined to her home by paralysis. A letter received from her only a short time before her death, shows cultured thought, *Francis Vose, Senior, was son of Samuel and Phebe (Vickery) Vose, of Bedford, N. H., who was son of Robert and Abigail (Sumner) Vose, who was son of Henry and Elizabeth (Babcock) Vose, who was son of Capt. Thomas and Wait-still (Wyatt) Vose, who was son of Robert (born 1599) and his wife Jane. Samuel Vose's family was said to be scholarly. Col. Elijah Vose once said: "Cousin, always maintain the dignity of the name of Vose," and thus embodied his idea of the family respectability. Old Col. Fabor once said that he had so profound a regard for Prof. John Vose, that he always felt, when he heard the name of Vose, like taking off his hat.—Peter E. Vose.

and a chirography seldom excelled by modern schools. She died at the home of her son, Sept. 22, 1890, leaving two sons, George Thomas and John Francis, her only children. She was buried in the family lot in Pembroke, N. H."

The dutiful son continues: "My great grandfather was George Brackett, Esq., of Greenland, N. H. (born 1737, died 1825) who married Dec. 18, 1764, Ann March, daughter of Dr. Clement March, of Greenland, who, it is understood, was sometime consul at Madeira, and afterwards travelled in the Orient, and died at the residence of the American consul at Alexandria, Egypt; and whose nephew, Charles W. March, was a writer of repute and private secretary to Daniel Webster, when the latter was Secretary of State. George Brackett left a fund of $5,000 to the Congregational church in Greenland, N. H. $2,600 to the Hampton Academy, and $2,000, to aid in founding Greenland Academy, which bears his name. George's brother, 'Old Dr. Brackett' of Portsmouth was celebrated for his medical knowledge and skill. My great uncle Joshua Brackett was a Harvard graduate, and a doctor of repute."

Mr. Vose's labors are still cherished in Topsfield. His character left its impress upon citizen as well as scholar. He was helpful in civic life and in church as well as in school and among men of letters. He called his school together Sunday morning, for religious instruction; he instituted in the church a Sunday school. He was an able, energetic, all-round man; his school was a gem that attracted by its brilliancy and worth.

EDWIN DAVID SANBORN.

Mr. Sanborn was Mr. Vose's successor. His son Edwin W. Sanborn thinks his father "taught at Topsfield during the winter of 1831-2, and possibly nearly all that school year, since he taught nine months of his senior year at college". The New Hampshire Press Association Annual, 1884-8, says Prof. Sanborn taught, during his college course, 1828-32, in Brentwood, N. H., twice in Concord, and in the academies of Derry, N. H., and Topsfield, Mass., "continuing in the latter place a year after his graduation." Albeit the spring and fall terms of 1832 of this academy opened May 2, and September 5, with Mr. Sanborn as principal.

The term beginning in May agreed in time with his last term of his four years' course at Dartmouth College, and while he was passing his examination there. Moses Parsons Stickney* officiated in the academy—"a brief interval", wrote Mr. Stickney, "of four or five weeks at longest."

James F. McEwen, secretary of the proprietors, in announcing the Academy's opening, spoke of Mr. Sanborn as "a gentleman highly recommended for classical attainments and talents as a teacher"—a recommendation fully sustained by him in his long literary career.

In 1835, his Alma Mater elected him tutor for one year. He was elected to the professorship of the Latin and the Greek languages in the same year, and was professor of the Latin language and literature from 1837 to 1859. He resigned and accepted his election to the chair of classical literature and history in Washington University, which he occupied from 1859 to 1863. The latter year he was again elected by his Alma Mater—this time professor of Oratory and Belles-lettres. He was librarian to the college from 1866 to 1874. He became professor of Anglo-Saxon and English language and literature, 1880. He received his master's degree in course; the University of Vermont added LL. D., 1859, and Dartmouth the same, 1879. Mr. Sanborn was born May 14, 1808, and died Dec. 29, 1885. Miss Kate Sanborn, author-

*Mr. Stickney, as a Congregational clergyman, settled in Eastport, Me. Afterwards he changed his views and was ordained in the Episcopal church, by Rt. Rev. Alexander V. Griswold, Feb. 25, 1841. He passed from deacon to priesthood, and as such became rector of St. Michael's church in Marblehead in 1842; then of St. Peter's in Cambridgeport in 1847; then of Burlington College, N. J.; then assistant minister in the church of the Advent, in Boston, in 1853, which he resigned in 1870. Thereafter he spent his winters in Boston and his summers in the rural quiet of his home in Royalton, Vt. He was born in Byfield, Mass., July 12, 1807, to Lt. Moses and Lois (Pike) Stickney, and died Aug. 19, 1894. His children were Anna Elizabeth Gray, born Aug. 12, 1843; William Brunswick Curry, born Jan. 16, 1845; Henry Stover, born March 25, 1849; Agnes Mary Palmer, born Oct. 5, 1851; and Cornelia Loring, born Aug. 14, 1861. Of these children only two are living, William a lawyer in Bethel and Cornelia a music teacher in Royalton, Vermont.

ess, New York, is his daughter, and he has two sons, lawyers in New York and Boston.

ASA FOWLER.

Asa Fowler, A. B., succeeded Mr. Sanborn. He opened the fall term of 1833, Wednesday, September 4th. He had just taken his diploma at Dartmouth. Dr. Nathan Lord, President of the college, thus recommended him: "Mr. Fowler stands in the foremost rank of scholars, is a man of very unexceptionable morality and of great industry and fidelity." He was principal here a single term.

Mr. Fowler was the ninth child in a family of eleven, and was born in Pembroke, N. H., Feb. 23, 1811. He married July 13, 1837, Mary Dole Cilley Knox of Epsom, who died Oct. 11, 1882. At the age of fourteen he was stricken with typhoid fever. Afterwards he attended Blanchard Academy, then in charge of Hon. John Vose, where he fitted for a teacher in the common schools. He worked alternately on the farm and in school. He studied Latin sixty weeks, and entered the sophomore class in Dartmouth College, where he graduated, in 1833, in the first third of his class. He was never absent from, nor unprepared at, any recitation during his 3 years' course. After teaching here, he studied law with James Sullivan, Pembroke, through the winter, and in March, 1834, entered the law-office of Hon. Charles H. Peaselee, Concord, as student. He was admitted to the bar in 1837; was elected clerk of the N. H. Senate in 1835, and had six successive elections; was U. S. commissioner of the district of N. H., from 1846; was member of the N. H. House of Representatives 1845-7-8, and chairman of the judiciary committee; was an independent Democratic nominee for governor in 1855; was associate justice of Supreme Court from Aug. 1, 1855 to Feb. 1, 1861, when he resigned; was delegate to the famous Peace Congress, at Washington, 1861; was law-partner of President Pierce from Sept., 1838, to April, 1845, and later of Wm. E. Chandler. He has drafted more bills for the legislature than any other man living or dead. In Oct., 1888, his children, William P., of Boston, and Clara M. Fowler presented to the city of Concord, N. H., a public library building as a memorial of their parent. The total cost of the gift was $25,000.

ALFRED WASHINGTON PIKE.

Alfred W. Pike succeeded to the principalship Dec. 3, 1834. The public announcements of this school had hitherto been made over the signature of the proprietors' secretary; but now over the signature of Mr. Pike, as if he had hired the property of the proprietors, and purposed to make the school completely his own. He removed his family into town in November, 1834, from Boston, where he had been keeping a private school. He was taxed here in 1835.

Prof. Pike was a farmer's son, born in Rowley, March 21, 1791, to Joseph and Lois (Tenney) Pike. He graduated at Dartmouth in 1815, and adopted the teacher's profession. He taught classical schools and fitted young men for college, in Newburyport, Framingham, Woburn, Rowley, Boston, and brought to this school a ripe experience of more than twenty years. Under his tuition the school might have flourished long, but for a libel suit versus Beals and Green of the Boston Post. The Standing Committee of the proprietors—N. Cleaveland, Jacob Towne, Moses Wildes, R. A. Merriam, James F. McEwen, Nathaniel Perley, Jeremiah Stone—did all in their power to save the man and sustain the good name of the Academy, but merely nominal damages were not enough to disabuse the public mind, and Mr. Pike left shortly after the fall term of 1835. He died in Boston Sept. 6, 1860, at the age of sixty-nine years.—See further, Geo. T. Chapman's Alumni of Dartmouth College.

MISS ANNA SEARLE.

Miss Searle taught sometime between the principalships of Professors Pike and Greenleaf. She had taught a private school in Georgetown, D. C., for eighteen or twenty years, and brought to the Academy a ripe experience, eminent qualifications, and a noble Christian character and influence. She taught a full term, and no longer. She had "about fifteen pupils," says Mrs. Sarah A. Jenness, of Beverly, "of whom I was one. Mrs. Esther W. Hutchings, of Topsfield was another. Miss Searle boarded with Mrs. Susannah Cummings, sister of Moses Wildes, whose daughter Susan Cummings married Rev. Martin Moore, of Charlestown.

Mass." Mrs. Jenness continues: "Miss Searle was a lady of culture and intellectual superiority, and a conscientious Christian. Her intellectual and moral instruction was enduring. Her ability was not appreciated by the people."

Miss Searle taught, it is understood, in Newburyport early in her life. Mr. Isaac Wheelwright, a native of Newburyport, who studied for the ministry, and afterwards was an eminent teacher in South America and who died two years ago, at the advanced age of ninety-two years, attended her school there and thought a great deal of her as a teacher. Her oldest brother's first settlement in the gospel ministry, it is said, was in Virginia, and probably one led the other into that section. She left her school in Georgetown, to visit her father in his old age and sickness, intending, in due time, to return to the school; but her own health was failing, and, listening to the expressed wishes of her relatives and friends, she decided to make the home of her youth the abode of her declining years.

During this period, writes Mr. E. P. Searle, of Byfield, "Aunt Ann taught in the old Emerson Seminary, in Byfield, one or two years, a year or more in West Newbury, a town school near the Byfield Depot, and a winter term in her home district." He writes further: "She was a lady of stirring character, of strong religious faith, pleasant and good in all her ways." Mrs. Sarah H. Todd, of Rowley, her niece, writes: "She was a devoted Christian, and a lady of intelligence and refinement. She taught a Sunday school of colored children in Georgetown, D. C."

Her parental home was the Searle corner, near the site of the ancient Tenney grist-mill, and of the present Dummer saw-mill, in Rowley-Byfield. Her parents were Joseph, Jr., and Molly Searle. She had a sister Ruthy, born March, 23, 1784; and brothers: Thomas Colman, born Jan. 15, 1787; Joseph, 3d, born Dec. 2, 1789; Caleb, born May 21, 1792; and Moses C[olman], who was supplying the Byfield pulpit when he died. Thomas went to Madison, Ind., a six weeks journey at that time, and was settled three years over the first church gathered there, and died there leaving a wife and two children, who have now passed away. Mr. E. P. Searle never heard of his abode or labors in Virginia. Joseph Caleb was a butcher whom the old people now remember as a marketman from Byfield to Salem twice a week. Anna was born Nov. 1, 1783. Where she was educated is not known. Her Christian methods in school suggest a training in the old Emerson Female Seminary in Byfield; but Rev. Joseph Emerson, buying the church edifice and remodeling it, opened his school in 1818, about the time Miss Searle began her labors at the national capital. She never married. Fourteen days before her death, she had a shock of palsy, dying June 11, 1841, in the house wherein she was born.

CHAPTER III.

BENJAMIN GREENLEAF AND HIS SUCCESSORS,
ASA FARWELL, WILLIAM F. KENT, EDMUND F. SLAFTER, BURTON O. MARBLE, DANIEL O. QUINBY, JOSEPH
H. NOYES, AND KINSMAN ATKINSON.

The last record that we find of the meeting of the Essex County Teachers' Association at this place, is dated Dec. 1 and 2, 1835. The Association's meeting in 1837 was held Dec. 4 and 5, in the Court House at Ipswich. An advertisement dated May 5, 1837, reads: "Six small boys or girls may receive board, tuition and parental care in the family of the subscriber, James F. McEwen." By a pamphlet catalogue, 1839-40, Mr. Greenleaf taught the fall term and Mr. Farwell the spring and summer terms. It is inferred from these records that the Academy may have been discontinued two or three years from the time when Mr. Pike left.

However that may be, the proprietors chose an attractive name to open the "Second Summer term of 1839." Richard Phillips, as the proprietors' secretary, advertised it for July 24, "under the care of Benjamin Greenleaf, Esq.," and gave as references: Rev. James F. McEwen, Charles H. Holmes, Esq., Joseph C. Batchelder, M. D. No teacher was better known in the county or enjoyed a better reputation as a thorough, practical, and successful instructor. Mr. Greenleaf was a graduate of Dartmouth College, in 1813, and had been twenty-two years principal of the Bradford Academy, taking it with ten students and leaving it with one hundred fifty, and an enviable national reputation. While principal here, Mr. Greenleaf accomplished considerable upon that series of arithmetics which has made his name familiar throughout the land—especially the Common School Arithmetic, which has been imitated so much, but neither excelled nor even equalled.

Some three or four months before his death, which occurred Oct. 29, 1864, when he was 78 years old, the writer visited him. He was genial and busy as ever. A large ribbon-box from a fancy goods store contained the manuscript of his last book—a practical surveying—nearly completed. He lived in his loved employ, and was oblivious to all else. He had arranged a new multiplication table: "1 1-2 times 1 1-2 are 2 1-4; 1 1-2 times 2 1-2 are 3 3-4; 1 1-2 times 3 1-2 are 5 1-4, etc." This he repeated with as much ease as an ordinary school-boy would say, "Twice 2 are 4; twice 3 are 6; twice 4 are 8, etc." From every round of the mathematical ladder he would rehearse definition and rule with an accuracy and rapidity that would distance and surprise the most thorough collegiate. He spoke of Dr. Adams and his arithmetic, of Warren Colburn and his "Colburns"—of Adams with great respect and esteem, of Colburn with admiration. He gave his visitor two photographs—one of himself and one of Dr. Adams—and they are among the writer's choicest souvenirs.

The winter term began December 4th, and continued eighteen weeks. Joseph E. Bomer, who was many years a skillful physician at Ipswich, was a pupil, the term which began April 15th and closed November 5th.

Another pupil, Mr. E. R. Perkins of Salem, writes, that Mr. Greenleaf taught two terms, beginning in April and ending in October, 1839, and adds: "I attended his first term; the school numbered sixty scholars, of all grades and ages, from ten years to twenty-five; his nephew Moses P. Greenleaf, of Haverhill, assisted in the lower grades. Mr. Greenleaf was a rather nervous man; at times very active; and his clear, ringing voice would make the old academy ring when a boy forgot to behave. He had a habit of smoothing down a boy's face heavily with his palm, if the boy was caught whispering. He always opened school with prayer and used the same one continually, full half the time scanning every desk with his keen eyes. He used his own arithmetic, and boys asking assistance he delighted to put off with a cunning smile on his face, and the kindly injunction: 'Puzzle it out.'"

Mrs. Ellen F. (Kimball) Morgan writes as follows: "By a mere chance, I found among some old papers an original catalogue of the Academy, issued in 1840, by that celebrated mathematician, Benjamin Greenleaf, A. M., who was principal in the fall term of that year, and Asa Farwell, A. B., principal of the winter and summer terms. The number of students was—gentlemen 58, and ladies 46. One of the gentlemen was Geronimo Sigaroly, from St. Jago, Cuba. Can any of those who attended school at the time give any information in regard to the Spanish student, who drifted into this quiet village from that fair island of the tropics? In comparing the old catalogue with those of 1857 and '58, by Profs. Healy and Allis, I find nearly the same inducements, as healthfulness of locality, over-sight of students, and other minor items, but the course of study suffers, in comparison, not so much in the classical department as in the English. We never found a more puzzling, yet practical arithmetic than Mr. Greenleaf's. His algebra was used extensively in the schools at a later date. The curriculum was narrow in other respects, when compared with the branches taught from 1855 to 1859."

After leaving this institution, he conducted the Bradford Teacher's Seminary, which was doubtless suggested by the discussions of the Essex County Teachers' Association, of which he was one of the founders.

The wisdom of the proprietors of the school to employ Mr. Greenleaf became apparent. He established its old-time reputation, the old grounds re-echoed with the voices of many students, and the halls were devoted to patient study. It became an attraction alike to scholars and teachers of character and ability.

ASA FARWELL.

Mr. Greenleaf was succeeded by Asa Farwell, A. B. J. C. Batchelder, Secretary, March 7, 1840, announced the next term of the school to begin April 15, 1840, under the care of "the present Principal, Mr. Asa Farwell, A. B." He began the preceding winter term.

Mr. E. R. Perkins, of Salem, one of his pupils, wrote: "He was admired by his scholars, as a teacher and a gentleman." Mr. Thomas K. Leach, of Topsfield, said: "He was a fine man and an excellent teacher." Rev. Calvin E. Park, of West Boxford, wrote: "He was held in high estimation both as to talents and character."

"Asa Farwell," wrote his widow from Easthampton, "taught at Topsfield one year—1840-1. He was born to Gurdon and Anna (Farnsworth) Farwell, in Dorset, Vt., March 8, 1812. He fitted for college under his pastor, Rev. William Jackson, D. D., at Dorset, and at Burr Seminary, Manchester, Vt. He graduated at Middlebury College, 1838, and at Andover Theological Seminary in 1842. He was approbated to preach by the Andover Association, in the spring of that year. From May, 1842, to Nov., 1853, he was principal of Abbot Academy, Andover. He traveled in Europe during a portion of 1849-50. He was ordained April 12, 1853, and installed pastor of the Congregational church, in West Haverhill, and dismissed in 1856. He preached in Bentonport, on the Des Moines, Iowa, from 1866 to 1871, when he went to Ashland, 24 miles from Lincoln, Nebraska. In 1877, he became professor in Doane College, Crete, Nebraska. In 1881, he returned, in ill health, to Dorset, and in 1882 retired to Ludlow, where his son, Charles Gurdon Farwell, was principal of Black River Academy. He died suddenly, of paralysis of the heart, May 14, 1888, in his 77th year.

"There have doubtless been many men of more showy, and among a large class of people of more popular, talent than he; but for sound scholarship and solid good sense, for clear and scriptural views of evangelical faith, for sincere and devoted piety, for honest and faithful service as a minister, very few men have excelled him."

His first wife was Hannah Sexton, of Windsor, Ct., who was married Dec. 10, 1845, and died Sept. 4, 1848. His second wife was her sister Mary Ann Sexton, who was married Aug. 10, 1849, and with four sons of his six children survives him.

WILLIAM FAYETTE KENT.

William Fayette Kent followed Prof. Farwell. He was born in Dorset, Vt., in July, 1820, and graduated at Middlebury College, in 1839. He was principal of Bennington Academy, 1839-40, and probably taught here next; he was taxed here, as was Mr. Farwell, in 1841. He taught nearly two terms. He was a very pleasant man and teacher, but was reading law at the time and paid more attention to his illustrious namesake and Blackstone than to his school. The inevitable result followed. He left the school before the timely ending of the term. It is said he read law in Salem. For some years he was a mercantile agent in the West and South. In 1851, he resided in Zanesville, O. He died in 1856—probably in St. Louis, Mo. He was an energetic man, a fine scholar, and a brilliant speaker. He delivered an oration at a Fourth of July celebration in Topsfield, and Hon. Asahel Huntington, Otis P. Lord, Esq., (afterwards Judge Lord) and Secretary Crowninshield of the U. S. Navy, were some of the dignitaries who graced the occasion.

Mr. Humphrey Balch, of Topsfield, very highly complimented his effort on that occasion, in giving us some account of the celebration, and Mr. E. R. Perkins wrote: "He was a fine orator. His oration was an eloquent production and was widely commented upon and praised."

EDMUND FARWELL SLAFTER.

Mr. Slafter was principal of the Academy one year, he says, beginning in the autumn of 1841, and ending with the summer term of 1842. He was born May 30, 1816, and graduated at Dartmouth in 1840. "As a teacher, he was liked very well," wrote one of his pupils. He has gained celebrity in the pulpit, and is widely known as an archæologist, whose authority is in high repute. He was ordained by the Rt. Rev. Manton Eastburne, D. D., July 12, 1844; was Rector of St. Peter's church, Cambridge, two years; of St. John's, Jamaica Plain, 1846-53; was superintendent in the American Bible Society of the Protestant Episcopal church, twenty years; is a member of the Mass. Historical Society; Royal Historical Society of England; president of the Prince Society, and has been a member of its council from its organization in 1858; is registrar of the Diocese of Massachusetts, and has issued six annual reports; and is corresponding secretary of the Mass. Bible Society and chairman of its prudential committee. He has numerous publications: Death of

The first part of the book is devoted to a general survey of the history of the world, from the beginning of time to the present day. The author discusses the various stages of human development, from the earliest forms of life to the modern era. He also examines the different civilizations that have arisen throughout history, and the factors that have influenced their growth and decline. The second part of the book is a detailed account of the events of the last few centuries, from the Renaissance to the present. The author describes the various revolutions, wars, and social movements that have shaped the modern world. He also discusses the current state of the world, and the challenges that it faces.

The third part of the book is a collection of essays on various subjects, including politics, economics, and philosophy. The author discusses the different theories of government, and the factors that influence the development of a nation. He also examines the various economic systems, and the problems that they face. Finally, he discusses the different schools of thought in philosophy, and the questions that they raise about the nature of reality and the human mind.

The fourth part of the book is a collection of stories and poems. The author describes the lives of various people, and the events that have shaped their destinies. He also discusses the different types of literature, and the ways in which they have been used to entertain and educate people. Finally, he discusses the importance of art and culture in society, and the ways in which they can be used to improve the human condition.

The fifth part of the book is a collection of essays on various subjects, including science, technology, and the environment. The author discusses the different theories of science, and the ways in which they have been used to understand the natural world. He also examines the various technological advances, and the problems that they have created. Finally, he discusses the importance of the environment, and the ways in which we can protect it for future generations.

The sixth part of the book is a collection of essays on various subjects, including religion, ethics, and the future of humanity. The author discusses the different religions, and the ways in which they have influenced human thought and behavior. He also examines the various ethical theories, and the questions that they raise about the right and wrong ways to live. Finally, he discusses the future of humanity, and the challenges that we face as we move forward into the unknown.

Gen. Zachary Taylor; Planting and Growth of Episcopal Church; Slafter Genealogy; Assassination Plot of 1776; Charter of Norwich, Vt.; Vermont Coinage; Anniversary of the Historic-Genealogical Society; Copper Coinage, 1632; Pre-historic Copper Implements; Voyages of the Norsemen; Voyages of Champlain; Incorrect Latitudes, 1535-1740; Royal Arms, Emblems, Memorials; Norman Discovery of America; making 17 volumes in all. He now resides in Boston, at the age of 83 years.

Joseph Edward Bomer was an assistant to Mr. Slafter. Mrs. S. A. Jenness, of Beverly, writes, that young Bomer was a member of the Academy in 1839, when Mr. Greenleaf taught. She was a student at the time. She speaks in praise of young Bomer's perseverance. He walked to the Academy from Wenham daily. He began to teach in the winter of 1839 (in Hamilton, she thinks) and was recommended by Mr. Greenleaf. His first school was a great success.

Assistant Bomer was born in Beverly March 14, 1819, the fifth son in a family of nine children. His father, John S. Bomer, was a farmer, and of French descent. Joseph inherited a delicate constitution; he was fond of books; and was devoted to intellectual pursuits. He was a student under the tuition of Prof. Slafter, who became very much attached to him, and later on engaged him as assistant. Mr. Slafter, under date of Nov. 10, 1842, thus commended him:—

"This may certify that Mr. Joseph E. Bomer has been a member of this institution seven months, has made good attainments in study, is a young man of great perseverance and of good promise. He possesses an unimpeachable moral character, is dignified and courteous in his manners and worthy the highest esteem. He has read under my tuition several of Cicero's orations, and a part of the Æneid of Virgil; likewise the introductory exercises, the fables, and 120 paragraphs of Jacob's Greek Reader; also Day's Algebra as far as infinitesimals, working all the problems. He has been a successful teacher, and I can most cheerfully recommend him as being well qualified to instruct in any town school agreeably to the laws of any of the New England States."

He afterwards studied in Phillips Exeter and Phillips Andover Academies and Harvard Medical School, graduating from the latter in 1848. In 1849, he settled in Ipswich. He located near the residence of Dr. Thomas Manning, the oldest and most skillful physician in the town. Dr. Bomer married Caroline Elizabeth Hayes, daughter of Daniel Hayes, of Gloucester (who now resides in Ipswich), Oct. 23, 1850, and soon after, Dr. Manning, feeling the burden of his age and profession, invited the young doctor to reside with him and assume his practice. The offer was accepted and they lived in reciprocal confidence to the end. Dr. Bomer was physician to the House of Correction till his death, examining surgeon during the Rebellion, and member of the school board many years. He was one of the founders of the Episcopal Church and society and an earnest supporter of them. "A beautiful memorial window was placed in the chancel of the church, by Rev. Dr. John Cotton Smith, as a sacred memorial of his love and devotion to the church." He was a genial, sympathetic, Christian gentleman, and was eminently a public spirited citizen, and foremost in all works of public utility. He died in Ipswich, Sept. 11, 1864, aged forty-five years.

BURTON ONESIPHORUS MARBLE.

Mr. Marble was taxed in Topsfield in 1844, and by that fact we understand he taught the Academy during the spring term of that year. Mr. E. R. Perkins, of Salem, says, Mr. Marble began with the fall term of 1843 and taught through the winter and spring, but is not sure that he taught the following summer. He was born in Bradford, Feb. 27, 1812, and graduated at Dartmouth College, 1838, dying at Dover, N. H., July 12, 1845, says Chapman's Dartmouth Alumni.

Mr. Perkins continues: "He was very sober, stiff, sedate; and was a very thorough teacher—he was thorough in everything he taught; the lessons assigned were exactly defined and to be thoroughly learned—it had to be done. He allowed no whispering. It was the stillest school I was ever in. Each scholar had to keep a record of his daily work—of his errors and whispers. When a question was missed, he would say, 'You will please record an error.' The records were examined once a week. He was a teacher to be respected."

DANIEL OSGOOD QUINBY.

Prof. Quinby was taxed in Topsfield in 1845, and it is inferred from that fact, that he taught the spring or summer term of that year. His service ended with the summer term in June, 1846. A correspondent writes: "Some thought he was too familiar with his scholars; he liked to play foot-ball with them, and was fond of athletic sports. At the close of the last term, he announced to the school, when the next term would begin. The old bell rang the call but he never responded."

Mr. Quinby was born in Amesbury, Dec. 21, 1821. His parents were Capt. Robert and Abigail, who owned large farming interests. His mother was a daughter of Orlando Sargent. She was a sister of Mrs. Sally Weed, who was 100 years old, Jan. 28, 1898, and is now living in Merrimac. Her younger brother Francis, was of the firm of Francis Sargent & Co., carriage manufacturers, Boston.

Daniel Quinby attended Dummer Academy five years, under the tuition of Master Nehemiah Cleaveland. Joseph H. Noyes, the next principal of the Topsfield Academy, was a classmate. Mr. Quinby graduated at Bowdoin College in 1839. In his class were the late Judge Choate of Salem, Hon. William D. Northend, also of Salem, and W. W. Caldwell, of Newburyport.

Directly after graduation and while a law-student, he taught school two years in Maine. Then returning home to Amesbury, he sought and obtained the principalship of the Topsfield Academy. The office, however, not proving sufficiently remunerative, he resigned at the end of the school year, June, 1846.

After leaving the Academy, he was engaged, as teacher, in Watertown, Mass.; High school, Dover, N. H.; Norwich Academy, Ct.; Union-Hall Academy, Jamaica, L. I.; and was sometime professor of chemistry in New York City. During the last dozen years of his life, he was engaged in a proprietary medicine business.

Mr. Quinby married, Nov. 25, 1859, Miss Clara Belle

Moulton, sister of H. W. Moulton, Esq., of Newburyport, and had five children, four of whom died in infancy. His eldest child was a lady of great promise, residing, at the age of twenty-one (1890), in Paterson, N. J. Mrs. Quinby died in Boston, Nov. 30, 1882 at the age of fifty-six years. Mr. Quinby died of paralysis of the brain, in Haverhill, Mass., at the home of his brother, Thomas W. Quinby, Dec. 23, 1894, at the age of seventy-three years and a day. The remains of all his dead repose in the Belleville Cemetery, Newburyport, near the old Amesbury cemetery where lies the ashes of their ancestors for the last two hundred and forty-six years.

JOSEPH HALE NOYES.

Mr. Noyes taught three terms in the year 1846, beginning in March or April. He was born in Byfield Parish, Newbury, May 12, 1825, to Dea. Daniel and Mary Hale (Parish) Noyes, who was a daughter of Rev. Elijah Parish, distinguished in clerical circles throughout the state, as author and preacher. The family comprised eight sons and two daughters.

Joseph was educated at Dummer Academy, and was probably admitted there at an earlier age than any other pupil. He was reading Greek when only ten years old. He never entered college, but was under private tutors, at Dummer, an equivalent of two years in college.

He began life as teacher at the age of eighteen years. He taught the Feoffee's school at Ipswich with marked success, and was called to the Purchase Street school, then to the Jackman school, Newburyport. Leaving Topsfield, he was elected principal of the High school in Brattleboro, Vt., and after that service had charge of High schools in Malden, Wellesley, and Marblehead, and made an honorable record in Medford, Dedham, and Newton. One of his Topsfield students writes: "He was liked very well as a teacher; he was a very handsome man; a good penman, and taught a writing-school evenings, during the winter term." Bowdoin College conferred upon him, July 13, 1871, an honorary A. M., in recognition of his standing as a classical teacher. The honor was not sought by him, and came as a surprise.

When I was at the college, I was very much interested in the study of the history of the United States, and I was particularly fond of reading the works of the great historians of that country. I was also very much interested in the study of the natural history of the United States, and I was particularly fond of reading the works of the great naturalists of that country. I was also very much interested in the study of the political history of the United States, and I was particularly fond of reading the works of the great political writers of that country.

The state of his health compelled his retirement in 1884, after a school service of more than forty years; when he returned to Newburyport, and engaged in the far less irksome duties of book-keeper and cashier for W. H. Noyes & Brother. He was prominent in church circles, and for seven years was superintendent of the "Old South" Sunday school.

Mr. Noyes married, in Newbury-Byfield, Dec. 1, 1853, Miss Abby Maria Young, who was born in Newburyport, July 28, 1828, to Abigail Tenney and James Young, a grocer and trader. She died, in Newburyport, Jan. 4, 1871. He married, second, in Worcester, Dec. 29, 1874, Mary Elizabeth Moore, who was born there April 13, 1839, to Mary Fuller and Wm. G. Moore, a farmer. Prof. Noyes died Sept. 25, 1896, in his 72nd year. He had four children: twin sons, born April 26, 1857, who died less than a week old—Abbie Parish, born in Newburyport, Aug. 28, 1861; married Sept. 12, 1893, in Newburyport, Samuel Foster Jaques, a civil-engineer, who was born there, Nov. 29, 1865, to Rachel Ann Foster and Edmund Jaques, a mill-overseer; lives in Hyde Park, having one child, Mildred Noyes, born in Brockton, Sept. 29, 1895—James Young, living in Dedham, born in Newburyport, March 7, 1865; married in Dedham, Oct. 11, 1894, Ada Withington Bigelow, who was born in West Boylston, May 22, 1864, to Maria Elizabeth Fuller and Henry Clay Bigelow. Both father and son are engaged in the insurance business.

KINSMAN ATKINSON.

Rev. Kinsman Atkinson taught one term of eleven weeks in the fall of 1849. His tuition bills, written on paper  $3\frac{7}{8}$  by 2 inches, are dated Nov. 12th, which was the end of the term, and show that tuition in common branches was three dollars.

Mr. Atkinson at the time was pastor of the local Methodist Episcopal Church and continued there two years. During the pastorate he also taught the Linebrook (Ipswich) winter school (1848-9) and the Topsfield North winter school (1849-50). While pastor of this church, he bought land for a parsonage; he then circulated a paper himself for funds for the house; he then collected the money and built the house; and lastly presented the parsonage to the trustees of the society. He was known as a man of great energy, quick to discover a need and alert to supply it, and is remembered with gratitude and great respect.

Mr. Atkinson was born at Buxton, Me., to John and Olive (Haley) Atkinson, Oct. 16, 1807; and died at Cambridge, Mass., Dec. 23, 1888. He was one of twelve children; at six years, removing with his parents to Eaton, N. H. In 1825, he studied at Fryeburg Academy, Me.; in 1826, at Atkinson Academy, N. H., and that year taught in Wenham. He finished his preparation for college at Phillips (Andover) Academy, and entered Bowdoin College in 1831; he joined the junior class in Harvard in 1833, where he graduated in 1834. He studied divinity (as it used to be called) at Andover, and Dr. Leonard Woods, professor in the institution, paid him the high tribute: "Kinsman Atkinson is a young man of refined feelings, ardent piety, and the best scholar in his class." He was ordained a Congregationalist in 1838, but after five years service, changed his views of church government and joined the M. E. church. From 1858 to 1860, he was a supernumerary and after 1861 superannuate, when he made Cambridge his home. His neighbors said of him: "He always aims to do right"; others say, "We are convinced that he loved the Lord with all his might, mind, and strength, and his neighbors as himself."

JESSE ALLISON WILKINS.

Mr. Wilkins taught the Academy, the spring and summer terms of 1850, teaching the Topsfield Center Grammar school the preceding winter and the one following.

He was born at Middleton, Mass., Sept. 10, 1830, the eighth child and fourth son in a family of thirteen children. His parents were James Wilder and Betsey (Smith) Wilkins. His mother was a devout Christian and helpful in church and society. His father was a farmer, who made home happy, his lands productive, and was held in excellent repute among his people, so that he practiced almost every office in their gift. In his seventy-sixth year he was elected to represent his district in the state legislature.

Jesse Wilkins attended the public school of his town, and

The first thing I noticed when I stepped out of the plane was the cold, crisp air. It was a relief after the warm, humid air of the tropics. I looked around and saw a vast, open landscape stretching out before me. The ground was a mix of brown and green, with patches of dry grass and small, scattered trees. In the distance, I could see a range of mountains, their peaks shrouded in a light mist. The sky was a pale blue, with a few wispy clouds scattered across it. I felt a sense of awe and wonder at the beauty of the natural world. I had heard that the landscape was beautiful, but I didn't realize just how breathtaking it would be. I took a deep breath and felt the cool air fill my lungs. I knew that this was a special moment, one that I would never forget. I looked down at my feet and saw the rough, uneven ground beneath me. I felt a sense of adventure and excitement as I stepped forward, knowing that I was about to embark on a journey that would change my life.

during his twelfth summer the Topsfield Academy, under the patronage of his uncle Dr. George Sawyer, of Boxford, who boarded him and paid his tuition. His father gave him "his time" when he was fifteen years of age. He assumed his middle name. His first business was an employing shoemaker. While thus engaged, he experienced a change of heart, which changed his life purpose and labor.

He began to prepare for the teacher's vocation in the spring of 1846, at the Normal Academy, Westfield. He studied afterwards at Williston Seminary, Easthampton, where he finished his English course. In the spring of 1851, he entered the classical department of Phillips (Andover) Academy. From that time his course was frequently interrupted by the want of funds, and he was obliged to have recourse to his English attainments in the practice of archery. "Teaching the young idea how to shoot." How long he studied at Andover is unknown to me, he was, however, a member of the junior and middle classes. The spring and fall of 1853, he attended Phillips (Exeter) Academy.

His first school was in Beverly, the winter of 1847-8. He taught four grammar schools in Gloucester—two successive winters at Riverdale, Haskell district; then the Harbor winter school; then the Point school, and afterwards the principal grammar school at the Harbor. He was next elected to the principal school in Newbury, then to the South grammar school in Beverly, where he remained several terms—till he resolved to relinquish the profession in 1854. In 1855, he resumed his classical studies in the private school of Rev. Dr. Luther Wright, Easthampton, the first principal of Williston Seminary. The school was closed at the end of his second term, and he entered the family school of Rev. Edward Root of Williamsburg, the winter of 1856. Mr. Root accepted a call to Springfield, Ohio, and his student accepted the tuition of Rev. Dr. Gerdon Hall, Northampton. He completed his classical studies with Prof. Calvin Stone, at Andover, during the long summer vacation of 1857, and that fall entered Andover Theological Seminary. Owing to a protracted sickness, he did not graduate until 1861.

He was licensed to preach by the Essex South Association of Ministers, March 5th, 1860., Dr. J. E. Dwinell, moderator. He has had four pastorates: the First Congregational Church, Hubbardston, Mass., 1861 and 2; First Congregational Church, Woodstock, Conn., 1864 and 5; the United Churches, Chesterfield, Mass., 1867 and 8; and the First Congregational Church, North Scituate, R. I., 1868 and 9.

He continued in the ministry, till the spring of 1871, when he was completely broken by nervous prostration. Repeated efforts to recuperate proved unavailing, and he sought the open air, an active pursuit, a quieter and less exacting life, and became an independent farmer. He located in Woodstock, Conn.; his health is precarious, but he is able most of the time to attend to the duties of his farm.

CHAPTER IV.

THE PERIOD OF GREATEST ACTIVITY.

GEORGE CONANT AND J. W. HEALY.

Israel Rea and Benjamin P. Adams were chiefly instrumental in the reopening of the Academy under the tuition of Mr. George Conant, in 1852. Tuition bills are extant, dated June 29, and Oct. 5, 1852, and July 7, and Oct. 5, 1853. The first term of 1853, began Jan. 19, and continued twelve weeks. Miss Lovering was preceptress in 1852, and Miss S. F. Nichols and Miss Mary Anne Friend of Georgetown in 1853.

The school prospered greatly under Mr. Conant. Its old-time reputation and activity returned. There were the Debating Club, the Young Men's League, and dramatic exhibitions, which excited great local interest and much favorable comment. The debates were participated in by the citizens as if they were students again. The interests of school and people seemed identical, and all gained pleasure and profit. Mr. Conant was apt in his management of the school, in his methods of teaching, and in his planning and conducting the public exhibitions. Miss Nichols was an accomplished scholar and belonged to a prominent family in Lowell. She was a recent graduate. Miss Lovering was much older and was employed more as a music teacher than as a teacher of general branches. Miss Friend whom he married in the fall of 1853, was daughter of John Friend and born in Andover, in 1829. She was reared in Boxford, and taught school in Georgetown. Her writings, both prose and verse "were much admired."

Miss Friend became his wife in the fall of 1853, before his last term. She taught with him about twenty-nine years, and died very suddenly in Alexandria, N. Y. After leaving Topsfield they were principal and preceptress of Hanover Academy, Plymouth County, after which they removed to Ohio, where they taught seventeen years. He was superintendent of schools and she taught in the High school. They afterward taught successively in Kenosha, Wis., Buffalo, N. Y., and Aurora, near Buffalo, for seven years.

Mr. Conant was born at Provincetown, Mass., May 8, 1827. His father was Rufus Conant, a merchant in Sandwich for thirty years. He was educated mainly by himself, attending an academy only a few terms. While he lived at Lyme, N. H.—a few years about 1840-45—he was a playmate with Judge C. C. Conant, now of Greenfield, Mass. By a sad accident he lost an eye when a small child. He was a fine scholar, medium height, and blue-eyed. He had a younger brother Rufus, who was of Farnsworth & Conant, lawyers, Court st., Boston, and who died March 17, 1880, leaving a widow, who now resides at Brookline.

Mr. Conant has furnished us with the following very modest yet pleasing account of himself:—

"I taught my first school in the wilds of New Hampshire, in the winter of '43 and '44. I was then between 16 and 17 years of age. Six inches of snow lay on the ground the day I opened school, Oct. 22; and it never fully left the ground during the sixteen weeks of the session. I received two dollars a week and "boarded round." The good mothers put the schoolmaster in the best room and bed, without a fire, ice and frost often sparkling in the candle-light on the walls. He thawed out the icy sheets with his warm young blood, and was ready to rise and enjoy a solid breakfast with the family before daylight. Often the snow was so deep and the distance to the school-house so great, that the big sled used for hauling wood was turned over, five or six rollicking girls and boys piled on with their well-filled dinner pails, a yoke of oxen hitched on, and with the snow up to the horned animals noses, they ploughed their slow cold way to the school-house amid the pranks and laughter of the living freight.

Fifty years afterward exactly, I visited that neighborhood, hunted for some relic of the "little red school house", but did not only fail to find some reminder of the old building, but had difficulty even in locating the site; for trees a foot in diameter stood where I a-half-century before, had "wielded the birch." In my poem entitled "The District School of Fifty Years Ago," I find the following lines on "Boarding Round."

The contract with each teacher then
Was "so much a month and found ;"
The finding in those early days
Was known as "Boarding Round."

How oft the "Master" wished he'd never Had a calling so renowned,
Made to sit in the chimney corner,
A kind of oracle "Boarding Round."

Six hours labor in the school-room,
Ten hours in the grind-stone ground !
What a place to practice patience,
As he went circling, "Boarding Round."

He must have iron-clad "digesters,"
He must feelings never wound,
And be a walking cyclopedia
In every house, while "Boarding Round."

Obliged to smile and pet the peevish,
Whom 'twould have suited him to pound,
He had to flatter all the mothers,
Or else he couldn't "Board Around."

Called to sing when he'd be sighing,
And as a victim to be crowned ;
Not with plaudits but with outcries,
"Awful nice" 'twas, "Boarding Round !"

Many a "school-marm" of that old-time,
Was like a pack-horse broken down,
Carrying loads by day and night-time,
As she plodded "Boarding Round."

Perfumed by the kitchen frying,
Stunned by noises as she frowned,
Frozen in the icy bed-rooms,
"Awful nice" 'twas, "Boarding Round !"

Yet teachers' places ne'er went begging,
Two dollars weekly, the teacher found,
No rest or surcease for the weary,
Yet awful nice 'twas, "Boarding Round!"

Before I commenced on annual school-work I had taught five winter schools: in Lyme and Nashua, N. H.; in Marion, Melrose, and Westport Point, Mass. The first yearly position was at Westport Point, and the second at Fall River, Mass. Then I took charge of Topsfield Academy for two years. Without specifying other fields of labor, I will say in brief, I was six years as Principal in annual schools, seventeen years as superintendent of City schools, and nineteen years as Principal of Academies.

Miss Mary Anne Friend, of Georgetown, was my last assistant in Topsfield. She became my wife in 1853 and taught with me twenty-nine years. She was an accomplished and thorough teacher, a writer and a poet. She excelled as a mathematician and teacher of Latin and French. She could shower figures on the black-board with either hand, and at times cipher with both hands at a time, an accomplishment seldom witnessed. She died suddenly of heart disease in Alexandria, N. Y., Feb. 18, 1883. I have for the past five years resided in Pasadena, California, and expect to make it my permanent home. I gave up teaching in 1892, having been in the school-room nearly forty-five years."

Mr. Conant is a member of the Southern California Academy of Science. He travels extensively, and is correspondent for the State Press Association of California.

JOSEPH WARREN HEALY.

J. W. Healy, A. B., succeeded Mr. Conant. He began with the summer term of 1854, and bought the property the next following vacation. His wife, Mrs. Jane C. Healy, was preceptress. He employed as his assistants, men of strong character and excellent scholarship. In 1855-6 H. J. Richardson, A. B., assisted in mathematics and natural sciences; A. J. Pike, A. B., followed him. Prof. C. P. Bronson lectured on physiology and elocution, and Prof. A. P. Shattuck taught penmanship. Among his assistant pupils were Daniel Wil-kings in mathematics; A. B. Coffin and G. L. R. Gleason in vocal music; Nelson Spöfford and Susan E. Perley in English branches.

Mr. Healy's first term numbered fifty scholars; the second, sixty-nine; the third, or winter (1854-5), seventy-two; the spring, one hundred and two. During 1855-6, the students numbered two hundred and three, ladies ninety-two, gentlemen one hundred and eleven; in classics fifty-two, in English one hundred and ninety-seven; summer term seventy-five, fall term one hundred, winter term ninety-eight, spring term one hundred and sixteen. It seemed as if the school had at last eaten of the tree of life and would live forever.

He revised and enlarged the course of study and adapted it to existing needs. He established two departments, Classical and English, and made "the course," three years, of four terms each. His classical course, arranged for mental discipline, led directly into New England college life. His English course provided for the needs of the business community, and embraced studies in moral science and social culture. The government was eminently parental. Tuition in common English branches was $4.00 per term, in higher English $5.00, and in the languages $1.00 each, extra.

The government is thus aptly mirrored in Mrs. Morgan's reminiscences: "Mr. Healy was quite remarkable for his punning propensity, as a mode of punishment, and woe be to the unlucky student, who received a reprimand in that way. In the lower room, desks opened with a lid, which, when raised, shielded the scholar from observation, giving a fine opportunity for cabilistic signs with fingers and face, but the 'old high desk,' reached by four steps, was the greatest torture. For some misdemeanor, the Preceptor, with the blandest smile, would request the offender to occupy the chair at his side; then while a recitation was in progress, he would draw the attention of the whole school to the recreancy, with his facetious remarks, causing a roar of merriment. Oh! what refined torture to sensitive nerves, but salutary in its effect. Government was good, and pupils were always interested in his mode of teaching, which was quite original, presenting old truths in a new dress."

REV. JOSEPH WARREN HEALY.

Every Wednesday afternoon was devoted to rhetorical exercises. Original compositions were read by the ladies, and declamations or compositions rendered by the gentlemen. Mrs. Morgan here remarks, "During those years when more than a hundred pupils responded to the roll-call, it was a trying ordeal for a young man to deliver his "maiden speech," and the ladies' presence proffered no overtures of sympathy, but rather added to his discomfiture by smiles and suppressed laughter. In the Lyceum, the tables were turned, and the gentlemen had the advantage, their laughter was outright and hearty."

The Lyceum, so popular and effective during Mr. Conant's principalship, was revived. Live questions were discussed, and it was a parliament in government. Kimball, Gleason, Wiley, Clark, Pierce, Hardy, Wilkins, Merriam, Harvey, Pearson, Towne, Porter, Rea, Balch, Stowe, Newell, Dodge, Fowler, Ames, Rollins, and others we cannot now recall, were the Websters, Clays, and Henrys of the occasion.

Besides the Lyceum, each yearly and semi-annual examination closed with an exhibition. The exhibitions were anticipated with great interest by students and citizens alike. They were planned to entertain the people. They were of high character, morally and intellectually. They were the best effort of the originators and actors. The lyceums were not alone confined to the students; citizens were invited, and many a civilian engaged in the "war of words," and many a spectator enjoyed the forensic efforts and the mirth. The practice was a strong one; it brought the two together, and a sympathy between the school and the people sprung up, of mutual benefit. Here, too, the ladies participated. If the efforts of the gentlemen were golden, the papers prepared by the ladies for the occasions were jewels in gold-settings. They were filled with solid thought, with wit and wisdom, and sparkled with merriment. They added much or most, to the enjoyment and success of the occasions.

They prepared a paper each week. Before us is a copy of the Iris and two copies of the Excelsior. Iris No. 4, says "the number of our subscribers is continually increasing"—a phrase which if original with the Iris and had been patented would have made a millionaire of the editor, for every publisher uses it now. One of the correspondents had a dream, in which a stationer's show-window was exhibited to him with ink in it that would write on any subject without the penman's thought, except that he choose the ink adapted. He tried some—"Sniggs' Sublime Ink"—with this result:—

THE TEMPEST CLOUD.

"Behold yon monster black as night,
On cloudy pinions swift he comes;
He rends the oak with lightning bright—
Those thorns and firey-forked tongues.
His bellowing strikes the earth with fear,
All nations tremble at the sight.
How weep the skies when he is near!
The mountains reel and rock with fright!"

The next was "Sniggs' Love Ink."

"Fair Julia, smile on me again,
Nay, do not wear that look of scorn;
Bid hope within my bosom reign,
Bid joy return and doubt begone.
Take back those cruel, cruel words
That thou so hastily hast spoken;
Let not the heart that beats for thee—
For thee alone, be rudely broken."

CONUNDRUMS.

What street is particularly attractive to a certain young gentleman of our school? Bradstreet. [Though ordinarily a hard question, hardly a scholar could Dodge the correct answer as given.]

Who buys algebra by the cent's worth? S. Noyes.

Who trades in old boots and neck stocks? Perley, Dodge, Jenniss & Co.

The Excelsior was edited by Miss Charlotte E. Perkins. These articles are particularly good: "Education," "The Use of Tobacco," and "Slavery." Here are a couple of conundrums: "What young man is likely to be in great demand the coming winter? Cole (coal). A certain young lady has a warlike spirit—why? She's in favor of Killam.

Here is one of the propositions from Dorman's Moral Geometry: Theorem—Truth in a very low place is falsehood. First let it be admitted that all the old proverbs are true. Then submit: "Truth cannot be hid, though it lies in a well." Extending the "figure," we see that in times of great danger, a man may lie if so disposed. Q. E. D. Corollary—Truth is an elastic substance, from the fact that men can stretch true stories.

I am favored with an order of examination. These were usually interspersed with rhetorical exercises and occupied two or three days.

The last days of the term, May 12-13, 1856, were occupied with compositions, by Misses E. C. Batchelder, S. A. Low, M. E. Jones, M. Hale, E. A. Hood, C. Rogers, R. P. Perley, C. A. Perkins, R. E. Emerson, L. M. Bixby, C. E. Perkins, C. M. Low, E. G. Dorman, and E. A. A. Rea; and with orations by gentlemen, D. S. Balch, S. P. Fowler, C. Newell, H. B. Putnam, S. A. Merriam, H. G. Rollins, H. S. Clark, G. LeR. Gleason, and George Pierce, Jr. The subjects are not given.

The exercises in the evening were in the Congregational church and consisted of invocation, address by Rev. Mr. Dwinell, of Salem, poem by S. J. Pike, Esq., of Lawrence, which were interspersed with music by Wales' Serenade and Quadrille Band.

"Rev. Joseph Warren Healy, D. D., was born in South Hero, Vt., April 11, 1827, to Nathaniel and Jane (Tabor) Healy. He fitted for college at Newbury Seminary and Bradford Academy, Vt. He graduated at the University of Vermont in 1852. He was principal of the Bath Academy, N. H., before coming to Topsfield. While teaching at Topsfield, he supplied the pulpit of the Linebrook (Ipswich) church, perhaps two years. The Linebrook society made him a life member of the Foreign Missionary Society, April 10, 1856. The church and society under his guidance, enjoyed a period of harmony and prosperity, and grew in numbers and healthful strength. While at Topsfield he attended lectures at the Andover Theological Seminary, and was licensed by the Salem Congregational Association. Leaving the Academy, he preached at Royalston, Gardner and Walpole. Then removing to the West, he preached six years in Milwaukee, and four years in Chicago. While there he was called to the pastorate and presidency of Straight University, in New Orleans, La. There he attended medical lectures and received the medical degree. In 1871, Olivet College, Mich., conferred upon him the doctorate of divinity. He was also an LL. D.* In 1871, he was delegated by the American Missionary Association to visit Great Britain and organize an auxiliary to that society. He resided in London as its secretary for three years. While abroad, he visited the continent and the East, and lectured in the principal cities of Great Britain. Returning home he was elected professor of English literature and pastoral theology in Maryville College, Tenn. Preferring an active pastorate to the routine of professional life, he returned to Milwaukee in 1878. The death of his wife prostrated him. Subsequently he went to California for his health. In 1883, he was a pastor in Oakland, Cal. Upon the incorporation of Sierre-Madre College, at Pasadena, in 1884, he was selected as the president. Subsequent to 1885, he retired from the ministry, resided in San Diego, Cal., and latterly practised medicine."

*For the purpose of the General Catalogue of his Alma Mater, it was thought necessary to know the source and date of his title LL. D., and the date of his title M. D. About twenty-five communications are before me relative to its source and their dates. They all rest upon memory, and agree wonderfully in regard to the time, yes, and source also. The words of Gen. Chas. H. Howard and Rev. E. M. Strieby, D. D., who were quite familiar with his work in New Orleans, are as pertinent as any.

Gen. Howard says:

"My impression is strong that the title LL. D., was given Dr. Healy by Straight University, at the time of his going to Europe." Later he wrote:—"I remember that Dr. Healy had the degree conferred upon him, about the time he went abroad to reside in London, and that is about all I know concerning the matter."

Dr. Strieby writes:

"The vague impression on my mind is that he obtained this degree, with several other honorary titles, such as F. R. S., etc., in Great Britain. Of this I am not sure. It is barely possible they may have been given to him by the S. U." * * * * "Yet, I fear that nothing will be found, for our people were then engaged in making history and not in writing it."

Mr. Healy was a diligent worker, an excellent teacher, social, genial, a ready reader of human nature, and easily made himself master. He led his school; his scholars were ambitious, diligent, social, and in the main made the most of their opportunities. He was ambitious. In whatever he engaged, he threw his entire self. Whatever he did, was well done, from principle. Every station he held he made an opening door to the next higher station. He used to say to his scholars: "Be not bent by circumstances, but bend them."* He loved to do good, realizing that in such service was his highest honor. That idea was the inspiration of his life; and his life subserved that great end.

While preaching at Linebrook, he took one and another of his older students with him, to the religious meetings of the parish, thus introducing them into society and its service, and giving a practical turn to school life. We know of his saying "Come into the school and if the burden of the tuition is too great, it will be remitted." Whatever was money in his family was good for tuition, and many a farmer-lad thus figured out results to a fraction. Among his students, he was a whole "Lend-a-Hand" Society, judicious and efficient.

After leaving the Academy, but before going west, he united the society of Royalston, paid their church debt and repaired the church. At Walpole he enlarged the sphere and usefulness of the church and society, and solidified its strength. He was at Gardner, a preacher they praised. Coming out of the church edifice one Sunday, we heard—"That was an able discourse"—"yes, it was; I never heard that subject handled better." His society was proud of him.

In the west, he was the same scholarly, eloquent helper. In Chicago he was, under God, the organizer of twelve religious societies that built church edifices. But more, he would herald the truth from pulpit and press. He was one of the founders of The Advance, a paper of high rank and doctrinal authority.

*Circumstances, on occasions, seemed to be made for him, or required but little bending. Upon hearing a rumor of Mr. Healy's death, the writer sent a missive of inquiry into his vicinity. The letter fell into his hand, when he immediately sent "a penny messenger" on which was written: "Psalm 118, vs. 18 and 17. As ever thine. J. W. H."

In New Orleans, he was pastor of the First Congregational Church, and was consulted for "the benefit of his judgment in selecting points in Louisiana, for schools." During the year 1869-70, he was president of Straight University, and superintendent of church organization for Louisiana, Mississippi, and Texas. The next two years he was president, three years in all, but was absent in Great Britain, soliciting funds for scholarships. This was his work for the A. M. A., the patron of the University.

The test of establishing churches and schools in the South, just following the War of the Rebellion, was as exacting as it was noble. It required judgment and knowledge pre-eminent, tact and discretion, and, withall, a readiness of heart and hand. It was a place of dignity, learning and religious character. Mr. Healy's part was done acceptably, promptly and honorably. So well and favorably was he known and appreciated among the literati, that there was power in the mention of his name.

Rev. D. W. Hanna, president of Los Angeles College, says of Sierra-Madre College, Pasadena, of which Dr. Healy was president:—"A liberal grant was made for it, a good school building was erected, and the site was admirable; but Pasadena did not prove attractive—it seemed impossible to awaken adequate enthusiasm. The school numbered from thirty to fifty students. It was started under the leadership of Rev. J. W. Ellis, D. D., of San Francisco. Shortly after the college opened, the board of trustees elected Dr. Healy, who was then pastor of the Presbyterian Church, at Santa Monica, to the presidency, for the influence of his name. Dr. Healy's health was then very poor, and he did not occupy the office, nor change his residence, nor take any active part in the college work. He resigned at the end of his year, 1884-5, and Prof. J. M. Coyner presided. The doctor was in no way responsible for the college. It continued about two years; the building is now a private residence." Mr. Hanna spoke very highly of Dr. Healy's work at Santa Monica.

He married, Oct. 8, 1848, Miss Jane Hibbard Clark, who was born in Groton, Vt., May 12, 1830. She studied in the Female Seminary, Burlington, Vt., taught with her husband at Bath and Topsfield, and adorned the place of a pastor's wife wherever he labored. She died at her mother's home in Corinth, Vt., Sept. 12, 1880, beloved and lamented, a pure and gentle spirit. Their children were Jane Corinne, who was born March 6, 1850, and died October 8, 1850; and Frank Joseph, who was born March 4, 1857; studied at Olivet College and London (England) University; was admitted to the bar, 1878; was editor of the Gazette, Fort Wayne, Ind., till 1884; and is now on the editorial staff of the Tribune, Cleveland, O.

His second wife was Mrs. Ellen R. White, widow of W. M. White, a merchant of Washington, D. C., who died there of consumption. She was Miss Young, born in Bangor, Me., Feb. 2, 1833. She became Mrs. Healy July 21, 1884, while he was preaching in Santa Monica. She has built her a home at Riverside, Cal., but will spend her summers at San Diego.

Mr. Healy preached about three years in Woodland, and Oakland, before visiting southern California. He was pastor of the Presbyterian church at Santa Monica, three years. He never recovered from the prostration following his first wife's death. He loved life and labor, and when driven by ill health from one field, he sought another field immediately upon recuperation. As a last resort, when he could no longer stand to preach, in the fall of 1886, he sought a change of air and began to practise medicine in San Diego. He died of spinal abscess, April 26, 1887, and was buried at San Diego, under imposing and solemn rites by Masons and Odd Fellows. He was paralyzed and speechless for 20 hours, a patient sufferer. Dr. Healy was an exemplary man—one of nature's noblemen. He arose by his own exertions, and achieved a grand success. His titles are emblems of his character and attainments.

The Congregational Year Book says:—"Mr. Henry Jackson Richardson was born in Middleton, Mass., June 23, 1829, to Daniel and Olive Berry (Perkins) Richardson. He fitted for college at Phillips Academy, and graduated at Amherst, in 1855, and at Andover Theological Seminary, in 1859; taught in the Topsfield Academy, 1855-6, was ordained at Lincoln, Mass., Sept. 6, 1860; and was released from active pastoral charge, May 10, 1892. He married, June 26, 1864, Mrs. Harriet Amelia, widow of Theodore French, of Concord, N. H., and daughter of Dea. William and Abby (Reed) Colburn, of Lincoln. He died of la grippe, Dec. 19, 1893."

Rev. Alpheus Justus Pike, who was assistant to Profs. Healy and Allis, was born in Topsfield, March 7, 1828. His father was a farmer and cultivated broad fields and rich soil. He was educated at Thetford Academy, Vt., and at Dartmouth College, graduating in 1855. He studied theology at Andover, Mass., and at East Windsor, now Hartford, Conn. He was ordained and installed at Marlboro, Conn., and afterwards had successive charge of churches in Sauk Centre, Minn., and Mandan and Dawson, Dak. He has also labored for the American Missionary Association both in the United States and Great Britain. He is now located at Dwight, Dakota.

Mrs. Morgan says:—"Our respected teacher and townsman A. J. Pike, A. B., afterwards a minister, is well remembered. He was a most thorough scholar; he always carried the text books closed in his hand without the slightest thought of referring to them. In the clear, autumn evenings, he would take the class out on the hills and point out the different constellations, making our lessons in astronomy of practical value."

Prof. B. Robert Downes, Bradford, was a teacher of music during Prof. Healy's principalship and those who followed. His only business was teaching music, chiefly, it is understood, instrumental. He was always busy—"have all I can do," as he once remarked. Here Mrs. Morgan remarks:—"I must not forget Professor of music, B. R. Downes. Can we not see him passing from home to home of his pupils, swinging his cane in the air, ready to fall in repeated blows on reaching the door, then taking quiet little naps while the lessons were thrummed, always good-natured and happy."

CHAPTER V.

OBEDIAH DICKINSON ALLIS, ALBERT IRA DUTTON, AND THE LAST DAYS OF THE ACADEMY.

Prof. O. D. Allis, A. M., began here with the winter term of 1856-7, and closed his services with the fall term of 1858. He continued the school in relation to the course of study, terms and tuition, as these had been adopted by Mr. Healy. The character of the school was fully sustained. A. J. Pike, A. B., assisted him in the winter term; Austin Hazen, A. B., in the spring term; L. T. Burbank, A. B., of Williams College, thereafter. Mrs. Mary A. Jones was preceptress, Miss C. M. Thurston was assistant. Prof. B. R. Downes, jr., taught piano music; G. LeR. Gleason, vocal music; and Daniel T. Ames, penmanship.

Three rhetorical programs have been loaned me. May 6, 1857, has the following orations:—Every man a debtor to his profession, by George L. Blanchard; Influence of Washington, by M. V. B. Perley; The present crisis of our country, by D. F. Towne; Athens, by S. A. Merriam; The scholar's hope, by J. G. Colt; The mind measured by its object, by G. E. Joslin; Decay an element of growth, by D. T. Ames; The influence of the age in producing great men, by G. LeR. Gleason; Eloquence of decay, by N. T. Kimball; Israel Putnam, by S. P. Fowler. Compositions were read by Misses L. Burbank, S. A. Chamberlain, H. McLoud, M. A. Hoyt, H. A. Wells, E. A. R. Towne, E. A. Putnam, H. M. Kimball, M. M. Farrar, C. F. Kimball, M. A. Dickinson, R. P. Perley, C. A. Perkins, C. E. Batchelder, and A. Rogers.

The rhetorical exercises, Nov. 11, 1857, were:—Orations—Ambition essential to great achievements, by Geo. F. Flint; Responsibility of Americans, by J. C. Leonard; The Press, by N. D. Dodge; The condition and prospects of America, by

C. A. Mooar; Arnold, the traitor, by M. H. Dorman; John Q. Adams, by J. W. Porter; Dr. Kane, by C. Fowler; Revolutions, by J. K. Cole; Earth's benefactors, by M. V. B. Perley; Earth's malefactors, by Geo. L. Blanchard; Skepticism, by D. T. Ames. The following had compositions:—Misses S. A. Chamberlin, J. K. Noyes, S. M. Ray, M. M. Thompson, M. A. Hoyt, H. E. Peabody, C. A. Berry, C. C. Peabody, M. E. Choate, R. P. Balch, R. P. Perley, E. B. Perley, A. P. Kimball, C. W. Woodbury. The program concluded with a colloquy, "Home Government," written by the students—Misses M. Low, L. D. Hardy and M. A. C. Noyes.

The rhetorical program of Nov. 10, 1858, was:—Declamation, by Hamilton Temple; Orations—Dr. Livingstone, by A. M. Merriam; Object of our mission, by J. W. Perkins; The power of knowledge, by N. D. Dodge, jr.; Enthusiasm, by C. A. Mooar; Jephtha's daughter, by Geo. F. Flint; The nobility and responsibility of the teacher's vocation, by J. K. Cole; Reform, by Clarence Fowler; Moral force the only instrument of freedom, by M. V. B. Perley; Young America, by H. G. Rollins; and the reading of the school paper, "The Laurel Wreath," by Misses Abbie R. Cole and Rebecca K. Bixby, Clarence Fowler, editor.

These exercises were always interspersed with music, generally by a hired orchestra, sometimes by the school talent.

Prof. Allis came to Topsfield with an experience of some seven or eight years. He was a good teacher and disciplinarian. His want of health was the only impediment to good rank among noted teachers. He was tall and slim; his configuration and movements betokened insidious disease. He had a deep voice and was an excellent bass singer. His voice was cultured and he excelled as a reader. He was a good scholar, critical in the recitation and apt in his illustrations. His manner was pleasing; his conversation, entertaining; his social life, unblamable; and remembrance of him is pleasant indeed.

Mr. Allis was born in Brookfield, Vt., July 27, 1825, to Elisha and Mary (Steele) Allis. While at home he attended the district school and the academy at Randolph. His preparation for college was completed at Thetford Academy. He entered Williams College, and during this second year returned home sick, where he remained an invalid for a year. He received the honorary degree of A. M., from the University of Vermont. He taught a year in Barre Academy, under J. S. Spaulding; then at Vergennes some two or three years. While at Vergennes he married Miss Ann Eliza Colt, of Brookfield. Subsequently he taught at Chelsea perhaps four or five years; then at Topsfield. From here he went to Randolph Centre, Vt., where he preached three or four years; thence to West Randolph where he preached about five years. The state of his health was to him, all the while, a source of anxiety and expense, and an impediment in his work. At last his active life closed; in 1866 he repaired to Danielsonville, N. Y., for treatment at that noted water-cure. He died there in June, 1867, nearly forty-two years old. His disease was chronic rheumatism, culminating in congestion of the lungs. He was buried in West Randolph. Thus perished an active life, a generous heart, a noble purpose, a Christian man.

The Lyceum, so popular with Principal Conant's and Principal Healy's schools, was fully sustained during Mr. Allis' principalship. Citizens participated in and enjoyed the occasions. The students regarded it a part of their school life, and prepared for it, in the main, as for a recitation, or the weekly rhetorical exercises.

The first Lyceum of which we have any record was organized on Dec. 24, 1856. The members were J. Brown, J. Pike, A. M. Trask, E. W. Pert, A. E. Baker, T. F. Towne, J. E. Leonard, M. H. Dorman, M. V. B. Perley, C. M. Boyd, J. W. Porter, J. G. Colt, Geo. L. Blanchard, A. D. Pearson, W. T. McQuestion and James Ingalls.

Prof. Allis, principal of the school called the meeting to order. Towne was voted president, pro tem.; Colt, secretary, pro tem. Brown, Blanchard, Dorman, committee to draft constitution and by-laws. Dec. 31. Blanchard was voted president, pro tem.; Colt secretary, pro tem.; constitution and by-laws adopted. The former authorized primaries, president, vice-president, secretary; the latter, this order of business: reading minutes of last meeting, declamations, discussions, miscellaneous business, reading of school-paper, appointment of editors, readers, and judges of discussions as to force of argument.

The principal was primarius and embodied all final authority. Teachers were ex-officio members, and lady-students at their option. Male members signed constitution and by-laws and paid the bills, (perhaps 25 cents per term.) Jan. 7, 1857. Blanchard and Colt were voted again pro tem. Constitutional officers by ballot: Boyd, president; M. V. B. Perley, vice-president; Colt, secretary. Boyd and Joslin, affirmative, and Towne and Colt, negative, discussed "Is a nation justified in rising against its rulers?" and the judges gave the better argument to the affirmative. Jan. 14. Brown and Towne, affirmative, and Blanchard and Leonard, negative, discussed "Does wealth exert a greater influence than education?" which was decided in the affirmative. Jan. 28. Towne and Joslin, affirmative, and A. D. Pearson and J. E. Pike, negative: "Are railroads an advantage or disadvantage to a country?" The affirmative won.

Spring term, 1857. March 11. Members: D. T. Ames, G. A. Ames, J. C. Colt, J. W. Porter, G. L. Blanchard, S. P. Fowler, jr., C. M. Boyd, A. D. Pearson, G. E. Joslin, S. A. Merriam, N. T. Kimball, M. V. B. Perley. D. T. Ames was voted president; S. P. Fowler, jr., vice-president; G. E. Joslin, secretary. Pearson declaimed. Kimball and Fowler, affirmative, and Porter and Perley, negative: "Resolved, that the mariner's compass has been more beneficial to man than the printing press." Negative won. March 16. Blanchard and Perley declaimed. Fowler and Boyd, affirmative, and Gleason and Colt, negative: "Is a man the arbiter of his own fortune?" Affirmative won. Misses Batchelder and Perley read "The Iris," A. D. Pearson, editor. March 23. Colt and Gleason declaimed. Porter and Joslin, affirmative, and G. A. Ames and Towne, negative: "Was Washington a greater man than Columbus?" Affirmative won. March 30. Pearson declaimed. Blanchard and D. T. Ames, affirmative, and Merriam and Gleason, negative: "Should non-intervention be the policy of the U. S.?" Affirmative prevailed. Misses Thurston and Rogers read "The Iris," G. A. Ames, editor. April 6. Perley and Joslin declaimed. Fowler and Towne, affirmative, and Kimball and Porter, negative: "Should the sale of intoxicating liquors be prohibited by law?" April 13. G. A. Ames and Gleason, affirmative, and H. O. Wiley, negative: "Is the progress of the present age greater than that of past ages?" Affirmative won. Misses E. F. and H. M. Kimball read "The Iris," Gleason, editor. April 20. Kimball and Porter, affirmative, and Joslin and Towne, negative: "Is ambition the cause of more good than evil?" Misses Chamberlain and Farrar read "The Iris." April 27. Fowler and Long declaimed. Porter and Kimball, affirmative, and Gleason and D. T. Ames, negative: "Is a republican form of government more stable than a monarchical one?" Misses Wells and Towne read "The Iris," Perley, editor.

Winter term, 1857-8. Dec. 3. Members: J. W. Porter, D. F. Towne, M. H. Dorman, W. L. Putnam, G. H. Peabody, A. F. Smith, A. A. Fowler, C. W. Peart, J. N. Smith, S. T. J. Byam, L. W. Green, W. S. Merrill, B. A. Shute, P. S. Farnsworth, J. A. Friend, G. D. Richards, C. Porter, J. R. Jackson, Jos. Ridgway, E. F. Esty, H. Temple, M. A. Kent, L. L. Robbins, E. F. Cressy, A. M. Merriam, H. L. Long, J. H. Towne, S. Fuller, J. C. Bancroft, D. G. Upton, N. A. Pike, J. Swinerton, W. H. Preston, W. P. Hutchinson, S. Noyes. J. W. Porter was voted president, pro tem.; Dorman, secretary, pro tem.; Dorman, D. F. Towne, W. L. Putnam, a committee on constitution and by-laws. Dec. 9, constitution and by-laws were adopted. J. W. Dodge was chosen president; John W. Perkins, vice-president; Jos. P. Wonson, secretary.

Mrs. Mary Amanda Jones, preceptress, was educated at Newbury Seminary, Vermont. She came to this school a talented and finely educated teacher. Her gentle manners and kindly disposition won the respect of all, and the love of those in her immediate care. She was tall, and a lady of commanding figure, which, supplemented by her gentle manners, gave her a presence remarkably suggestive of Virgil's "que incedo regina." She remained with the school till the close of the year 1858-9.

Mrs. Jones was born in Sutton, Vt., July 5, 1830, to Phoebe Fletcher and Rev. Elisha Brown. She married, Oct. 20, 1852, Edwin Alonzo Jones, M. D., and two years later was left a widow. For twelve years thereafter she was engaged in teaching in public schools and high-grade seminaries, at Springfield, Vt., Amenia, N. Y., Topsfield and Auburndale, Mass.

After leaving Auburndale, she married, in Berlin, Vt., July 22, 1866, Rev. Rodney Howland Howard, D. D., of the N. E. Conference, and pastor of the M. E. Church, in Monson, Mass. She died in Franklin, Mass., April 12, 1892.

Dr. Howard married, second, Mrs. Susan Cheney Jones, widow of Loren Washburn Jones, merchant, West Somerville, and daughter of Adolphus and Susan (Tenney) Tenney, undertaker and dealer in furniture, Windsor, Vt. Dr. Howard died Jan. 3, 1897.

Lysander T. Burbank was an assistant to Mr. Allis during the summer term of 1857.

Mr. Burbank was born in Fitzwilliam, N. H., Nov. 24,

MR. AND MRS. AUSTIN HAZEN.

1828, to John and Hannah (Lyon) Burbank. His father was a farmer. He graduated at Williams College, 1857, and at Union Theological Seminary, New York City, 1860. He married Sarah Susannah Van Vlack of New York City, and in July of the same year he sailed from Boston under appointment as missionaries of the A. B. C. F. M., to Turkey, on the barque Smyrniote, for Smyrna, laden with a cargo of New England rum, and missionaries as passengers, arriving at Bitlis in Oct., 1860. They gave up their foreign work finally on account of ill-health, and returned to America in 1870. The work in Turkey resulted in establishing several flourishing churches and schools, and in training young men and women for teachers and preachers, and correlative labor. He says, "it was the greatest trial of my life to leave that blessed work." In his preparation for the work he attended a course of medical lectures in New York City, and also dispensary practice, receiving "A Certificate of Honor," conferring the title of Dr.

He became pastor of a church in Herndon, Va., in 1871; removing in 1880 to Georgetown, Neb., to become pastor of the Burr Oak Presbyterian church. He was there in 1890.

They have (1890) six children living. One reposes in Bitlis, dying Jan., 1864; another in Herndon, dying July, 1874. Their oldest, Frederic L., is an M. D., and practicing in Hooper, Neb., and the oldest daughter, Mary S., married David Montgomery, a graduate of Hastings College and engaged in Y. M. C. A. work, but hoping to go a missionary to China.

Austin Hazen, Prof. Allis's assistant, was born in Hartford, Vt., Feb. 14, 1835, to Rev. Austin and Lucia (Washburn) Hazen. He went with his father's family to Berlin, at the age of three years. He fitted for college at home and at St. Johnsbury Academy, graduating at the University of Vermont, Burlington, in 1855. Taught one year in Barre Academy, and graduated at the Theological Seminary, Andover, Mass., in 1859. During his first year at Andover he taught the spring term of the Topsfield Academy. Mr. Allis was an invalid and the work of the principal came mostly upon Mr. Hazen. After graduation, he preached at Norwich, Vt., from 1859 to 1864; then at Jericho Centre, Vt., from 1864

to 1884. He began to preach also in Richmond, Vt., in 1875. In 1884, he removed to Richmond, where he completed his life work. He was two years superintendent of schools in Norwich, and two in Jericho. His sickness was long and painful, and though accompanied by severe sufferings caused by repeated attempts of the surgeons to bring relief, he uttered no word of complaint. He died May 22, 1895, while on a passage to Europe, and was buried at sea, in the bosom of "old gray ocean."

He married Feb. 12, 1862, Mary Jane Carleton, who was born in October, 1840, to Mary Wheeler and David Carleton, a farmer, of Barre, Vt. She died April 18, 1880, in Jericho Centre. He married, 2nd, in Keeseville, N. Y., June 1, 1881, Almira Farrington Elliot, who was born Feb. 21, 1838, to Eliza Hall and Ezra Elliot, a farmer, of Croydon, N. H.

His first wife was mother of all his children, seven sons and one daughter, Mary Carleton, who was born July 20, 1875, and died the next January. The seven sons have graduated in the course in arts at the University of Vermont. Four have graduated from the Hartford, Ct., Theological Seminary and are in the Congregational ministry. Austin, born Sept. 20, 1863, who received the seminary fellowship for two years' study in Germany, 1893 to 1895; Carleton, born June 14, 1865; Frank William, born Jan. 7, 1869, and William, born Nov. 3, 1870. Two are physicians. Allen, born May 12, 1867, a graduate of the College of Physicians and Surgeons of New York, and Robert, born Dec. 2, 1872, a graduate in medicine at the University of Vermont; and Tracy, born July 4, 1874, will complete his post-graduate studies in science, at Columbia College, 1899. This is a remarkable family in its obvious aspect. The father is working now in the field ready for harvest with seven-fold opportunity and power.

At college, his scholarship ranked with the best; at the seminary, he was one of the best Hebraists; as a minister, "he kept his science of religion properly in the background, but his instructions and counsels were never inconsistent with the logical framework which underlay all his thinking;" as a man, his scholarship, his utterances, his amiableness and demeanor were hardly noticed in their individuality. In this regard he was peculiar; the traits of his character were most happily blended, no one was unduly prominent, each seemed designed to perfect the rest; his character was a constellation, like the sweet influence of the Pleiades, and cultivated friendship, molded character, inculcated principle, inspired love; and because the influence was all unconscious to giver and receiver, it was the more potent. His life though humble was forceful, and though it was circumscribed in action, it was unbounded in influence.

Charles Morgan Pierce, assisted Mr. Allis in 1857-8. He says, "Mr. Allis was the principal, but owing to his illness the school for the greater part of the year was in my hands."

Mr. Pierce was born Oct. 18, 1834, to Erastus and Sophia (Morgan) Pierce, in Hinsdale, Mass. He studied at Hinsdale Academy and graduated at Williams College in 1857. He taught in the Academy one year, 1857-8, and by reason of Mr. Allis' feeble health, sustained the burden of the school. He entered Andover Seminary with the junior class of 1858, and remained two years, when he was appointed instructor in mathematics and Latin at his Alma Mater, a position he held two years. He was licensed to preach by the Berkshire Northern Association, Oct. 29, 1860. He supplied the Congregational Church in Peru six months of 1862. He became a resident student at Andover, Oct., 1862, and became the stated supply of the West Boxford church, where he was ordained and installed Sept. 2, 1863. He was dismissed July 17, 1867, and the next September accepted the pro tempore professorship of mathematics in Williams College, which he held till April, 1868, supplying the while the Congregational Church at South Williamstown. He was installed at Middlefield, Mass., July 1, 1868, and resigning on account of ill-health, was dismissed July 26, 1881. He was acting pastor at Charlton, from Aug. 20, 1882, to Dec. 6, 1885; was pastor at Hardwick, from Dec. 13, 1885, to April 1, 1890, when he resigned to accept a pastorate in Auburn, where he now resides. He has published two funeral discourses, 1864, 1873.

He married in Salem, Mass., Aug. 12, 1863, Elizabeth Morse Peabody. They have one child, Charles Peabody, born Oct. 19, 1869, who is now of the class of '92 academical department, Yale University.

The following pertinent comment is by Mrs. Morgan: "Charles H. Pierce taught a year or more, as preceptor for Mr. Allis, who was in feeble health. Mr. Pierce won the esteem of all his pupils by his uniform kindness and patience. He came as an assistant and rather shrank from full charge of the school, which the Principal's illness made necessary; still his thorough knowledge of all the branches taught, and easy manners and fluent speaking, made him a very popular teacher."

"An old friend of education" wrote thus of the school for the Salem Gazette, in 1857:—

TOPSFIELD ACADEMY.—The Semi-Annual Examination of this successful Institution, was on Wednesday, July 15th. The writer had the pleasure of being present in the afternoon, and was highly interested. The exercises commenced with singing by the members of the school, which convinced all that there was no lack of musical talent. Declamations were then given by J. H. Byne, of Galveston, Texas; M. V. B. Perley, of Ipswich; and A. D. Pearson, of Topsfield; all of whom did credit to themselves and the school.

The Orations, with the subjects, were as follows:—The Love of Liberty, George P. Flint, North Reading; Struggles, Jefferson K. Cole, Boxford; Death, Clarence Fowler, Danvers; Mental Culture, Daniel F. Ames, Vershire, Vt.; Influence of Great Men on their Age, Henry G. Rollins, Georgetown. The Orations were creditable to their writers and the school. The last one, by H. G. Rollins, would compare favorably with the best productions of College graduates, and do honor to many men of high pretensions. Next came the reading of the paper, published by the school. The Editor, H. G. Rollins, introduced Miss Abbie Cole, of Topsfield, and Miss Mary Cushing, of Williamstown, as the readers, who interested those present, for the space of half an hour, with rich gems of thought and wit, causing many a hearty laugh.

We next listened to the reading of essays by the following ladies of the graduating class:—Cornelia M. Thurston, of Vershire, Vt.; Margaret A. Hoyt, Georgetown; Charlotte A. Perkins and Ellen F. Kimball, of Topsfield. The essays were finely written and very pleasing. The one by Miss Kimball, on the Marriage of the Hemispheres, was particularly good, being written in an easy, natural style, and well read.

At the close of the exercises, Diplomas were presented to those graduating, with appropriate remarks, by the worthy and able Principal, O. D. Allis, A. M.

Topsfield Academy has a fine location, and we were happy to find the school in such a flourishing condition. Although we were told by the Principal that the past term had not been so fully attended as previous terms, yet the school was in a healthy and promising state, and as long as its present Board of Teachers remain, we have high hopes of its success.

"A friend to education" chronicled the following of the Academy in Nov., 1858:—It was our good fortune, two days last week, to attend the quarterly examination of the Topsfield Academy, and it was very pleasant for us to witness the appearance of success, which crowned the labor of the teachers and students. The degree of proficiency exhibited by the classes in Greek, Latin and French, was highly creditable, but the rhetorical Exercise, which was during the afternoon of Wednesday, was particularly interesting. The exercise consisted of Orations from a large part of the gentlemen, and the reading of the Laurel Wreath, a literary journal consisting mostly of compositions from the ladies of the Institution. The order of the exercises was as follows:—

Orations were delivered by A. M. Merriam, subject, "Dr. Livingstone;" J. W. Perkins, subject, "Objects of our Mission;" N. D. Dodge, Jr., subject, "The Power of Knowledge;" C. A. Mooar, subject, "Enthusiasm;" G. F. Flint, subject, "Jephtha's Daughter;" J. K. Cole, subject, "The Nobility and Responsibility of the Teacher's Vocation;" Clarence Fowler, subject, "Reform;" M. V. B. Perley, subject, "Moral Force the only Instrument of Freedom;" H. G. Rollins, subject, "Young America." Music, of a high order, was listened to, consisting of pieces sung by a select choir, between the delivery of the Orations. After the speaking, the "Laurel Wreath," edited by Clarence Fowler, was read by the Editresses, Miss Abbie R. Cole, and Miss Rebecca K. Bixby. The contributions to the paper displayed marked talent, and were highly creditable to the ladies. The style in which the orations were written, and delivered, showed that the gentlemen had talent, which might be profitably cultivated. The one entitled "Jephtha's Daughter," was spoken in such a manner, that we could almost seem to see the Maiden kneeling before the Chief of Israel, to receive her death-blow; and another entitled, "The Nobility and Responsibility of the Teacher's Vocation," contained thoughts which all teachers might well think of. The oration of Mr. Perley displayed much "Moral Force," both in diction, and delivery, and that of Mr. Rollins, reminded us forcibly that "Young America" had honorably exerted himself, in thought and speech.

We regret to learn that the highly-esteemed Principal, Mr. Allis, and the Preceptress, Miss Brooks, an inestimable teacher, are called to another field of action. We understand that Mr. A. I. Dutton, an experienced teacher, is to take charge of the Academy, in the place of Mr. Allis. We recommend all who take an interest in institutions of the kind, to patronize Mr. Dutton, who appears a stranger in Topsfield, and a laborer in the noblest of all causes, the Improvement of the Mind.

ALBERT IRA DUTTON.

Prof. A. I. Dutton followed Principal Allis. He began with the winter term of 1858-9, and taught five consecutive terms. During his first year he had one hundred and twenty-one students, with an average per term of forty-nine. Mrs. Mary A. Jones was his preceptress and Miss Helen A. Reed, assistant. J. W. Porter and J. B. Putnam were assistants the summer term of 1859; Geo. F. Flint and Miss Lucie R. Weston the fall term of the same year. Prof. Downes, jr., gave instruction on the piano. Miss Sarah D. McMillan, a graduate of Kimball Union Academy, Meriden, N. H., and an experienced teacher, succeeded Mrs. Jones' resignation, at the end of the year 1858-9. About 1860, commercial colléges began, and local high schools, with their attractions and advantages, more or less real. Georgetown was able to appropriate more for the recognized ability of the Academy principal than the earning capacity of the Academy could offer, and he left at the end of the winter term of that year.

The program of the exhibition at Union Hall, Thursday evening, May 5, 1859, consisted of tableaux, dialogues, orations, recitations, an original colloquy and music. The Latin Salutatory (Oratis Salutoria) was pronounced by Arthur M. Merriam, and the valedictory, a poem, by M. B. V. Perley. These orations were given: Energy, Earnestness and Perseverance, by N. D. Dodge, jr.; Foresight, by John W. Perkins; The Spirit of Freedom, by B. H. Weston. The recitations: The Gambler's Wife, by Carrie E. Batchelder, and The Lay of the Madman, by J. B. Putnam. There were six dialogues. The colloquy was original and written by the Preceptress, Miss Helen A. Reed.

This exhibition was among the most attractive known in the history of the school. The hall was crowded; the presentations were most pleasing; everybody was more than gratified; and immediately following the conclusion, a motion came from the audience, that the program be repeated the following evening, which was unanimously voted.

Mr. Dutton was born in Stowe, Vt., Aug. 5, 1831, to Ira and Emeline (Dutton) Dutton, a farmer. He graduated at Middlebury College, 1858, and taught that fall in North Troy, Vt. His next field was at Topsfield, then a year at Georgetown. He studied a year or more at Hartford, Ct., and completed his divinity course at Andover, where he graduated, 1863. That year he was ordained and installed pastor of the Congregational church at Shirley, Mass. He remained there six years, till 1869. In the latter year he was installed at East Longmeadow, Mass., where he served till July, 1885. He then visited the west, for his health, and previous to Oct. 1, 1885, preached in Marshall, Minn. He began preaching in Royalton, Vt., in Oct., 1885, and in Sept., 1886, was installed pastor. In 1887, he received a carriage accident owing to which he was unable to preach, and Oct. 1, retired from the pastorate to become superintendent of the Home for Aged and Disabled Ministers, at South Framingham, Mass. He was several years a Trustee of Monson Academy.

In 1880 he sustained a severe accident by being run over by a loaded team. From this he never fully recovered. He was unable, for a long time, fully to attend to the duties of his pastorate. But for five years he remained with his parish, "accomplishing some of his best work and bringing a goodly number into the church." The last accident unfitted him for parochial duties, and he accepted a call to superintend the Minister's Home. He had been there three years when the Home was discontinued. Mr. Dutton, however, continued to reside in the place, and during the time had several calls to pastorates; but for want of health felt obliged to decline them. He was building a residence for himself and family at the time of his death. His last sickness was only of fifty-eight hours duration. He preached for his son, the Sunday before, in Ashland. He passed away very suddenly, in his sleep, of heart-failure, a result of la grippe, Feb. 13, 1892.

Mr. Dutton's wife was Miss Helen Abby Reed, his assistant in the school at Topsfield. She was born May 6, 1838, to Jacob Whitemore, a lawyer, and Ruhannah Burbank (Tenny) Reed, of Groveland. Their marriage was at Groveland, Oct. 29, 1863. Their children were born: Charles Henry, Jan. 26, 1865; Emily Helen, Sept. 29, 1869; Mary Almira, Oct. 31, 1871, and died aged one year, five months; Albert Ira, Sept. 4, 1877. Charles is a graduate of Amherst and pastor in Wilton, N. H. Emily graduated at Mt. Holyoke College, took her master's degree at Radcliffe College, Cambridge, and is instructor in Latin at Vassar College.

Mrs. Morgan thus concludes a very interesting reminiscence which we have digested through these pages:—"Very few resident students studied in school, all must attend devotional exercises in the morning, which consisted of scripture reading, prayer, and singing a hymn by a select choir of the scholars; then pupils went to their various homes for study, returning at hours designated; discipline required the incoming classes to be promptly at hand, when the bell rang at the close of each recitation.

Looking back to those days we can but exclaim 'What an excellent corps of teachers taught in the old academy!' Years have passed since we saw them, but their influence and example are still seen and felt in the lives and labors of those they instructed, now scattered throughout the world. The years have also changed the old building; its halls still echo the tread of scholars, but not after the old plan. The laughter of merry children and youth is heard on the hill, but in them we see only the forms and faces of other days."

MISS SARAH DANA McMILLAN.

Miss McMillan was Prof. Dutton's preceptress, during his last term. She had graduated at Kimball Union Academy, Meriden, N. H., and had taught three years in the Academy at Plattsburgh, N. Y., and then in the Pinkerton Academy, Derry, N. H. She came to this school, a lady of valuable experience, of cultured talents, and apt ability to impart instruction. Her social life and pleasing manners endeared her to pupils and people, and after Mr. Dutton left, she remained, at the urgent request of friends, and taught, on her own account, during the following summer.

She was the daughter of Hon. Andrew and Emily (Dana) McMillan, born May 12, 1836, at Danville, Vt. Her mother was a lineal descendant of Gen. Israel Putnam. In July, 1865, she married Rev. E. G. Parsons, pastor of the First, now Central, Congregational Church, of Derry. Mr. Parsons was ten years principal of Dummer Academy, having his election in 1882. They now reside in Derry. Mrs. Parsons writes:—"My memories are most pleasant of the genial, hospitable people, who then were active in church and society, and extended their kind ministrations to 'the stranger within the gate'."

CHAPTER VI.

THE ACADEMY EDIFICE.

ITS LATENT LIFE AND MEED OF PRAISE.

Thus far we have followed the use of the building, have noted the principal teachers in their order, and most of the assistant principals, have recorded enough of their lives to show their enterprise, their moral force, their natural ability and education, their citizenship and Christian worth,—and it remains to speak of the structure itself.

The property was insured the years 1828, 1829, 1830, for $1500. The years 1831 and 1832 for $1000. Jacob Towne, jr., was treasurer, except in 1832, when R. A. Merriam served. The insurance was payable, in case of loss, to Solomon Wildes, of Boston, mortgagee. In 1833, the insurance permitted the use of the building on Sundays for religious meetings.

Solomon Wildes and his wife, Ruth B., of Boston, transferred all their right, title and interest in the property, June 10, 1846, for the amount of the first insurance, $1500, to Samuel Rea, of Portsmouth. These men were landlords. The former was located on Elm street, and the place was long known as "Wildes' Hotel." Mr. Wildes' interest included eighty-eight undivided hundredth parts; the remaining twelve undivided hundredth parts, belonging to Susan Cummings, of Topsfield, and Frederick Perley of Danvers, were not conveyed.

Samuel Rea and his wife Sarah A. C., of Portsmouth, sold their interest in the property for $800, by deed dated Oct. 15, 1846, to the persons named in the following schedule: A. S. Peabody, ten shares; Robert S. Perkins, four; J. P. Towne, two; Mary Towne, three; Abigail Perkins, two; Thomas L. Lane, two; Hannah Perkins, one; Isaac N.

Averill, one. There were twenty-five shares valued at $25 each, and included the same Rea purchased of Wildes.

To these proprietors Susan Cummings quit-claimed her interest in the property Nov. 16, 1846, for $1. Frederick Perley sold his interest to the same parties Dec. 15, 1846, for $56. J. W. Healy purchased the property of the proprietors July 22, 1854, for $800. The signatures on the deed to Healy are: Augustine S. Peabody, Robert S. Perkins, Mary J. Perkins, Isaac N. Averill, Israel Rea, John G. Hood, Thomas L. Lane, J. P. Towne, R. C. Towne, Mary Towne, 2d, Hannah Perkins and Helena Peabody. J. W. Healy and his wife Jane C., of Gardner, conveyed their interests Nov. 23, 1858, for $1000, to Albert Ira Dutton, who was then principal of the school.

From A. I. Dutton the title passed to Asahel Huntington, clerk of courts, of Salem, and Jacob W. Reed, attorney-at-law, of Groveland, and April 17, 1865, they relinquished their claims—Huntington for $1 and Reed for $1050, to Jeremiah Balch and Ephraim P. Peabody. Peabody sold to Balch, Jan. 17, 1868, for $600, and Balch conveyed the property to the town of Topsfield, March 6, 1868, for $1450. For some time between 1865 and 8 the building was used as a dwelling.

The town immediately converted the building into a school-house. The number of scholars had increased beyond the capacity of the modest structure on the common, and the "Topsfield Academy" became the "Centre school-house of Topsfield."

The mission of this property, dedicated so solemnly on May 7, 1828, by the earnest devotion of the whole community, in the joyous anticipation of long life and eternal good; the mission of able and devoted teachers in helping supply the world with cultured intellects and correct and stable principles could not die. Callimachus of ancient time, wrote:—

"The good never die."

For several years the town had felt the imperative need of ampler and better accommodations for her scholars. The old worn floors and doors, the palsied windows and wood stoves, afforded no security for health and gave no promise for comfort to the scholars, and the furniture and appointments were inadequate to the needs. In the summer of 1889, all was changed; the old institution as a member of America's unique and grand common school system, took a new lease of life. The front of the building was changed from the south to the west; the old ante-rooms and stairways were removed; and the entire building as it formerly stood made into four school-rooms, ample for forty or fifty students each. Each room has a cherry-wood floor, has for teacher and scholars desks of beautiful Michigan wood, has large, fine wall-slates, and has an even hot water heat radiating from the window sides of the rooms. The front, now upon the west, is a portico, 39 feet wide and projecting from the main building 14 feet. Beneath it is the heater; within it are four ante-rooms and the broad stairways. It is entered from the south, the north, and in front. The ventilation of the rooms is complete. Too much cannot be said in praise of this amended structure. No town of equal wealth in the county can boast or be proud of a better one. It may have cost much, but it is the equivalent of the cost, and will continue modern and adequate in all respects, a joy and comfort to the student, a conservator of health and learning, and the just pride of every patriotic citizen, for fifteen or twenty years, without additional cost. The building committee were: S. D. Hood, J. B. Poor, B. P. Edwards, D. Bradstreet and B. P. Pike.

The individuality of the Academy dissolved, in 1860, at the age of thirty-two years. She had survived her sisters, except the female Academies at Ipswich and Andover—not a survival of the fittest that we know of, but she was among the last survivors of a peerage, whose demise any community may rightly, truly mourn.

That she had several attacks of "innocuous desuetude" is no derogation from her fair fame or noble worth. As well question the grace and force of Christianity, because there were the Dark Ages; or great Homer's place among poets, because

"* * * Homer's self sometimes, they say, Took to his night-cap on the way."

This institution is to be judged by what she was and what she did.

Her principal teachers were nineteen in number—seventeen gentlemen and two ladies. Of the men, seven graduated at Dartmouth, three at Middlebury, one at Bowdoin, one at Harvard, one at University of Vermont while four were not college graduates. Of the latter, one at the age of ten years was reading Greek in Dummer Academy, and in due time received from Bowdoin, unasked, the master's degree in recognition of his classical attainments and proficiency as a professional teacher; another has given a long life of service to school and church; a third with his learned consort served twenty-nine years in the school-room and after her decease rounded out for himself a period of forty-five years of school work; the other bravely fought disease and labored in school and church till forty-two years of age.

Marble and Kent died at the ages of thirty-three and thirty-six years respectively, just entering upon their sphere of robust, aggressive, brilliant manhood. Of the remaining fourteen, eleven sealed the books of life at the average age of seventy-one, and three at the average age of seventy-two years are living. Long since one of the ladies passed over to the great majority, and one remains. Of the assistant principals and preceptresses we have sketched only seven—men and women bred at college and seminary.

Mark this cluster of stars that shed its salutary influence upon this Academy like the sweet influence of the Pleiades, every Pleiad like the facet of some rare gem, attractive by its own color, and brilliancy and beauty. Not that Gods eternity of space does not abound in clustered sweetness and activity: we are speaking of our own—men and women of cultivated talents, of aspiring genius, of exalted character, of great industry and lofty purpose. The achievements of their lives, their extended fame, and titled names prove our characterizations true and just. Here they gave the strength of their young maturity, here budded the promise of their sterling manhood, a noble ambition inspired their toil, fidelity crowned it with success and, though their terms of service were comparatively short, their names are remembered by citizen and pupil alike with praise. Their individuality left its impress upon the community like the image and superscription of a coin, or as the signet of a king.

The course of study—now antiquated—was arranged, as we have said, for moral culture, mental discipline and practical life. Therein, is all of it. The mental and moral faculties should be educated together. Eliminate them if you please, but to the extent of the elimination, the growth is unnatural. It is easier to err in matters moral than mental; the error in most instances is more elusive, and the result is a thousand times more fatal. In the Academy's classical course, the Greek Testament had a place of influence, and the English course had its Watts on the Mind, its Christian Evidences and Moral Science. Mr. Vose called his school together Sunday mornings for religious instruction. Moral culture was a part of the learning of those days; our times are certainly not imitators, nor on that account more excellent.

The mental discipline of the Academy was fundamental; it taught the scholar to think consecutively, patiently, critically; it taught him research—to follow sequences and deduce conclusions; it taught him self-reliance in matters of judgment and descretion—a desideratum in the citizenship of a republic—and fitted him—yes, to follow, but more especially—to lead, and also taught that patient labor is the best of life and garners best results. The idea of the plan was, that the fewest studies adequate to the end were best suited to the inexperienced mind of youth; and it is a serious question with us, if the professions, scholarship and current life would not be better served by the old regime than by the brimming curriculum of the present time.

Old academic life had its social, moral and literary atmosphere, the principal his magnetism, the scholar his ideality. These influences were peculiar to the old academies and colleges, and may be emphasized here, since we know so well the impressive character of the preceptors, and have thereto the testimony of their pupils. Indeed we are here today in abeyance of their regal behest. These influences are very, very seldom, if ever, found in the public schools; they are, however, among the most important in producing excellence in scholarship and character. A learned divine and academy trustee, in speaking of the personal character of the Academy principal, said:—"This influence in many cases was even more than scholarship, as it had more to do in the building up of strong, harmonious, and well developed manhood." How valuable then, is the combined influence of magnetism, ideality and atmosphere!

Nearly 800 names of students of this Academy are recorded. Ten principals issued no catalogue. The number of ladies and gentlemen who studied here is safely estimated at 1200. A large proportion of them taught while students, and thus the individuality of the Academy began to expand. Some continued the teacher's profession, some became intelligent and progressive farmers, some entered business, inspiring enterprise and correcting methods, others became skillful mechanics, and many studied in higher schools and entered the professions. The old institution is living today in the deeds of her children; the leaven of her polemy is working through a thousand agencies, building, molding, guiding, sustaining. In biological language, she is in happy correspondence with her environment, and her life and work are everlasting as her environment.

Cried an ancient philosopher:—"Give me where to stand and with my lever I will move the world." A problem in Prof. Greenleaf's National Arithmetic, by way of illustrating a principle, calculated the billions upon billions of miles from a given fulcrum he must stand, and the next problem calculated the billions of years he must live, to move the earth one inch.

Cried an ancient philosopher:—"Give me where to stand and I will move the world," and Topsfield Academy, by her life that was and her life that is, exclaims: "Stand where thou art, and thou shalt indeed move the world, by thy diligence and perseverance, by thy integrity and ability, by thy learning and culture, by thy sobriety and character—thy manhood, by thy citizen service and business enterprise, thy philanthropy and devotion to thy God.—Hail! blessed potency, hail!

LITERARY EXERCISES.
REUNION
TEACHERS AND STUDENTS.
TOPSFIELD ACADEMY.
AUGUST 12, 1897.

JEFFERSON K. COLE, OF PEABODY, MASS.

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN:—Before I begin my address I would like to read you a letter written by Professor George W. Atherton, President of the Pennsylvania State College.

THE PENNSYLVANIA STATE COLLEGE,

President's Office.

State College, Centre Co., Pa.

MR. GEORGE F. DOW,

July 21, 1897.

Topsfield, Mass.

My dear sir:—I very much regret to be compelled to give up my engagement to meet the old Academy students next month.* At the time I wrote you last I had not the slightest idea that anything could intervene to prevent me from being with you; but I find myself obliged to go to Europe, and shall therefore be out of the country when the Reunion is held.

*Professor Atherton had accepted an invitation to deliver an address at this time.

THE COMMISSIONERS OF THE LAND OFFICE

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M.

The Commission of the Land Office, State of Texas, has the honor to acknowledge the receipt of the report of the Surveyor General of the Public Lands, for the year 1887, and to publish the same.

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., 1888.

The disappointment is a very great one to me, as I had anticipated a renewal of associations which have been among the most delightful of my life. My attendance at the Academy was the first step in my effort to secure a college education, and, while the associations then formed have been broken by long separation, it would be an inexpressible satisfaction to take again by the hand those with whom I spent so many delightful hours. To the few who will remember me I wish you would convey my greetings, and to all my sincere regrets.

Thanking you very much for your courtesy in the matter, I am

Faithfully yours,

GEO. W. ATHERTON.

And because of Mr. Atherton's inability to be here, and the change necessary in the program, I stand before you at this time to bid you welcome. So, classmates, schoolmates, former teachers and pupils, as I look into your faces this afternoon, changed though they are by the years that have passed, I see, I think, in each one, a reflection of that which is in my own heart, and I will say, as so many said this morning, "I am glad to be here today." I am glad to be in Topsfield on this most interesting and auspicious occasion.

We may congratulate ourselves, my friends, on the beautiful day that Providence has given us for this gathering; and as we have come together, as we have shaken the hands of those who were our schoolmates so many years ago, and have renewed those early acquaintances, real joy has come into our hearts, and I feel that it is a gathering of which everyone present is glad to be a part.

It is my duty, as well as my privilege, to extend to you, as members of the Academy, the welcome of those whose interest and labors of love have made this coming together a reality. In behalf of Mr. George Francis Dow, to whom perhaps we are most indebted for this pleasant occasion, I extend to you a most hearty and cordial welcome.

Associated with him are the later students of the Academy, and the Historical society of the town, and in their behalf I extend to you a most cordial welcome.

And the good old town, I do not know that we have a special or official representative of the town present, but I am sure that we have from the citizens, many of whom we remember with great pleasure, a most hearty welcome.

We are changed, but as I now look into your faces, and as I have, during the morning, met one and another of my old school fellows, after close scrutiny, and a long grasp of the hand, I have been able to say "Yes, I can see the old familiar eyes, and hear something of the younger tone of the voice," and so our hearts spring forth to one another, and we grasp the hand again and say "Yes, we were here together forty years ago;" forty and more years, some of us can say, and still we feel young today.

But the hands of time have been busy. We have changed, and the old Academy is changed. We should all be glad if we could go up yonder hill and in at the door of the Academy and see things as they were then, but the building has been changed—changed to be younger and more modern, as is fitting and to be expected, in a community like this.

But some will say, "Topsfield Academy! Why, Topsfield Academy is dead! It died years ago!" Oh no! Topsfield Academy still lives! Not only in the hearts of those before me, but it lives in our lives—in the lives of every one who hears me this afternoon. It lives in our memory of those whom we knew in those years, and who have gone on before, and whom we expect to meet sometime on the other shore.

One of the reverend gentlemen who sit behind me, said to-day that he has never seen the name of a Topsfield Academy student in the Police Gazette or a Rogues' Gallery. (He may, later on, tell you how he knows so much about the Rogues' Gallery.) But I presume he is right when he says that those who were educated in Topsfield, and took in the inspiration of these beautiful hills, and carried out the instructions given us by our kind and thoughtful teachers, have never been heard of in the Police Gazette or Rogues' Gallery.

To Topsfield Academy and its instructors we all look back to-day with pleasure and gratitude, for what we here gained in our efforts to acquire a higher education.

And, to the old Academy, the communities about here from which we came owe a debt which, perhaps, some might say, can never be repaid, but which we may, I think, better say, has been, and is being, paid in the lives of the many who went out from the Academy so well equipped for eminent usefulness.

And the founders of the Academy,—let us not forget them, but bear in mind how richly we have entered into their labors, and how great is our obligation to them for their zeal, their unselfishness and their liberality.

And the good old town, which in so many ways and for so many years did so much to maintain the Academy! It is a source of great honor to this people that here, when public schools of a high grade were lacking, such an institution as this held so high and so large a place in their hearts. The fact is indisputable testimony to the character and worth of the good citizens of Topsfield. And the good cheer, the hearty welcome, the ample preparations which meet us on every hand here to-day are but added testimony in the same direction, and are proof to us that in all these years the character of this people has not changed, except it be for the better.

So in many ways, in many hearts, in many lives, the old times are renewed, and we who are here to-day rejoice that a kind Providence has spared us to meet once more, living witnesses to the fact that Topsfield Academy still lives.

ORATION.

BY JOHN WRIGHT PERKINS, OF SALEM, MASS.

I am forceably reminded by my position here to-day, of an incident which happened nearly forty years ago. Its story has been often repeated and is doubtless familiar to many of you. But when new the incident was this:—The late Rufus Choate had been engaged to give the Oration at the commencement exercises of Dartmouth College, his Alma Mater. Failing health had obliged him to withdraw from the engagement and Dr. Holmes had been secured to speak in his place. On the Doctor's way up to Hanover the question was asked:—"Who is to fill Mr. Choate's place on the program?" To which the Doctor at once replied:—"Nobody is going to fill it, I am going up to rattle round in it."

Sharing with you in the general disappointment and regret, occasioned by the necessary absence of the distinguished gentleman, who was put down as the Orator for this occasion, I have at the eleventh hour engaged to stand here and "rattle round in his place."

In the twenty minutes to which this part of the program has been wisely limited, it would not, of course, be possible, to treat any subject exhaustively, but it will be necessary to adopt a somewhat touch and go style, in the way of suggestion, rather than of completeness.

Having in mind, that we were to meet as the representatives of an educational institution, drawn together by considerations chiefly personal and local in their nature, it has seemed to me not inappropriate to take as my theme:—The Personal and the Local Element in Education. It is possible for words of most important meaning to loose something of their definiteness, by the very commonness and extent of their use. They seem to shade off into varied significations, modified by the personalities of the many who use them. Thus, Religion, Politics, Education, stand for most important principles, and yet we know that each of these words may awaken different conceptions, in the minds of people of the same community. Hence, in speaking of such topics, it is well in the beginning, to make a statement of what the subject treated means in the mind of the speaker. Particularly is this true of Education, since, as we shall see, the word has two well-defined meanings.

Some months ago, I was requested to write an article of not more than four hundred words upon this subject: "What constitutes a good education and how to obtain it." I respectfully declined, giving as my excuse, that I did not have sufficient time to cover so large a subject in so few words. I added, however, that for a brief and comprehensive answer to the questions proposed, I knew of nothing better than six words from the Old Testament:—"Fear God and keep his commandments," bearing in mind that fear, here means profound reverence, and that the commands of God have been written not only in a book, but all over the face of nature, and stamped upon the individual conscience of every rational being. You will remember that in the context from which these six words are taken, they are followed by the statement, "For this is the whole duty of man." But the word duty is in italic, indicating that it is not in the original, so that the Hebrew text is even stronger and more suggestive, with the meaning, "For this is the whole of man." Education in its enlarged sense has to do with the whole man.

Since giving that answer, I have heard a definition given by two college professors, from widely distant colleges, and each defined education in the words used by the other, namely, "fullness of life," which is much the same in substance as the one suggested above. But this word in its strictly technical and scientific sense is more restricted in its meaning, and denotes only that culture which is the product of a human mind, working upon and directing the mind of another. The larger definition given above reminds us of the words of him, whom, whatever else we may think of him, we must regard as the greatest and most influential of teachers in which he proclaimed the object of his mission in the declaration, "I am come that they might have life and that they might have it more abundantly." But along side of this declaration it is well to place his other saying, "Is not the life more than meat and the body than raiment?" and also his statement, "He that would save his life must lose it." In these three sayings of the founder of Christianity, we have the foundation of a large part of the Philosophy of Education. We have its aim, an abundant life, the suggested meaning of life as something raised above mere material well being, and the further truth that the largest expansion of life must come through previous suppression and self denial.

In the old Assembly's Catechism, in which our fathers were instructed and some of us began to be instructed, the first question and answer, you will recall, has to do with the "chief end of man." As it is therein defined, it is not easy to see how either part of the answer could be realized short of the fullest development of all our powers and capabilities. For a time, it was a question of hot discussion and patient investigation among men of science, whether in the physical world, there was to be found convincing evidence of the spontaneous origin of life. But after much trial the confession came, "We know nothing of the origin of life save as it is found in preexistant life." So of by far the greater part of our intellectual, our moral and our spiritual life, the part which is the product of education in its scientific sense, we have to say, it is wholly dependant upon preexistant life of a similar kind.

Whether the man has been trained in the schools, or is a so-called "self made man"—an impossible product, by the way, in civilized society—in the last analysis he will be found mainly indebted to the spoken or written word, or to the unspoken or unwritten personal influence of other men.

So great is the undesigned and unconscious effect of social relationship, that it has always formed a great factor in the advantages of our schools, particularly where, as in academy and college, the students see much of one another outside of the hours set for study and recitation. Edward Everett Hale, speaking of the influences which had contributed to his education, says, for the good he received in college, he was more indebted to the fellows, than to the faculty. If any one thinks that Dr. Hale does not mean to be taken quite seriously in this assertion, it must at least be acknowledged as strong testimony, from a high authority, to the advantage obtained from the mutual intercourse of student life.

A similar sentiment was expressed in a letter I once received from a gentleman in a distant city, concerning his son who was under my instruction. He said he wished his boy to go to college, preferably to one which had a widely distributed patronage, that he might make the acquaintance of cultivated men, representing different and distant types of American society.

But the personal element, great as its province is, can not claim the entire realm of education for its own, when we use the word education, in its most comprehensive sense. Then the word stands for a result, which is the product of all the influences that combined to increase one's power, elevate his taste, or purify his character, and among these, the element of locality, with all it implies, must take a very high rank. In savage life this comes to be strikingly noticeable. Literature and tradition are fruitful in anecdote of habits of minute observation, of mental alertness, and power of quick adaptation to sudden emergencies, among uncivilized men, which seems to us preternatural, not to say, supernatural.

In literary productions of the highest order, the most impressive passages are often those which reveal the power exercised upon the author by local scenery and homely incident. Prophet and Psalmist are replete with imagery of the open country life with which they must have lived on terms of friendly intimacy. When we read Homer and other ancient poets, Greek and Latin, we are constantly finding delightful evidence of strength, wisdom, and refined simplicity of taste drawn from the same unfailing source. Especially can no one read Homer without being impressed with the evidence, that he was influenced by proximity to the ocean. One of his many descriptive epithets is so expressive and so resonant, that from it Dr. Holmes coins a word, when he speaks of the "poluphloesboean sea." This, in plainer English, means the sea of many voices. Can any one doubt, that the man who thus habitually expresses himself, had often walked by the shore of the sounding sea, and had taken into his soul both the awakening, and the subduing effect of the thunderous reverberation, and the lispings, tinkling melody of its music.

Among poets of our own tongue, Burns, Whittier, Longfellow, and Lowell, represent—two of them—an education independent of the schools, the other two, the highest education to be obtained by almost every appliance of culture. Yet all are alike in this, that those things in their works that charm us most, could not have been produced, had not the authors been brought face to face with Nature at first hand.

Whenever I hear—as I frequently do—children whose life is mostly confined in cities, reading or reciting gems of prose or poetry descriptive of country life or incident, there always stirs within me, a feeling of pity for their hopeless inability to appreciate the spirit of the words they utter. At such times, I think how much there is that calls for unspeakable gratitude, in the lot of one in whose early life, field and meadow, pasture and woodland, winding streams and sequestered paths, animate life both wild and domestic, were the objects of daily observation.

I still walk occasionally over the same road and pasture paths that were my daily route between this school and the home of my boyhood. They happen to lie through some of the most attractive scenery of this beautiful old town. And, as I stop here and there to gaze, seeing before me the beauty and variety of the extended landscape and the distant sea, I ask myself the question:—"Did I as a boy, did I, take in all these things at their full worth?" and the answer rises in my heart, that whether I did or did not, their silent influence wrought for me, that which has immeasurably increased the worth of everything else that I have ever learned. Among the blessed fruits of these country academies, we are to consider the importance of the service they rendered, in bringing young men and maidens from the cities, during a part of the plastic period of youth, into more intimate contact and acquaintance with the grand old teacher of us all, Mother Nature herself.

But the influence of locality may be felt as an educative force also, through the law of association, in bringing before our mental vision with increased vividness, deeds and events that deserve undying remembrance. Thus, from all parts of our country and from beyond the sea, the thronging multitudes come to visit Plymouth Rock, and Lexington, and Concord, and Bunker Hill. They come with no expectation surely, of being thrilled by the intrinsic beauty or grandeur of these places; but because the places are suggestive of the sublime faith in God, through which our country was founded, and the sturdy, heroic valor, with which its liberties were defended.

Two hundred and fifty years ago this very year, the Puritan spirit expressed itself in establishing the first free public school in Massachusetts. The act of establishment was accompanied by a preamble which stated the motive, and ended with these words:—"That learning may not be buried in the grave of our fathers in the church and commonwealth." They had already founded the college. We hold these acts in highest honor, not alone because we regard them as the fountain from which there has flowed, and from which we believe there will ever continue to flow, a stream whose waters shall do much for the "healing of the nations," but because we know something of the personal sacrifice and self-denial which these acts involved, on the part of those by whom they were conceived and executed.

But founded in much the same spirit, and often maintained with hardly less personal sacrifice, were the country academies which dotted so many of the hills of New England, and which did a most important work that otherwise must, in great part, have been left undone.

Today the spell of personality, and the spell of locality, are strong upon us. We feel that it is good for us to meet once more, to renew our familiarity with the place, and with one another, and to recall the memory of other schoolmates, and former teachers, to all of whom, our feeling of indebtedness is deep and lasting. But the place and the occasion remind us, also, of others, who may or may not have ever been members of the same school, but through whose inspiration, and self-denying help, the advantages of an extended school-life were made our own. Today, like the gracious return of a blessed presence, the thought comes to us, of those who judged no pains too great, no sacrifice too costly, that son or daughter, brother or sister, might share to the full in the benefits of sound learning, because they believed that in such sacrifice, they were helping to transmute the outward things of life, into the inward power of enlarged being, and because by precept and example, handed down through long lines of ancestry, they had learned and they wished us never to forget, to "look not upon the things which are seen, but upon the things which are not seen," in the firm faith and belief, that "the things which are seen are temporal, but the things which are not seen are eternal." the first of these is the fact that the

the second is the fact that the
the third is the fact that the the fourth is the fact that the the fifth is the fact that the the sixth is the fact that the the seventh is the fact that the the eighth is the fact that the

We never can forget,
That years ago we met.
In Topsfield town.
In heart, and mind, and will,
We feel the impulse still,
Of Academic hill,
In Topsfield town.

Today we here repair,
And breathe the healthful air
In Topsfield town.
Each field and stream we greet—
Each spot to memory sweet—
And tread the ancient street
In Topsfield town.

Thanks for our welcome here,
Thanks for this goodly cheer
In Topsfield town.
'Twas ever Topsfield's way,
To make the comer's stay
Happy as summer day
In Topsfield town.

BEAUTY.

GEORGE CONANT, OF PASADENA, CALIFORNIA.

"Beauty armed with Virtue fortifies the soul
With a commanding but a sweet control."

Whatever strikes the eye
With a pleasurable thrill,
Or delights the willing ear
And its winding channels fill,
Or wakes the soul to action
And its finer fibres sway,
Or touches up the heart-strings
In a sweetly brilliant way,
Has charms upon the beautiful
In sky, on land and sea
'Mong high and low of every race—
A key to harmony.
The harmony of color
And the harmony of song,
The melody of Vesper bells
To the beautiful belong.
Beauty lingers in the lily,
Is enthroned within the rose,
Climbs to dizzy heights of splendor
In the arch of God's rainbows,
Slumbers with the sleeping cherub
In its cottage cradle bed,
Wakes to conscious revelation
When fair youth and maiden wed.
Seen is beauty in the lowest
And the highest of God's creatures,
When in symmetry enfolded
And endowed with winning features.

Nothing can be viewed as homely
That gives pleasure to the mind :
A wrinkled maid filled up with goodness
An Uncle Tom both black and blind,
A whitened head packed full of wisdom,
A benefactor bowed with years,
Unselfish children at their pastime,
A fallen Peri shedding tears,
A mother with her firstling baby,
An Indian girl by mirrored stream
Making her simple morning toilet,
A model for an artist's theme—
All these are pictures full of beauty
Pictures hung on every hand,
Multitudes greet their unveiling
Admiration they command.
The world is full of things of beauty
Everywhere within the poles,
It strikes with force all keen observers,
It stirs them to their inner souls.
Looking from a mountain summit
There breaks a captivating view,
Nerve-stilling thoughts course long the brain-cells—
Nature's pictures touched anew;
The vastness of the sweep of vision
Quickens pulse and brings delight,
And the far off landscape beauties
Seem to swing before the sight;
Lake and orchard nestling closely,
Vineyard, meadow, garden, rock,
Silver threads of winding rivers,
Emerald forest, shepherd's flock,
Shadows from o'erhanging cloudland,
Moving, fleck the valley wide,
Seas of grain-field, waving golden
On which ghostly ships might ride.
This is cycloramic beauty
Only seen from towering heights,
Overwhelming in its grandeur—
Far transcending other sights,

Dimly glints the distant ocean;
Circumscribing with its sheen
Islands on the curved horizon
Rounding out the shimmering scene.
The vision changes: Night is drawing
Down her curtain near and far Sable drapery unfolding—
Pins it with a jeweled star.
As the twilight further deepens
Nature's symphonies resound;
Chirping insects the soprano
Turtle doves the alto sound.
Then the silver limbs of Luna,
One on earth and one in sky,
Vault upon the floor of heaven,
Trip it with the stars on high.
Constellations light the ceiling
Of the azure concave arch,
Unique figures masked and merry—
Grand processions dance and march.
What more magnifies our pleasure,
Glorifies the eager sight,
Than the heavenly exhibition
Of an oriental night?
The immensity of dome
Studded full of glittering gems,
Crowns the works of the Creator,
Drapes his garments to the hems.
Reincarnate Michael Angelo
In the Cistine Chapel, lives
Immortalized in splendid frescoes
Which only God-like genius gives.
Nature's songs in quiet cadence
Sound at night and early morn,
In the sighing pine-tree forest,
In the rustling fields of corn.
When the frost king grasps the branches
Covering twigs on bush and tree,
And the sun unlocks the shackles,
How they fall with tinkling glee!

From the beauties of creation
Lying 'neath cerulean dome,
Rising higher than the landscape
Are the beauties of the home:
Wheels domestic running smoothly
With no break or plaintive cry,
Love, the motive power and lubric
As the days go sweetly by.
In the serious days of history
When America was new,
When religion was the watchword
And the christians were but few,
When the worshipers were fleeing
From the tyranny of kings,
And these potentates were masters
Of men's souls and other things,
When brave woman's deeds were stifled
And heroines held at bay,
And men were lords and masters
Having everything to say,
When such records were unfolding
In the days of long ago—
Then the mothers seemed like ciphers
But were far from being so;
For the rock where the Pilgrims landed
Was as much fore-mothers' rock,
As it was the famed forefathers'—
Just as sturdy, stalwart, stock.
When we think now of the hardships
Our forefathers struggled through,
Just consider our condition
Had not fore-mothers struggled too.
Let a painting then be issued
Let it hang on every wall,
Representing our fore-mothers—
'Twould excel in beauty all.
Character foremost must illumine
Every step in life's career,
Crowning, makes the wearer fairer,
Beauty that all men revere.

Righteous lives transcend in beauty
Art or song or facile pen,
Reaching 'cross the silent river
Recognized as golden then.
God's greatest works revolve in cycles,
Wheeling, whirling, never wrong,
So, moral heroes have an orbit
Which to the beautiful belong.
Men will travel land and ocean
In search of treasures seldom found,
When all around them in the home-land
Treasures everywhere abound:
Wonderful treasures in tree and flower,
Mountain fastness, field and sky—
Myriad microscopic museums,
Under our very feet they lie.
What so fair as falling water,
Cascades leaping, foaming, white,
Mountain torrents rushing onward
Filling soul with rare delight?
Breathing marble—sculptor's offspring
Chiseled from his fertile brain—
Artist's soul-work, living canvas,
Applauding we can scarce refrain.
Down in caverns of the ocean
So profound the brain e'en reels
Find we many a field of beauty—
A world of wealth man's skill reveals.
The beauties of Nature never are stilled
Her cataracts thunder and roar,
Diapasons of Ocean will ever resound
On island and continent shore.
Nightingale notes from ideal throats
Ravish the ear and the soul,
And even the morning stars it is writ
Took up the musical role.
Beauty glows in flowers of language,
Pulpit, platform show its power,
Rostrum, forum, sway the masses,—
Eloquence is beauty's dower.

Search we in Zulu or Hottentot land,
Plunge we in African shade,
Climb we above the glacial flow,
Spectacular shows are arrayed.
There is beauty of color, beauty of form,
Beauty of figure and face,
Beautiful thoughts—the mosaics of mind,
Beauty of manner and grace.

Scriptural beauties hung on biblical walls,
Charm us, inspire us and sorrow forestalls;
Prophets and saints, historians, kings,
Have given to thought most beautiful wings;
They flash on our vision as we scan the pure pages,
"The beauty of holiness" has been noted for ages,
'Tis woven in story, repeated in song,
Inspiring the feeble and righting the wrong;
"How beautiful on mountains are couriers' feet
That bring us glad tidings," and goodness replete.
"The beautiful temple," "the beautiful gate,"
The beautiful home we anticipate—
All thrill as with hope of a life that is newer,
Cementing our friendship and making it truer.
Now ere we dismiss this delight-giving theme
There uplifts before me a kind of day-dream;
A landscape so fair rises full on my sight,
Its loveliness rare the muses invite.
A village I see as a crown to the field,
Her emerald robes in beauty revealed,
Enfringed by a radiant meandering river
Benign benefactions exhaling forever,
Reflecting a joy like the "Vale of Cashmere,"
A bucolic scene that scarce has a peer.
Here the bees of Hymettus voice their sweet coming
As they bring in the nectar with musical humming—
The robes, the field, the bees and the stream
Roseate and sun-kissed make up the day-dream.
Oh! Topsfield! Top of the fields, and pride of the hills,
Tranquil and restful panacea for men's ills,

Greeting Aurora, as she mounts her red car,
For a drive thro' the gates of the morning afar;
Smiling with sunshine, smiling in shade,
Foremost in peace, but in war not dismayed,
Sitting as Queen in this beauteous valley,
Gracious to guests that 'round your feet rally!
Villas, meadows, and river your arena bedecking
With garden and orchard—your verdant slopes flecking,
Your firesides aglow with contentment and peace—
May your sky as today from gloom have surcease,
And more than all this may the stars on you shine
Lustrous in beauty as in days of "lang syne."
The day will soon close, but in mem'ry to exist,
Our lessons recited, the school be dismissed,
Yet the greenness of age must prove no delusion
Can we only accept these words in conclusion:
In "Union there's strength" in reunion yet more,
The latch string has beauty when it hangs out the door;
The reunion of hearts as the world ever stands
Is more beautiful still than reunion of hands.
Tho' the gathering years make the outside grow old
And the teeth leave their moorings or are yellow with gold,
Tho' the heads become silvered and the backs have a bend,
And the steps get a sort of irregular trend,
Tho' all of these sign-boards point but one way
Down the slippery life-slope to physical decay,
Yet ever triumphant the heart should be young,
Tho' the faculties falter soul-songs should be sung—
And here is a truth above all contradiction
(And as we look on this group it becomes a conviction,)
That the fairest of things—the most beautiful sign,
Is the eternal spring just below the snow-line.

Then reenforced be our courage
As we go down the grade,
Let us think not of sorrow to-morrow,
Nor look we to witness the evening star fade
Or ever a heart trouble borrow.

So, let the crown of all beauties
That the reason must sway,
Be placed on the youthful Re-unionist today—
The one who feels youngest
The laurel should crown,
For he's rising the slope
As others go down.

HISTORICAL ADDRESS.

M. V. B. PERLEY, OF IPSWICH, MASS.

The Historical Address, delivered by Mr. Perley, at this point in the literary exercises has been entirely rewritten, and is printed herewith as a "History of the Academy." "The structure of the address has, in preparation of this history, been demolished, and the framework used as the receptacle of any and all obtainable facts having reference to the subject."

REMINISCENT ADDRESS.

REV. GEO. L. GLEASON, OF HAVERHILL, MASS.

Great interests are affected sometimes by trivial incidents. Great occasions are determined by seemingly insignificant events. This illustrious gathering once hinged upon the simple circumstance, that J. Warren Healy knew how to advertise. And this art he understood to perfection. Here, I desire to say in passing, that I agree with the historian of the day, in regarding J. Warren Healy as a most remarkable man. He was not a scholar, or man of literary culture. He never had time for thorough literary training. During his college course, he supported himself and wife, by teaching and preaching, and ever after he was engaged in the most intense service. Yet he was a peer of literary men; and for a time was the president of a university. For the same reason, he was not a profound theologian, still, he occupied some of the commanding pulpits of the Interior, and received the degree of D. D., from a respectable western college. No one would regard him as eminent for piety. Yet, he was called to the pastorate of Mr. Moody's church in Chicago, where spirituality was regarded as the prime factor. He occupied other important positions, and his whole career may be regarded as phenomenal. My acquaintance with Mr. Healy began in the autumn of 1853, and continued with more or less intimacy up to the time of his death. I have already remarked that Mr. Healy knew how to advertise. This was one of the secrets of his success. In the summer of '53, he announced to the youth of northern N. H., and Vt., that he had taken Bath Academy, and was prepared with an able corps of teachers, to give the best possible education, in the shortest possible time, and at the

THE HISTORY OF THE

The history of the world is a vast and complex subject, encompassing the lives of countless individuals and the events that have shaped our planet. From the earliest civilizations to the modern era, the story of humanity is one of constant change and evolution. The history of the world is a tapestry of diverse cultures, languages, and traditions, each contributing to the rich fabric of our shared human experience. The study of history allows us to understand the past, learn from the mistakes of others, and gain insight into the future. It is a discipline that challenges us to think critically and to question the status quo. The history of the world is a journey of discovery, one that leads us to the heart of our humanity and to the universal truths that bind us all together. The history of the world is a story of hope, resilience, and the power of the human spirit. It is a story that reminds us of our place in the universe and of the responsibility we have to one another. The history of the world is a story that is still being written, and it is up to us to ensure that it is a story of progress and of a better future for all.

least possible expense. This was the school we all wanted to attend. The youth of that day were in greater haste to get into their life work, even, than the young men and women of the present.

My older brother and myself, passed by an academy which we had previously attended, and which we knew to be well equipped and manned, and with sixty or eighty other youth, in the autumn of '53, entered Bath Academy. We found it an old dilapidated building, with no apparatus, and no provision for boarding the students. The able corps of teachers consisted of J. Warren Healy, A. B., as principal, Mrs. J. Warren Healy, as preceptress, and a small limb of the law as assistant. Mr. Healy soon became seriously ill, and the school was left to run itself. Here my real acquaintance with Mr. Healy began, for I was one of the students drafted into service as a watcher and then as a nurse. I found him to be a very irritable and uneasy patient, caused largely by the nature of his disease. And here I discovered another life-long obstacle with which he had to contend, physical infirmities which would have disheartened and paralyzed the endeavor, of one less brave and ambitious. The state of his health compelled him to abandon the school, about the middle of the fall term, and the most of the pupils left the academy. Here, I first met Dan Wilkins, a typical Vermonter, though born on the east side of the Connecticut river. He was a man of unusual ability, his talent partaking of the nature of genius. Had he not lacked some of the moral elements, he would have been a great character. He followed Mr. Healy to Topsfield in the autumn of '54, and, I think, remained through the winter. He wrote me such glowing descriptions of the town and school, that I decided to join him in the fall of '55. He arranged to meet me at Middleton, as the trains did not connect so that I could reach Topsfield in a day. Vividly do I remember landing on the platform of the lonely station in Middleton, one hot, dusty afternoon in September, and looking in vain for my friend. If ever I experienced the sensation of homesickness, it was, when walking the dusty turnpike to Topsfield in company with a Mr. Lake of that town. With Goldsmith's traveller, I "dragged with each remove a lengthening chain." The exaggerated account of the town and people, and the school, by which I was entertained, did not reassure or comfort me. Here I should remark, that Wilkins had engaged to meet me at Middleton on a certain day, but I was detained, sent him a telegram in ample season, but it did not reach him until several days after I had been established as his room-mate, in the home of Mr. Israel Rea. The autumn of '55, passed without special incident. I devoted myself to earnest study, and sought to adjust myself to my new surroundings. But, at the beginning of the winter term, I became a member of Mr. Healy's family. It came about in this wise. On entering the academy, I sported a gold watch, chain and fob. This became the admiration of some, the envy of others, and the scorn of a third class. I did not feel quite at ease in this gorgeous array. But Mr. Healy seemed to covet the outfit, and we entered into the following written agreement, viz.: I, the party of the first part, covenanted to make over to him the watch, chain and fob; he, the party of the second part, agreed to furnish me with board a certain number of weeks, and tuition a certain number of terms. George Pierce of Marblehead, became my room-mate. He was then studying with reference to the Christian ministry. During this term some significant, and many amusing incidents occurred.

A prayer meeting was started in the academy, and Mr. Richardson the assistant teacher, invited me to attend and conduct the singing. It was at the first meeting that I decided to enter fully upon the religious life, and publicly declared my purpose. Thus was changed the whole current of my life. Others took a similar stand, and the whole school, for a time, was pervaded with a strong religious sentiment. My room-mate proposed, sometime during the winter, that we should try and correct each the others dialect and ungrammatical expressions; his speech, smacked of the sea, mine, of the mountains. This arrangement worked admirably for a time. It was a great advantage to see and hear ourselves, as another saw and heard us. But a rivalry arose, not altogether generous, I fear, as to who should detect the most faults, and soon there was a sting in the criticism, some irony, and more bitterness in our corrections and we eventually lapsed into silence. After matters had come to such a pitch, we concluded to leave each, to correct his own faults of speech and conduct, and friendship was restored. The character of the board furnished us that winter was very unsatisfactory, the supply was not equal to the demand, and the quality was as objectionable as the quantity. Mrs. Healy was always overworked. With a single servant, she was expected to provide for her large and hungry family, and still do duty as preceptress in the academy, then at its height of popularity and attendance. Some of us were accustomed to supplement our meagre fare at the table, by a nocturnal visit to the kitchen. We had already secured the good-will of Ellen, the cook, and maid-of-all work, who aided and abetted our predatory warfare on the larder.

One evening, if so late an hour as 11 P. M. may be called evening, several of us were regaling ourselves with a sumptuous repast after our day's abstemiousness, when a ghost appeared upon the stairway, and the most of us were thrown into a state of consternation. But Ellen, who was always equal to the occasion, seized the ladle, and hastily filling it with cold water, discharged its full contents at the ghost as it vanished at the head of the stairs. A conspiracy of silence seemed to follow this occurrence, and it is with some hesitation, after forty-two years silence, that I give the facts to the public. Personally, I do not believe in ghosts. But I am sure in regard to this one. Like others it was arrayed in white. Like the typical ghost it remained silent. But unlike others, it came from above, went back to its own place, and never again appeared.

Sam. Fowler took his dinners at Mr. Healy's. One day Mrs. Healy had cut the two pies just so they would go round. She asked each of us in turn, which we would have, squash or apple. Our replies were governed, not by our tastes or the merits of the pies, but by the prospect of their holding out so as to go round. When Sam's turn came, he was equal to the occasion, and replied, "I will take a piece of both, if you please." Thus, some one had to go without, probably, Mrs. Healy.

It was during this winter, that George Pierce proposed a drive to Bradford, to spend the day. He suggested that it would improve our manners to go more into good society. The real object, however, was to visit Bradford Academy, and to see one Susan Perley, of Danvers, whom he had met, and of whom he was somewhat enamored. We secured a fine horse and sleigh, with a merry string of bells, of Frederic Merriam. But the horse proved to be a tearer. He started from the stable like a cannon ball, but unlike a cannon ball, his speed did not diminish as the distance increased. However, we reached our place of destination without incident. We called on Benjamin Greenleaf, whom we found a most genial, entertaining man; his daughters were equally engaging. I had conceived a decided prejudice against Mr. Greenleaf, because of his mathematical works, his algebra had been my special abhorrence. But ever after this I have "esteemed him very highly in love," for what he was, but not for "his works' sake." We spent the day very delightfully, and profitably, in company with the students of the academy, and towards night turned our faces homeward. But if the horse was eager to reach his place of destination in the morning, he now seemed frantic. It required all our energy to keep him under control. Soon the darkness shut down upon us. Another terror was soon added, for a blinding snow storm set in. All we could do was to hold on, sometimes with our combined force, and plunge into the gathering gloom. At one time, when the horse was at the height of his speed, and I was taking my turn at holding on, the sleigh gave a lurch to one side, and George rolled out. Summoning all my energy, I succeeded, in a seasonable time, in bringing the horse to a halt. George came up after a time, puffing and groaning, declaring that he feared his shoulder was dislocated. I asked him why he had got out? He said he feared the sleigh was going to tip over. I told him that never in the country were we accustomed to get out until we were sure of a tip-over. But he had incapacitated himself for "holding on," and I drove the remaining distance without further incident. It was to both of us a memorable day.

The assistant teachers in the Academy were men of rare ability and excellent character. I would gladly speak of each in turn, if time permitted. J. Henry Richardson was the assistant, in the years '55-6. I shall never cease to be gratified that it was my lot to fall in with such a pure and noble man, at this formative period of my life. He took me into his confidence and friendship. We walked, and talked, and sang together, and became intimate companions. He invited me to go with him to Andover, where he had an engagement as leader of the Episcopal choir. He took me to the home of Prof. Stowe, and introduced me to my subsequent theological teacher, and his then famous wife. He also invited me to go with him to North Reading, to attend a concert given by the Normal Musical Institute, which was under the direction of Lowell Mason and George F. Root. Webb presided at the organ, the most accomplished organist I had ever heard. He proposed to pay all the expenses, making the only condition of my acceptance, that I should invite two young ladies whom he designated, Miss Georgie Dorman and Miss Addie Rea. We took tea at his home in Middleton, and his brother and two sisters accompanied us to the concert. I afterwards became a pupil in this Institute, and was in the chorus that furnished the music at the Andover Theological Seminary anniversary. We sang the Hallelujah Chorus with grand effect.

Some of my most pleasing reminiscences, are in connection with the families and homes of the citizens of Topsfield. I will confine my remarks strictly to my student days, and can mention only two families, that of Mr. Benjamin Kimball and Mr. B. P. Adams. Sometimes, for months together, I spent an evening each week in the home of Mr. Kimball, the most of the time was passed in singing. Mr. Kimball had one of the most beautiful bass voices to which I ever listened, and I have often thought that I never heard an alto voice, that surpassed that of Miss Hattie's, in tenderness and sweetness. Miss Deborah, sang the contralto, and I carried the tenor. Miss Susie, no less musically gifted than the others, presided at the piano. But they have all gone, and I have no doubt there is sweeter music in heaven because of their presence, and I shall always be gratified that it was my lot, when a mere lad, to be invited to such a genial musical home.

Mr. Adams was the post master and kept the village store. He was a very companionable man, and often took me for a drive, and frequently invited me to his home. I remember when the new piano was purchased. After a little I was invited in to hear the children play. Mary acquitted herself greatly to the satisfaction of her mother, and her performance elicited general applause. But Mr. Adams was greatly interested in the playing of Bennie, who promised, as he thought, to be a musical genius. The little fellow climbed upon the music stool, and with two fingers, played "Peter, Peter, pumpkin eater, had a wife and could'nt keep her," in a manner which greatly delighted his fond parents. I joined heartily in the applause. I have since listened to the juvenile performance of many a promising musician, and shared the admiration of doting parents, but never did I carry away such a vivid picture, as that of little Bennie.

In those early days of my connection with the academy, the lyceum was in a most flourishing condition. The citizens took a deep interest in the debates, and some of them were participants. Mr. Samuel Hood, who was a most remarkable man, both in gifts, attainments, and the ability to state his convictions, the Adamses, Peabodys, Balches and others, took part in the debates. Occasionally Mr. McLoud came in, and when he and Mr. Healy were opponents, the sparks would fly, and excitement was great. One amusing incident occurred one evening, during one of the debates. Mr. Richardson, the assistant principal, was accustomed to wear a tall hat. He had just purchased a new one, and, for its careful preservation, he placed it on one of the seats. Mr. B. P. Adams came in, and sat down plump, on the new hat. It was ruined completely, and never again appeared on the street.

In the autumn of '56, occurred the Fremont campaign. The three Balches and myself, started a campaign quartette. Their voices were very heavy, and mine was comparatively weak, and seemed like a little purling stream in the meadow, by the side of three roaring Niagaras. But I contributed a campaign song, which was some compensation for my failure to be heard. We succeeded in carrying Topsfield, and Massachusetts, and, I think, New England, but not the whole country.

Dud. Pearson and I, were accustomed to sing a good deal together. He had an excellent bass voice, of which I have many times heard during the last forty years. We made several attempts to serenade our lady friends. I remember one evening in particular. We had made special preparation; it was a beautiful night, and we expected to elicit great applause. He, could go very low and I, could manage to get up pretty high. We sang a song closing with the words, "Sleep, O! sleep!" After doing our best, we listened for some response, but she slept, and slept!

I must content myself with a few incidents in our school life. Our rhetorical exercises Wednesday afternoons were great occasions. Mr. Healy was then at his best. His criticisms were often amusing, sometimes terrific. We had some good speakers. George Pierce, N. T. Kimball, Clarence Fowler, and others, always commanded attention. Some also were conspicuous by their awkwardness and failures. One afternoon, Blaisdell, from Marblehead, declaimed a piece in which reference was made to the advancement of civilization. He had taken his position at the extreme rear of the platform, and when he came to this passage, he folded his arms and took several long and deliberate strides towards the front of the stage. When he was through, Mr. Healy pounced upon him. He said, "Blaisdell, didn't you know better than that? I would as soon think of sitting down on the stage to personate the sun's setting, as to stride across the platform to represent the progress of civilization." We had some excellent writers among the young ladies. Georgie Dorman always secured attention when she read her composition. She was a gifted girl and a most remarkable writer. Ellen Kimball, Addie Rea, and Julia Spiller, were always interesting. So also was little Lottie Perkins. We wondered how so small a girl could write so large a composition.

Many incidents in our school life come to me with great vividness. I commenced the study of Greek, in company with Arthur Merriam and Helen McCloud. Arthur always seemed to me to be more interested in Helen than in his Greek grammar. He later was a fine scholar. She seemed to get hold of the principles of a new language by instinct, and learned the characters from sight. Never did I meet one, whose classical insight I was more inclined to envy, for Greek was to me, for a long time, a dead language. We had for our instructor Austin Hazen, a very youthful but most accomplished teacher, and withal, a most gifted and beautiful man. Coburn Porter was my classmate in geometry. He was a very modest youth, and his head seemed to be too far ahead of his shoulders. I do not remember that he ever spoke to me during the weeks we were together. But he always had his lessons. I thought then, and time has not greatly modified my opinion, that he was the most remarkable mathematician I had ever met. His figures on the board were faultless, and he never hesitated or tripped in the demonstration of his propositions. But as there is an end to all things, so must there be a close to these recollections. Graduation day came at last, and four of us young men left the academy to return no more. Sidney Merriam and N. T. Kimball went to Dartmouth College, and Sam. Fowler and I went to Amherst. I presume we all made eloquent and impressive addresses, but I do not recall them now. The music for the occasion was furnished by a quartette, composed of Mr. Allis, who had a fine bass voice, Mr. Sumner Perkins, Mr. Winslow, and myself. It was a success, and elicited hearty commendation, which was to me, a great satisfaction, for I had, from my connection with the academy, been identified with its musical interests.

One incident connected with the evening entertainment was both characteristic and amusing. It seemed to be a proper thing, for the young people to pair off at such an important epoch in their lives. Choice, instinct, and natural selection, helped in determining the selection, with the most of us. But none of these sentiments influenced Sam. Fowler. He waited until all the young ladies had been provided for, and took the one who was left. After he had walked a reasonable distance, he learned that the aforesaid young lady lived three miles away. Accordingly he plodded on in silence until he had gone, what he estimated, was half the distance, when he turned back with the remark, "You will get home as soon as I will, so I will bid you good night." Sam. is now living alone in one of his tenements in Danvers, and I am not informed that he has ever started to walk home with a young lady, since the memorable night of his graduation from Topsfield Academy.

Fellow schoolmates and friends of former years. This is one of the most memorable and delightful occasions of our lives. This faultless summer day, is an emblem of the sunshine and gladness in our hearts. The most pleasing recollections, come thronging back to our memories, and we live over again the joys of our youthful days. Faces wreathed with smiles, come out of the shadows of the past. Forms, once so dear to us, long since passed within the veil, come before us in glad review. The chain of friendship, severed by a period of forty years, is now reunited, never again to be sundered, not even by death. The lines of toil, and care, and age, and perchance of suffering, are furrowed in our faces, but still the lineaments of youth remain. But our hearts are as youthful, and beat with as cordial sympathy for each other, and loving loyalty for the old Academy, as when we parted, nearly half a century ago. Do not our hearts burn within us, as we here review, 'mid smiles and tears, the long procession of the years.

ADDRESS.

JUDGE ISRAEL W. ANDREWS, OF DANVERS, MASS.

MR. PRESIDENT, LADIES AND GENTLEMEN:—

I had rather be excused, than, at this late hour, endeavor to interest you with what I might have to say, but, for the few minutes allowed, I shall have to amputate the speech I should ordinarily make, and so perhaps you will remain until I am done.

Yes, I was a student of Topsfield Academy in 1840-41, and I remember well, and with great pleasure, many of the associations of that day.

It happened on election day, that I was allowed the privilege of waiting upon a young lady. It seems that there was a decided objection, on the part of Mr. Healy, in regard to the young men waiting upon young ladies, and that reminds me of a little incident that occurred in New Hampshire. I went there to school before I came here. It was a Baptist Theological School and Academy—of course I went to the Academy. My father was a minister, but I never had any inclination in that direction. In fact, from what I have seen sometimes, I have thought that a theological education could be well dispensed with, even by our ministers.

I was going to say, that in this incident I met a Professor gallanting around with two young ladies, and he, the next morning, gave me a very severe reprimand for being out—it was Sunday.

Well, it afterwards happened that I was waiting upon a young lady, and as soon as it was discovered, I was promptly called before the Board, and asked if I did not know the rules of the school. I replied that I knew them all very well. "Well," said the Professor, who was also the President, "it is against the rules of the school, for a young man to wait upon a young lady." I asked him if it was any more against the rules of the school, for a young man to wait upon a young lady, than it was for a professor. The result was that I was finally suspended, but not for that reason alone, however.

But to be serious. I have a single word more to add. I would like to say to all who hear me, that, ahead of wonderful achievements, there is a depth of thought—a vastness in the direction of man's investigation of true study.

I wrote a lecture once, or tried to, and thought I did, upon, "What Constitutes Good Scholarship, or, a Student's Work, and What He Should Do." That lecture is somewhere around the house now. I have not seen it for many years, although I have a lot of books and other collections, and presume it is there, but I think, that in view of the vastness of the problems that are arising, that our school education is becoming comparatively of little importance. I say this, and I say more—I think myself, that the academical institution, is the equal, if not the superior, of our high schools. And it is not because I am in the least prejudiced. It is simply what I have thought from my experience.

Now, we have a high school in Danvers, and the people of Topsfield have become acquainted with the course pursued, as they have sent a number of their children there.

I think there was more freedom of thought, in the academical institution, and thereby securing, better scholars than we get now. At the present time they are full of frivolous matters, and sometimes those that are dangerous to their own health, and to the character of humanity.

ADDRESS.

GEORGE CONANT, OF PASADENA, CALIFORNIA.

MR. PRESIDENT:—

I did not know that I would be called upon to speak, and I don't know as I can interest the audience, unless, perhaps, I refer to a debating society we had forty-five years ago.

We had such men in the society as Rev. Anson McLoud, Charles Holmes, Sam. Todd, and B. P. Adams. On a certain occasion the question was rather interesting to me, and I, being President, and wishing to talk on the question, left the chair to Rev. Mr. Bailey. The debate went on in a certain line, and Squire Holmes, as we used to call him, being always very ready to talk, and being also very sarcastic, and sometimes a little obnoxious, put a great many restrictions on the ruling of Mr. Bailey. Well, Mr. Bailey took offence, and concluded he had better give up his position as President, and so, while Mr. Holmes was interjecting a little of his bitter talk, Mr. Bailey stepped down, and stepped out of the chair. As he went down the steps, Squire Holmes flourished his hands and said, Sic transit gloria mundi (Thus passeth the glory of the world), which made the incident quite dramatic.

At another time in the society, Mr. B. P. Adams, a prominent merchant of Topsfield, and a strong supporter of the academy, was called upon to speak.

Now Mr. Adams was a good talker and a ready debater, but on this occasion he did not seem ready, and rose to excuse himself from speaking, with much deliberation. He said he thought he could not give a better reason, for not responding to the call to speak, than to quote the dying words of Ex-President Adams, by saying, "This is the last of the Adams's;" and had he sat down then and there, as it was remarked afterward, Mr. Adams would have made the greatest hit of his life, but, alas! the supreme opportunity passed, and the "last of the Adams's" went on with a long speech.

ADDRESS.

REV. ALFRED NOON, OF BOSTON, MASS.

It is difficult to conceive how my name was discovered upon the annals of the Academy, and it must have needed a very close scrutiny, on the part of the Secretary, to identify the name with the present speaker.

An effort was made the other day to ascertain how it came about that I was a student of the Academy. Some of you may remember the occasion of my being here, was, because I was a boy living away from home with Rev. Stephen G. Hiler, who came from the old Batchelder place, up town, to occupy, for a few months, the pulpit of the Methodist church and the Methodist parsonage.

During that time, somehow, I seemed to have been enrolled as a student in the Academy, possibly to relieve Mr. Sumner Perkins, who was then teaching the Centre school, here on the green. There are two or three reminiscences connected with these years that come to me.

There were a good many people in the town who differed from some of us. We all have our notions, but they differed from us in publicly acknowledging theirs. One Sunday, the bell of the Congregational church, of the Methodist church, and of the old Academy, all rang for religious services. It seems that in a few hours the people expected the world to come to an end. They made a mistake, however, as we all do, frequently, in these days. The occurrence was one a great many of the residents will recall.

I remember well, the lessons in geography, at the Academy, taught by Mrs. Healy, I think, and what interesting times we had, studying the well remembered wall maps. I was one of the younger students, and remember my experiences in learning long division, when we would work some simple example, and make it nearly as long as ourselves.

I did not have time to look up the old catalogue of the Academy in my private library, and hunt up the list of the names of my fellow students, but here, today, I am meeting many of them, and have renewed old acquaintances and friendships. I am very glad of the opportunity of seeing, today, the students of the time-honored Topsfield Academy.

SENTIMENT.

EUGENE TAPPAN, ESQ., OF BOSTON, MASS.

Mr. Tappan offered the following sentiment, time not permitting an intended address:—

"I prize Topsfield Academy, for cultivating a love of Nature, a spirit of original investigation, and a taste for literature."

AULD LANG SYNE.

Parting Song.

Should auld acquaintance be forgot,
And never brought to mind;
Should auld acquaintance be forgot,
And songs of auld lang syne.
For auld lang syne we meet to-day,
For auld lang syne;
To sing the songs our fathers sang
In days of auld lang syne.

We've passed through many varied scenes,
Since youth's unclouded day;
And friends, and hopes, and happy dreams,
Time's hand has swept away;
And voices that once joined with ours,
In days of auld lang syne,
Are silent now, and blend no more
In songs of auld lang syne.

Here we have met, here we may part
To meet on earth no more;
And we may never sing again
The cherished songs of yore;
The sacred songs our fathers sang,
In days of auld lang syne;
We may not meet to sing again
The songs of auld lang syne.

But when we've crossed the sea of life,
And reach the heav'nly shore,
We'll sing the songs our fathers sing,
Transcending those of yore;
We'll meet to sing diviner strains
Than those of auld lang syne;
Immortal songs of praise unknown
In days of auld lang syne.

LITTLE BOAR'S HEAD, NEW HAMPSHIRE.

MR. GEO. F. DOW,

July 14, 1897.

Com. Topsfield Historical Society.

Dear Sir:—I am in receipt of your kind favor of the 10th inst., inviting me to be present at the reunion of the teachers and students of Topsfield Academy. I regret to say, it will not be practicable for me to be present on that interesting occasion. The year ending 55 years ago, which I passed as Principal of the Academy, is one full of pleasant memories. Among the students, there were many young men and young women, who went forth to occupy important and useful stations in life. Among others, Orne and Bomer; the former died young, the latter became a successful physician in Ipswich, Massachusetts, and died respected and honored in the middle of a promising career; Augustus Perkins, now in full practice in the medical profession in the city of Boston; Bartlett, for some years a successful physician, later engaged in business, now residing in Brookline, Massachusetts, in the enjoyment of a well earned otium cum dignitate; Gould, many years an able and accomplished teacher, and afterward a merchant in the city of Boston. There were others of whose career I know less; John Friend is remembered for his marvellous ability in mathematics. There were Ives, and Reed, and Bradstreet, and Ruggles, all loyal and devoted students

I regret deeply that I shall not be able to be with you at the reunion. But my heart and sympathies will be there, and I cannot doubt that the occasion will be one of great satisfaction and pleasure.

Believe me very truly yours,

EDMUND F. SLAFTER.

WATERLOO, IOWA, JULY 22, 1897.

MR. GEO. FRIS. DOW,

Dear Sir:—Your note of request that I furnish some reminiscences of Topsfield Academy, for the reunion, on Aug. 12, was duly received. My introduction to Topsfield Academy was in the spring of 1830.

Principal Vose was a man of forty-five or fifty years, I judge, and Miss Ann Cofran, the Preceptress, of perhaps thirty-five or forty years. They were both very sedate, and very devout, and the religious character of the school was always prominent.

The young gentlemen occupied the lower, and the young ladies the upper room; but at morning and evening prayers, rhetorical exercises, etc., all went into the upper room, which was divided strictly by an invisible, but effective line between the two sexes. If there was any whispering or noise in prayer time, Mr. Vose could, with great facility, open his eyes and look around the room, without interrupting the thread of his petition. But the general decorum of the school was good, and he was seldom disturbed in this way. Though he was a college graduate, and an A. M., Mr. Vose was not a very thorough scholar, especially in Latin.

In his Latin class were the late Rev. Josiah Peabody, missionary to Persia, and the Rev. W. A. Peabody, Professor of Latin in Amherst College, where he died in less than a year after his inauguration. They frequently had occasion to ask some question about the lesson, which the teacher generally informed them he would "look up," but which the pupils seldom, if ever, heard of again.

I believe I was something of a favorite with Mr. Vose; for he used to call on me frequently to hear a class recite, and to help him in other ways. He had one particularly fractious boy, whom he often found it difficult to manage. The master was not a very genial man, and was, by nature, quick tempered, which made it all the more difficult for him to get on pleasantly with the aforesaid boy. On one occasion, the lad was unusually obstinate, and I was placed in the seat behind him to watch and guard him. He was still much more inclined to have his own way than to yield to authority; and when the Principal came to castigate him, he rose up, with a ruler in his hand, to strike back, and might have dealt the harder blow of the two, if I had not caught his hand and restrained him.

At another time, the boy was outside the house and refused to come in at the bidding of the master; when we were required to bring him in by main strength. The boy started at the top of his speed, and we after him, and were obliged to take him by his arms and legs, and force him into the hall of learning. It did not take me fifty years to decide, that this sort of pedagogy had entirely too much of the corporeal in it, and that it was about as much of a punishment to the boys who caught the rogue, as to him who was caught. That intractable boy is now, I learn, a practising lawyer in Boston.

But in spite of these unpleasant incidents, the general drift of things at the Academy was pleasant and profitable. The instruction was not of a high order, as compared with the present standard in academies and high schools; but it was much better than nothing, and prepared the way for higher and better things. There were certainly some very choice spirits in Topsfield Academy, at the time of which I am writing, especially in the upper room, with whom we were allowed to have but little intercourse. Out of school hours we were more free and familiar, and when we met to sing, and to prepare for exhibition, at the close of the term, we were quite social. The program, on one of these occasions, was his imagination. They however are not to be considered as the only means of the poet's imagination.

It is not to be denied that the poet's imagination is not to be considered as the only means of the poet's imagination.

It is not to be denied that the poet's imagination
is not to be considered as the only means of the poet's imagination.

It is not to be denied that the poet's imagination
is not to be considered as the only means of the poet's imagination.

It is not to be denied that the poet's imagination
is not to be considered as the only means of the poet's imagination.

It is not to be denied that the poet's imagination
is not to be considered as the only means of the poet's imagination.

a very choice one, and I distinctly remember some of the themes, and who wrote upon them. My own was the very poetical one of "Self-knowledge," founded on Pope's familiar line, "Man, know thyself, all wisdom centres here," and was treated in the pompous style of the famous "Essay on Man." One of the young ladies had for a motto, the pensive but beautiful lines of Goldsmith:—

The bliss which centers only in the mind."

Some of our rides and rambles on Saturday afternoons, over the hills and through the valleys, were charming, and retain their delectable fragrance as fresh as ever. Several of those who shared them have gone to join the majority,—penetrare ad plures, even in Plutarch's time,—but some remain, whom it would be a pleasure to greet, if such a pleasure were permitted. I may be permitted to name especially, among the living, the venerable and honored Prof. E. D. Sanborn, of Dartmouth College, Rev. George Hood, and Rev. Benjamin How, Mr. and Mrs. Ezra Towne, of Topsfield, Mrs. Clara W. Rose, and Mrs. Eliza F. Stone, of Salem, Mrs. Catharine W. Cook, of Andover, Mrs. Susan N. Tenney, of Georgetown, and others. One of the "others," Mrs. H. N. Black, of Danvers, I had the singular pleasure of meeting, two years ago, at the house of her sister, in the city where I reside, whom I had not seen for almost fifty years. We were seated together at the head of the table, of course, as the oldest of the company, though it did not seem to us, that day, that we were very old, as indeed we are not. It was a rare treat to run over the names and history of those who were young, and full of hope, when we were also young, some of whom are now gone to the other side of the river.

"My eyes are dim with childish tears,
My heart is idly stirred,
For the same sound is in my ears,
Which in those days I heard."

Thus fares it still in our decay,
 And yet the wiser mind
 Mourns less for what age takes away,
 Than what it leaves behind.

But we are pressed by heavy laws,
 And often,—glad no more,—
 We wear a face of joy, because We have been glad of yore."

I hope and trust you will have a pleasant and profitable time at the reunion, and would remain,

Very truly yours,

M. K. CROSS.

COMMITTEE OF THE TOPSFIELD HISTORICAL SOCIETY,

Gentlemen:—Although I have not received from you a circular concerning the coming celebration of Topsfield Academy, I have seen one addressed to my brother, Julius A. Palmer, of Boston, and I take the liberty to write to you concerning my brief connection with the time honored institution which you represent.

I think it was about the year 1846, that I was a pupil at the Academy for a period of six weeks. It was in the spring, I am not sure of the year. I remember the names of two of my companions at the Academy, one was Cyrus Killam, who afterwards had his name changed, by Act of General Court, to Bartlett, his mother's name. He became Dr. Bartlett, was with Dr. Earle, as Assistant Superintendent of Insane Asylum, at Northampton, Mass., and afterward Superintendent, Insane Asylum, St. Peter, Minnesota. He was of Boxford. Another was Wm. Augustus Herrick, of Boxford, afterwards, for many years, a Boston lawyer. My family lived in Boston and Boxford.

At the time when I attended the Academy, I lived with my grandfather, Major Jacob Peabody, at Boxford, E. Parish. I usually rode to Topsfield in the morning and walked back to Boxford in the afternoon. I rode on the Haverhill and Salem Stage Coach, driven by Mr. Pinkham and Mr. Hilliard. The teacher's name I do not remember, but I liked him. He had about 40 pupils, but receiving a call to a larger field, he left us, and the Academy was abruptly closed, much to my regret.

I am, dear sirs, very truly yours,

JACOB P. PALMER.

MR. GEO. FR. DOW, COM.

Aug. 9th, 1897.

Dear Sir:—I regret that imperative engagements prevent my attendance at the reunion of the Academy scholars, on the 12th.

Your invitation brings back a flood of memories, and a longing to see, once again, those whose names are familiar, but whom I have met very seldom, if at all, in these long forty years. In infrequent visits to my native town of Boxford, I always look from the train to see the old Academy building, and wonder if its interior is still as familiar as its outward identity.

Very heartily, I send an individual greeting to each of my old schoolmates, wishing for the privilege of looking again into the faces which the years must have changed as much as they have changed mine. I wish more heartily that the paths which have been so strange; and so different; and so separated; may all enter at last, "into the everlasting kingdom of our Lord and Savior, Jesus Christ." "The wish came—it hath passed into a prayer."

Sincerely yours,

M. H. DORMAN.

TOPSFIELD HISTORICAL SOCIETY:—

I have just received your kind invitation, to be present at the reunion of the Teachers and Students, on the 12th inst. I should gladly like to be with you, and grasp the hands of friends of long years ago, and review again the scenes to which I often fondly revert. It is impossible for me to be with you, but I wish you a hearty good time, and Topsfield Academy—may it long live and prosper.

Very truly yours,

MYRON R. HUTCHINSON.

Letters were also received from Rev. Charles M. Pierce, of Auburn, Mass.; Rev. George Hardy, of Sanquoit, N. Y.; Rev. Hiram B. Putnam, of Derry, N. H.; Daniel S. Balch, of Lyons, Iowa; Samuel L. Sawyer, of Danvers, Mass.; Mrs. Sarah (McMillan) Parsons, of Derry, N. H.; Rev. A. B. Peabody, of Boxborough, Mass.; Dean Peabody, Esq., of Lynn, Mass., and many others.

I have been thinking of you a great deal lately and wondering how you are getting on. I hope you are well and happy. I have been very busy with my work, but I have managed to find some time to write to you. I am sure you are doing well and I hope to hear from you soon.

A BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCH OF DR. ROYAL A. MERRIAM.

BY JUSTIN ALLEN, M. D.

Among the subjects proper to be considered by a local historical society, that of the old-time country physician occupies a prominent place. He was an important personage in the town. Great responsibilities rested upon him. Vast interests depended upon his wise and judicious action. The health and lives of the people were committed to his hands. From the beginning of one's earthly existence to its close, the physician was looked to, to preserve life and health, to ward off disease, to relieve the sick when disease had fastened upon him, to soothe and comfort when medical art failed, and to stand by at the last and administer whatever help was in his power. Through infancy, childhood, manhood, and age, it was the part of the physician to safeguard the lives and health of the people among whom he lived.

In the eighteenth century and in the early part of the present century, the medical profession was, as has been well described, a "conscientious vocation," and less a business or trade than in later times. The physician was held in high esteem and occupied a high social position in society. He was considered a learned and enlightened member of the community and was respected as such. He had the confidence of the people among whom he labored, who trusted in his skill and gave him their support and gratitude. He mingled with the people more than any other person, was present at all seasons that make up the varied experiences of life, participated in their joys, and sympathized with them in their sorrows.

It is the purpose of this sketch to give the salient features in the life of Dr. Royal A. Merriam, who was a native of this village and who spent the most of his life in this community as a practicing physician. The data from which to prepare the paper are not as full as could be desired, especially those relating to his early history, and therefore it must necessarily be imperfect.

Dr. Merriam came of good stock, the Merriam family of Concord, Mass. Joseph Merriam was the first inhabitant of that name and evidently one of the first settlers of the town. The ancestry of the family has been traced back to William Merriam, of Kentstine, in England, who was born about 1580, and died in 1635 in his native land. William's three sons, Joseph, George, and Robert, came to New England and settled in Concord in 1636.

The Topsfield family trace their descent from Joseph Merriam, the emigrant. The lineage runs thus:—Joseph Merriam<sup>1</sup>; John Merriam<sup>2</sup>, born 1641; John Merriam<sup>3</sup>, born 1666; John Merriam<sup>4</sup>, born 1692; John Merriam<sup>5</sup>, born 1719-20 O.S.; John Merriam<sup>6</sup>, born 1758; Royal A. Merriam<sup>7</sup>, born 1786. Dr. Merriam's mother, Hannah Jones Merriam, was a descendant of Nathaniel Jones, of an old and respected family of Middlesex County.

Dr. John Merriam, the father of the subject of this sketch, studied medicine in Charlton and was licensed to practice by the Medical Association of Worcester County. He married Hannah Jones, of Charlton, "a help-meet true", as records say, Sept. 23, 1782, the marriage ceremony being performed by the Rev. Joshua Johnson, of Woodstock, Conn. He came to Topsfield and established himself in practice Dec. 1783. March 31, 1784, he bought of Daniel Hood, a house-wright by trade, the house where Mr. Hood lived, known to a past generation as the residence of the late Maj. Nathaniel Conant, where he took up his residence.

Feb. 11, 1796, Dr. Merriam purchased of Thomas Foster, a farmer of Topsfield, 12½ acres of land at the corner of Ipswich and Haverhill Streets, extending back to the Batchelder farm. On this spot he erected the house that stands there at the present time. The house was probably built soon after the purchase of the site, for he sold the Conant house, Oct. 9, 1797, to Daniel Perkins, a resident of Salem.

Dr. John Merriam was well prepared for the work of his profession, as the times then were. His medical library was large for those days. From entries made in his own handwriting in books of his library, it would appear that his studies preparatory to the study of medicine were considerable, and that he had some knowledge of Latin. There is no record of his school days, but it may be presumed that he had the advantages that other young men enjoyed. He might have received instruction from an educated man, before taking up his medical studies. From what we learn of him it is certain that he stood high as a medical practitioner, and that he had the respect of his patrons and of the community in general. He had a large practice, that extended into the adjoining towns.

As was often the case in those days, with the country physician, he gave some attention to the cultivation of the land. He acquired property and left a considerable estate, and a name that has been handed down with respect.

Dr. Merriam died of consumption, Nov. 21, 1817, at the age of 59 years.

Dr. Royal A. Merriam was born in the Conant house, Jan. 30th, 1786. There is little to be found on record of his early life. But we can easily conceive of him in his boyhood and youth as taking an active part in the affairs of the small farm, assisting in the care of the animals, preparing the ground in spring-time, for the seed, planting, cultivating the growing crops, and harvesting. Robust, strong, and athletic, he took part in the sports of the time. The bicycle, polo, and the pseudo-chase were unknown in his youth, but ball playing, coasting and skating were practiced. It is known that he was an expert skater and excelled in the more difficult manoeuvres of the sport. There is nothing definite on record in relation to his early school days. Doubtless he attended the centre school and there learned the rudiments of the branches taught in the common schools.

He might have received instruction, preparatory for college, from his father, who, as we have seen, was qualified to give it;—or from Jacob Kimball, a college graduate, who taught the centre school, and who appears to have been an intimate friend of the family;—or, he might have studied with Mr. Huntington, the minister of the place, as it was common in those days for the clergyman of the parish to prepare young men for college. He attended school in a neighboring town, probably Andover, for how long a time is unknown, where he could see the steeple of the Topsfield church in his walks upon a hill near by.

Dr. Merriam entered Dartmouth College in the freshman year of 1804-5. He graduated in 1808. Nothing further can be given of his residence at Hanover, unless we except a letter from his mother, written in 1805, in which she expressed the hope that he would "always pursue the ways of virtue and holiness, and make such improvements in his studies as" would "render him a useful member of society."

Among his teachers at Dartmouth, were the President of the college, Rev. John Wheelock, S. T. D., LL. D., an able man, possessing marked traits of character in various ways; and the learned and scholarly Roswell Shurtleff, S. T. D.

Francis Brown, President of the college from 1815 until his death in 1820, was a tutor when Merriam was a student;—distinguished for genius, character and culture, as was also Frederick Hall, M. D., LL. D., afterwards a professor of Mathematics and Natural Philosophy, and a college president.

His class numbered forty, of whom three became members of Congress; namely, Ichabod Bartlett, Isaac Fletcher, and George Grennell. Four were physicians; seven, clergymen; and of lawyers, a much larger number.

As a young man's acquaintances and associates have an educational influence upon him, it may not be inappropriate to mention some members of other classes whom he must have known more or less intimately: Richard Fletcher and Matthew Harvey, distinguished lawyers and jurists; Lemuel H. Arnold, Albion K. Parris, and Levi Woodbury, Governors of States, the latter Secretary of the Navy and of the Treasury; George Ticknor, author of the History of Spanish Literature; Amos Kendall, Postmaster-General; and Joel Parker, of N. H., and Ether Shepley, of Maine, each Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of their respective States. Judge Cummins, of Topsfield, was in college with him, graduating in 1806. It would appear that he availed himself of all the opportunities offered in his day for a medical education. The son of a physician in active practice he could not fail to profit by the association. He studied medicine at the Dartmouth Medical School, under Dr. Nathan Smith, the founder of the school, one of the most eminent medical men of his time. He saw something in a medical way of the no less distinguished Dr. Reuben D. Mussey, of both of whom I used to hear him speak. He received from his alma mater the degree of M. B., in 1811, and that of M. D., in 1820. He became a member of the Mass. Medical Society in 1832. In Jan., 1812, Dr. Merriam commenced the practice of medicine in Middleton. While in Middleton he made friendships that lasted during his life. He had considerable practice there, especially in typhoid fever. In 1813 he returned to Topsfield. His short stay in Middleton is easily accounted for by the fact that his father was in failing health, and had been somewhat of an invalid for some years. He continued here in the practice of his profession from 1813 to 1823.

Looking for a larger field of action he went to Marblehead, where he established himself and remained nine years. The old residents of Marblehead, who remember him, speak of him in high terms of respect.

Returning to his native town in 1832, he occupied the house where he ever afterward lived. He loved and was greatly attached to his native town. When living in other places he always looked to Topsfield as his home; and although he was pleasantly situated in Marblehead, he did not feel at home there, and when he became settled in Topsfield, he was most happy in the change. He was favorably received by the people and entered upon a good practice.

This narrative of Dr. Merriam would not be complete without allusion to his sister, Almira Merriam. She made their home pleasant and attractive and contributed to his comfort and enjoyment while she lived. A close friendship existed between the brother and sister. She was a woman who was held in the highest esteem for her virtues and estimable traits of character. She had a cultivated mind,— was a fine writer and possessed no inconsiderable share of literary ability as her letters extant will testify. She died of consumption early in the year 1839.

Dr. Merriam married Adeline, daughter of Nathaniel Marsh, of Newburyport, at N., March 12th, 1839. Mrs. Merriam was a most estimable woman, possessing all the traits of character that go to adorn a life of usefulness and high endeavor. Of their two sons, Sidney A. (Dart., 1861) died in 1876, unmarried. Arthur M. is a resident of Manchester, Mass. A grandson, Arthur, continues the name in the ninth generation.

Dr. Merriam came upon the stage of action when the medical delusions and superstitions of the dark ages were giving place to scientific teaching. Bishop Berkeley's tar water, Perkins' tractors, the jaw bone of a dog for hydrophobia, were exploded as specific remedies. Theory was losing its hold upon medical thought. Observation was coming to the front as the proper means preliminary to a rational treatment of disease. The Doctor had had the best teaching of the day. His library was well supplied with standard works, such as the writings of Sir Astley Cooper, Laennec, Abernethy, Brodie, Bichat, Louis, and volumes of a later date as they were published. The New England Magazine of Medicine and Surgery, from 1812 to 1828, in bound volumes, was a part of his library that has been preserved. These works have important passages marked, showing that they were carefully read and studied.

As far as authentic evidence goes, we may conclude that he was well equipped for the practice of his profession as it existed in the first half of the present century.

He practiced extensively in Topsfield and in neighboring towns. In his relations with the sick he brought a scrupulous regard for his professional duties and responsibilities. In the care and treatment of his patients he carefully investigated the disease, and formed his opinions deliberately and with confidence in his conclusions. That confidence was reciprocated by those who entrusted their bodily interests to his care;—a general good understanding between physician and patient was the result.

Surgery was his specialty. He attended the cases of surgery that usually occur in general practice and performed the more important operations, as the amputation of limbs and operations for cataract. He proceeded in an operation with self-possession, calmly, without apparent excitement or emotion. Some lookers-on unused to sights in surgery might have thought him harsh, but without sufficient reason therefor.

His deportment in the sick room was dignified, calm, and cheerful. He was kind and sympathetic;—his demeanor and courtly bearing such as to command respect, and inspire confidence in his ministrations. His cheerful manner and encouraging words raised the spirits of the sick, and hope took the place of despondency, which is often more conducive than drugs to the well-being of the patient. The saying of the wise man might have been applied to him:—“a merry heart doeth good like a medicine.” The encouragement that he gave his patients and the inspiration of hope, were important aids to carry them through a severe and protracted sickness. He recognized the fact that hope acted as a stimulus in restoring the sufferer to health. He believed in the modern doctrine of the “vis medicatrix naturae,”—the agency of the vital powers to throw off disease and restore the system to its normal healthful condition. In this he was in advance of the medical opinion of his time.

He was interested in his patients and felt the responsibility of his position as a medical attendant;—and possessed, in a high degree, the esteem and confidence of the families among whom he practiced. His patrons, of whom some remain, have been wont to speak of him in terms of respect, and expressive of their appreciation of his medical skill.

He made no lavish use of drugs. The liberal use of active remedies, that was considered legitimate and indispensable in his early life, was not followed by him, at least in his later years. And although he did not discountenance a proper measure of medication as occasion required, he could carry in his vest pocket all the remedies he deemed sufficient, ordinarily, to prescribe. He remarked to me that he could meet the ordinary requirements of practice, with four articles, namely:—Calomel, Antimony, Opium, and Iron or Peruvian Bark. In the treatment of disease and in the care of the sick he exercised sound common sense, which is often of more practical use than drugs.

An incident of his professional career was the having medical students,—who read his books, accompanied him in his rounds, and listened to his observations upon disease,—thereby acquiring knowledge and training to enter upon the work of their profession.

Dr. Merriam's attention was not confined to medicine exclusively. He was interested in public affairs, and active as a public man, holding offices of trust in the town, and as a member of associations, industrial, philanthropic, and social. He was often called to serve the town, probably no citizen more often, in various trusts. He held the offices of Selectman, Overseer of the Poor, School Teacher, School Committee, and Superintendent of Schools, and was selected to serve on committees in the more important crises of town affairs.

He was elected twenty-two years a member of the school committee, and probably always its chairman, excepting when he served as superintendent. He must have devoted considerable time and thought to the duties of the office.

All accounts give evidence of his interest in education, common school, and academic. When the Topsfield Academy was founded he was a resident of Marblehead. But he came up from Marblehead and was present at the house of Jacob Towne, Esq., the evening of the day when the trustees met to elect a principal of the Institution, and chose Mr. Vose. And after he returned to reside in the town, a few years later, he had the Academy much upon his mind. He entertained the teacher, and sometimes had him as an inmate of his family.

From the annual reports of the school committee, when he was a member, doubtless all drawn up by Dr. Merriam, we learn the history of the schools; his views on their proper management, on discipline, absenteeism, truancy, deportment, the duties of parents in relation to the schools, as well as his style of writing. Some extracts from the reports will best illustrate his views upon these subjects. It will be seen that he was not backward to criticize, to observe and name faults that appeared, and to refer to the failings of

Extracts from school report of 1838-9:—

"The committee have endeavored to follow the statute as nearly as circumstances would allow, by visiting and exercising such supervision as the law enjoins. In these visits the majority of the committee have been present at the commencement and close of each school, and once or more, about the middle of such terms, as were between three and four months in length, making their visits about once a month. The Summer Schools, taught by females, gave very general satisfaction to Parents and Committee, at least no complaints of dissatisfaction have come to the knowledge of the Committee. The smaller class of pupils, taught by them, gave very honorable evidence of having had the industry and best efforts of their teachers. Improvement was clearly evident in each, and although there may have been some shades of difference, yet the Committee will forbear to mark any distinction."

Winter Schools.—The Centre School "was not so fully attended as in years previous, there being a private Female School kept in the vicinity, but it was this year sufficiently large for one Teacher profitably to attend to. This School was noted for the promptness and accuracy with which they answered questions in Arithmetic and Geography. The larger scholars did credit to themselves and Teacher. The Committee noticed with great pleasure the good order and discipline, which has in some years previous, been a subject of complaint. There was no marring or injury done to the buildings, not even a pane of glass broken for the winter. The common courtesies and civilities of life were observed to have received attention in this school, which was very agreeable to the committee, and they think if they were more generally taught in schools, it would not be time mis-spent. The improvement in reading and writing was not so conspicuous, although some very honorable exceptions should be made in both of these branches, and as a whole, the committee had reason to be satisfied with the school."

The North School "was better sustained, as regards numbers, than in former years. Answers were promptly and readily given in the several branches of study, and there appeared an unusual degree of intelligence and understanding, in the larger scholars of this school. Some specimens of composition and elocution were given, which were certainly not discreditable for first efforts. Arithmetic was the branch in which the older boys excelled, and Geography and Grammar, the girls. The most noticeable defect in this school was of voice and distinct enunciation. The order was good."

"The East School commenced with very flattering prospects. At the first examination the school was unusually full, 35 in number, comprising a large number of large scholars, who seemed ardent in the pursuit of knowledge, but, probably owing to the inexperience of the Teacher, having never taught before, there was a failure in a perfect control over the school. Some left for other schools, and other large scholars left because they did not feel able to spend more time, and at the last examination the school was very small, 13 only being present. The committee were satisfied with the proficiency of those that were present."

"The South School commenced with good promise, and was well sustained. The committee had no hesitation in pronouncing their full and unqualified satisfaction of the progress of the scholars, in all the various branches which had been attended to, and gave ample evidence of the industry and faithfulness of the Teacher. The school excelled in writing, and as a whole, was not surpassed by any other school in town."

"The schools, as a whole, have, in the opinion of the committee, made improvement on former years. More interest is taken, both by parents and scholars. The attendance has been better than in years past. The scholars are not so backward in attending on examination days. The committee have used their best efforts to manage such attendance, by treating them with more familiarity, and in a friendly manner, and are very happy to be able to say, that their efforts have been successful."

From Report of 1842-3:—

"Sept. 20.—Visited Centre School—40 scholars. The school had advanced somewhat on former visitations, but was not what it ought to have been. There was too much evidence the first of these was the fact that the United States was a new country, and that the people were not used to the idea of a government. The second was the fact that the United States was a large country, and that the people were not used to the idea of a government. The third was the fact that the United States was a young country, and that the people were not used to the idea of a government.

The fourth was the fact that the United States was a poor country, and that the people were not used to the idea of a government. The fifth was the fact that the United States was a weak country, and that the people were not used to the idea of a government. The sixth was the fact that the United States was a divided country, and that the people were not used to the idea of a government.

The seventh was the fact that the United States was a new country, and that the people were not used to the idea of a government. The eighth was the fact that the United States was a large country, and that the people were not used to the idea of a government. The ninth was the fact that the United States was a young country, and that the people were not used to the idea of a government.

The tenth was the fact that the United States was a poor country, and that the people were not used to the idea of a government. The eleventh was the fact that the United States was a weak country, and that the people were not used to the idea of a government. The twelfth was the fact that the United States was a divided country, and that the people were not used to the idea of a government.

The thirteenth was the fact that the United States was a new country, and that the people were not used to the idea of a government. The fourteenth was the fact that the United States was a large country, and that the people were not used to the idea of a government. The fifteenth was the fact that the United States was a young country, and that the people were not used to the idea of a government.

that good order had not been maintained. There was a want of books, partly from neglect, not having them at school, and partly from deficiency. The reading was bad, spelling not good; writing bad from carelessness and a want of fitness of the copies given them by the teacher; arithmetic not good; geography and history pretty good. One of the largest girls in school was idle and disobedient, not heeding the orders of the teacher. The teacher appeared to have given her best efforts to the work of teaching, but her disposition was too amiable and indulgent, to enforce order and obedience."

North School, Winter Term:—

"This school was found in a healthy condition, the attention and order were good, the interest between the teachers and scholars reciprocal. There was no appearance of special lessons given and conned for the occasion, but the scholars were questioned promiscuously, by the teacher, in the ground they had passed over during the term. Two of the largest boys were an honor to the school, did themselves, the school and teacher, great credit, and if they continue to 'go ahead' as they requested in the examination, they will make ornaments in society."

East School, Winter Term:—

The teacher "had given very general satisfaction; the order and attention was very good. The school had not that lively and energetic aspect that is desirable, did not enunciate distinctly; there was a want of boldness in speaking; many answers, though probably correct, were not distinctly heard by the committee. The teacher, though a very estimable man, is not quite so ready in communication with his scholars as is desirable for an apt and successful teacher."

South School, Summer Term:—

"Sept. 23.—Visited South School for the last time. 38 scholars. From the previous visits which we had made to this school, we anticipated a good deal of pleasure, and we were not disappointed. On entering the room, at this visit, the air of the whole school breathed forth the evidence of obedience, industry and reciprocal love between the teacher and scholars. A larger number were present than we had seen before, which was of itself evidence that they were not afraid of the committee, but were willing to exhibit the results of their labors. There was a better understanding of studies which they had passed over than we are accustomed to see in such young children. They had not been allowed to pass over a lesson till they had mastered it, sometimes they had spent a week on the same lesson. It is difficult to particularize where all the branches are learnt so well. It is not usual to see writing books kept so free from blots and marks, and so much effort to follow the copy, as was exhibited by their manuscripts. In such a school, where all was so well, it is unpleasant to mark any defects, and we only say that they would have appeared better still, if they had raised their voices; we could not distinctly hear all the answers to questions."

"The committee have been instrumental, during the past year, of introducing into the Centre, North and East Districts, the School Library, published under the sanction of the Board of Education. These books have furnished a very profitable source of instruction and entertainment, to both parents and children. Although these libraries were furnished by private subscription, yet they are open to the whole district, and have given very general satisfaction, and we cannot but hope that the South district, which is the only one unprovided, will yet be induced to follow the example, by furnishing themselves with this library, or some other. Books adapted to the understanding of the young furnish profitable subjects for conversation and reflection, afford pure and chaste language for the expression of their thoughts, and would serve to elevate their minds above the disorganizing and petty strifes of seeing who should rule in school, the master or scholars. The mind of man and child is so constituted, is of such a nature, that it is constantly drinking in and appropriating to its use, either for good or evil, whatever comes within its reach. Surround it with good principles, nourish it with wholesome, with moral and scientific food, and it will exhibit the products of such nourishment. But feed it with low and debasing thoughts, schemes and plans, and the legitimate fruit of such food will certainly show itself in the conduct and character of the future life."

"We have seen a disposition among some of the scholars, to pursue those branches of science, which are far beyond their capacity, and not the most profitable for future use in their business lives. Ornamental branches are sometimes pursued before the more substantial and useful are thoroughly understood. Without a thorough knowledge of a subject we cannot practice upon and use it with safety, either to ourselves or those with whom we have intercourse. The foundation of a building should be deeply and securely laid before we attempt to raise thereon a superstructure, and especially before we undertake the ornamental parts of the structure. We should learn to read, write and cipher, before we undertake to declaim, paint or make astronomical calculations.

Reading is of the first importance; indeed, we have but very few good readers among us; readers who do not beg to be excused when called upon to read before strangers. Reading and spelling should be attended to every day, from the time the scholar enters school, till he leaves, until he can bring his manner and modulation of voice to be so much like extemporaneous speaking, or talking, that a person in the next room, or out of sight, would not know but that he was talking.

Servile imitation of others, however excellent, should be carefully avoided, by the young learner. The copy will never be so good as the original; it will usually appear constrained and unnatural, and of course be discovered.

Reading or speaking, pruned of all eccentricities by the observance of such general rules as will be found in most of the school books, should be after one's own manner; he should personate himself instead of any other person, however celebrated. When reading is brought to this perfection it will be listened to, and being better understood, will make a deeper impression. Why do we remember everything that is related to us, and forget so much that is read to us, if it be not owing to the natural manner of the relator, and the constrained manner of the reader, which diverts our attention, or at least fails to fix it?"

"The subject of irregular attendance has been so often presented to your notice, that you may think it a matter of supererogation to bring the subject up again at this time; but we think it of such magnitude that we venture to bring it before you once more. It appears by the returns, that of those scholars whose names are on the register, but about three-fifths, or two-thirds, is the average attendance. There are some other children in the town who do not attend at all, and whose names are not registered at all, so that not far from one-half the whole school privilege is lost entirely. If we estimate the value of school-privilege at one dollar, or one-half, or even one-quarter, per day, for a child, the whole loss in the Commonwealth would amount to an immense sum. And who of us would part, if we could, with what we could learn in one day's diligent study? Although we should, any of us, be unwilling to part with any portion of our knowledge, yet I believe those who are ignorant actually set a higher value upon learning, than those who are learned. We heard one gentleman, in his after life, and who had been limited in the opportunities for learning, in his younger life, and who had acquired a sufficiency of this world's goods, make the remark that he should be very glad to refund one thousand dollars for one dollar, which should have been laid out upon his education in his youth. This puts the question in a very strong light, but no more so than is just and proper; learning is invaluable, it cannot be measured by dollars and cents."

Report of 1853-4:—

"Scholars learn a great deal from one another, perhaps in the whole as much as from the teacher; we mean, in the less difficult portions of their studies. The more familiar intercourse which scholars hold with one another, and the consequent attrition of mind, elicits thought, and serves to bring into activity the scholar's own resources, and is therefore of more real and permanent benefit. One idea which a scholar gets from his own resources, or works out, with his intercourse with another, is worth a dozen, which are imperfectly understood, that he gets from a teacher. Knowledge which is absorbed, or drawn into the mind by the inherent power within, is more valuable, than that which is forced in by the aid of foreign assistance. A pupil may obtain knowledge in this way, but then it is uphill work. To be sure, he may sometimes meet with obstacles which may require the aid of a teacher to remove; these obstacles will grow less and less as he progresses, and as he gains confidence and learns to depend more and more upon himself. The most practically useful men are those who are self-taught; because what they know there is no mistake about, and they can give us reason for it, the why and the wherefore. All new discoveries are of course from this kind of knowledge, although it may be based upon previous knowledge obtained from the schools.

It will be likewise noticed, that in several of the examinations, the school houses were dressed with evergreens. This is always pleasant to witness. When such attentions are paid to the occasions of visiting the schools, and when we see the friends of the scholars present, showing their interest too, when we see that the school house has not been abused, we feel that there is good evidence that the time of the scholars has been given to something of value, that study has been an object with them, that they have occupied themselves with things which will be profitable to them in after life. On the contrary, when we find the building abused, blinds and glass broken, fences broken down, wantonly; we cannot but have melancholy forebodings; we tremble for the future prospects, for some at least, of the members of that school. School houses ought to be held to be the most sacred places next to the church. They are our foster mothers, and are referred to by all our public speakers, with the deepest interest. Let feelings of respect and reverence for these our Alma Maters, then be inculcated by parents and teachers. Let the grounds about them be ornamented with shade trees and shrubbery, rose bushes and flowers; let each family or child plant a tree or bush, and cultivate it. Let the nakedness of the house and grounds be clothed with ornaments which shall increase the attractions of the place. If the borders of the grounds only were lined with forest trees, it would add much to the beauty of the spot, and take from it that aspect of desolation, which most of them now present. Would not the scholar, while he was engaged in such a laudable employment, be at the same time cultivating the more kindly and refined feelings of his nature? Would he be so likely even to become a ruffian, and do violence to the rules of social and refined life? Would not the stranger and traveller, as he passed, be moved with emotions of pleasure? Would not the scholar himself feel a little proud, when abroad, to be interrogated, whether he belonged to such a school? All our higher schools, academies, and seminaries of learning, as well as all public places, have not failed to make the ornamenting of their grounds a primary object."

Report 1854-5:—

"We would that you were either cold or hot; that you would either praise or censure our reports; that you would read and make your comments. We have no doubt but that the teachers have interest enough to look at them, but whether the parents do, or not, we do not know, for we hear little said of them. We have been making reports year after year, concerning the state and condition of the mental and moral developments of those young immortals, for whom you profess to have great anxiety, and which you no doubt really have, and love too, with all the ardor, which a father's or mother's nature is susceptible, and yet, hardly take the pains to peruse a short account of a year's teaching, whether it be for weal or for woe; although some improvement has been manifested the past year, by increased attendance on examinations. We know there is somewhat a sameness in such reports, quite as much in the external appearance, however, as anything within. But we have in this report, as in all others, endeavored to tell the truth, showing neither favor nor affection. We believe this report is not all honey-sweetened, nor vinegar-acidulated. If we have not said so much by way of praise in some parts of the report, it is not because we should not have been happy to have lauded every effort for instruction, however feeble; and we think we are fully authorized to bestow the modicum of praise, not without discrimination, which will be found in the following report, which is respectfully submitted."

"In the several first visits to the schools, we endeavored to impress upon the teacher and pupils, the vital importance of understanding the studies which they were pursuing. That no definition of a word should be taken, which was not reduced down to the perfect comprehension of the pupil.

A good deal of discouragement is frequently produced by the pupil's being obliged to feel his way in the dark, through a branch of study, which would be much more readily comprehended, if only the meaning of the terms were fully explained and understood."

"We would not be understood to say, that where there is a particular bias or love of any one course, or branch of science, we would not have it encouraged and pursued. Because, we believe, that especially where there is a love of any one branch, it will be more sure to be learned, and to be learned the more perfectly, and in a manner which will be more profitable to the individual and to the community.

We are not of that number that believe that the discipline of the mind is the principal advantage of schools. There are a great proportion of the community who get no other education or knowledge than such as is obtained in our common schools, and discipline alone would hardly meet the wants and desires of the public. After the fundamental branches, or together with those branches, if the teacher can catch the bent and leaning of the scholar's mind, that leaning as has been said, should be followed. Water will best run in its natural channel."

Report of 1858-9:—

"The common civilities, the little amenities, of life, should be more attended to by parents and teacher. Parents should require of their children on leaving home in the morning for school some expression respectful of the fact, and the child should be required, on entering the school room, to give some token to the teacher of his entrance; for children want to know how to leave or enter a room, as well as how to act or what to say when they get in. And not so little depend upon those little things as one might suppose, for first impressions are the deepest and most lasting; it is therefore quite important we should make and leave a favorable impression upon those strangers whose acquaintance we are making. They are likewise the best passport into good society and through life, and for our own benefit at least we had better pass for a little more than a good deal less than we are worth.

The want of graceful manners not unfrequently keeps in the background those who have talents and whose real merits are a loss to the public as well as themselves. Good manners are never lost."

Dr. Merriam loved country life and took a deep interest in the cultivation of the soil. One of the principal reasons for returning to his native town from Marblehead, was to enjoy country life and gratify his taste for agricultural pursuits. He joined the Essex Agricultural Society in 1821, and continued his connection with the society to the close of his life. Part of the time he was a trustee. His interest in the society never ceased while he lived. He took a special interest in the culture of fruit, and grew many choice varieties upon his farm. In making his professional rounds, in his gig or on horseback, he greatly enjoyed the rural scenery, the cultivated fields, the growing crops, and seeing the rewards of the thrifty husbandman in the harvest.

He favored agricultural instruction in the common schools.

In the school report of Apr., 1862, he writes,—"Agriculture is truly a branch about which every one should know something; for every merchant, mechanic, or professional man, sometime in his life, is called to cultivate the farm or the garden. As this is a branch of business upon which all others depend and upon which we must all fall back, it is quite important we should know something about it."

The cause of Temperance received his early and earnest attention and support. He early became convinced of the injurious effects of alcohol as a beverage, upon the human system. It was a common saying with him that every glass of liquor a man drank, shortened his life some seconds. In public meetings, on social occasions, and in private conversation he gave his influence and ready advocacy of total abstinence from intoxicating drinks. He made very little use of it as a medicine in his practice. In his views and practice, in regard to the medicinal use of alcohol, he was in advance of his contemporaries.

One station that Dr. Merriam was called upon to occupy, remains to be mentioned—that of a magistrate. The friends of law and order were not obliged to go out of town in Judge Merriam's day to get justice administered. That object could be realized within our own precincts.

Back in the 50's, the condition of society was such as to call for the organization of a vigilance committee. The community was afflicted to an unusual degree with the evils attending the excessive use of intoxicating drink; in the language of the time, drunkenness, idleness, misspending of time, not providing for the support of the family, and disturbing the peace.

The prominent citizens of the village were largely interested in efforts to suppress the extensive dissipation, and to improve the morals of the town. It is improbable that Dr. Merriam took a partisan view of the situation, but he was deeply interested, especially in the reform of the victims of intoxicating drink, and brought his influence to bear upon the side of total abstinence, as has been before noticed.

Charges of drunkenness, and its attendant evils of idleness, not providing, disturbing the peace, vagrancy, and the like, were most frequently brought before him—but accusations of theft, obtaining money under false pretences, and breaking and entering, he was likewise called upon to consider. Of course the higher crimes that were beyond the jurisdiction of his court were sent up to the Court of Common Pleas.

It would appear that the crime of stealing, then as now, was not always looked upon as very heinous. A case where the prisoner was accused of stealing two turkeys, of the value of two dollars, the sentence imposed was a fine of one dollar, and costs of prosecution.

In another more aggravated case of stealing, the sentence was the House of Correction for three months.

For drunkenness and for being a common drunkard, not providing, et cetera, some cases got three months in the House of Correction, while others were let off with a much lighter sentence.

In a case where the charge was being drunk and intoxicated by the voluntary and excessive use of intoxicating liquors; that the accused was a common drunkard and on divers days and times within six months, was drunk and intoxicated; that he neglected his calling, misspent what he earned, and did not provide for his family; he was convicted and sentenced to the House of Correction for three months.

It is further recorded in the case that the "mittimus was suspended on the respondent signing the abstinence pledge and paying a part of the costs of prosecution."

In another case where the charge was excessive drinking, idleness, mispending time, not providing, and so on, the accused promised better conduct, signed the temperance pledge and paid the costs, and was discharged and proceedings quashed.

Another case of drunkenness, idleness, disturbing the peace, etc., was nol pros. by the accused paying the costs and signing the pledge.

A case where the accused pleaded guilty; penalty,—costs and pledge.

Another class of cases noted in the "Court Record," was where the accused was adjudged not guilty and discharged.

A case where a warrant was for an arrest for drunkenness, the constable made return that the respondent was not to be found in his precinct.

A writ for the same individual issued three months afterward, was returned with the indorsement that the respondent was non est inventus.

As the work of the vigilance committee was carried on in secret, and its members in a measure if not absolutely pledged to secrecy, it would seem that their proceedings occasionally leaked out in some way and came to the knowledge of the suspect, giving him a chance to escape.

The entries in Dr. Merriam's "Court Record," show that he exercised judgment, discrimination, and common sense, as well as regarded the requirements of law, in his dealings as a magistrate.

While some of his decisions are to be commended by the most stubborn advocates of the forms of law, it is apparent that he was lenient in his treatment of many delinquents, who were brought before him. If the victim of the abuse of alcohol was not treated as harshly as might have been expected, it would not be unjust in the magistrate, but creditable for him, to take into consideration the frailties of human nature, when subjected to the temptation of the intoxicating cup; the deprivation by his impoverished family of the little that he might furnish towards their support; the culpability of those who placed temptations in his path, more guilty than the culprit himself, and the blame lying upon the community for not removing the cause of his dissipation out of the way.

The inconsistency and incongruity of condemning a man for being influenced by causes beyond his control, and for yielding to temptations thrust in his pathway, could not but appeal to the magistrate's common sense and sense of justice.

It must be admitted that Dr. Merriam administered justice honestly, in accordance with law, and with due regard to the extenuating circumstances of the cause on trial.

If he was not a severe judge, the community had the satisfaction of feeling that no innocent person was called to suffer unjustly.

Dr. Merriam was too far advanced in life to take an active part in the war of the great Rebellion. But, as I remember, in a public assembly called to consider the subject of enlistments, he offered to attend gratuitously, and did so do, the families of those who were about to enlist.

He sent his son into the field to help fight the battles of his country.

For many years he was the most prominent citizen of the place. At public meetings held to discuss important questions, he was called upon to preside, as well as to preside on occasions in other towns, as County Temperance Conventions. It was the custom to turn to him to head petitions and take the lead in movements looking to the benefit of his fellow-townsmen.

Dr. Merriam made no pretensions to the role of a public speaker, but was ready to express his views and opinions in plain language. I do not know that he ever applied himself to deliver a lecture, to write an essay, or to make a set speech. But on a festive occasion, where the ladies bore a leading part, the observance of the Fourth of July, and the celebration of the completion of the vestry of the Congregational Church, Dr. Merriam left minutes of extended remarks to be made on that occasion, on "The happy influence which woman exerts on society." The tone of the speech is highly eulogistic of the sex.

A copy of the paper follows:—

"In occupying the few minutes allotted to us on this festive occasion I design to offer a few remarks on the happy influence which woman exerts on society.

It has been our very agreeable province through life to be much in her society. We have seen her in very many different phases and occasions, and have seldom found her failing to support her character for sympathy, aid, and charity, which the world has always granted her, and which the various emergencies have called forth. Her heart and hand are always open to the demands and necessities of human wants and human sufferings. Her hand is seen in every good word and work. And her power and influence is almost unlimited; she can and does accomplish great and wonderful things.

We need not go beyond our own country or our own times for examples of her energies, and the support she has given to important enterprises.

The heroes and patriots of the revolution are sung on every 4th of July, but did not the heroines and women of the times bear a full share of the burdens and sufferings, which were endured, most cheerfully and hopefully, during those most anxious and distressing days? Did they not part with their husbands, fathers, brothers, and friends, to do battle in the strife for independence and liberty? and did they not sometimes do it themselves? Who will undertake to say how great a part they had in the matter, or whether our Independence would have been achieved at all, without their encouragement and patience, so important for the emergency? and what does not every good cause owe to woman?

What has she not done for the Temperance cause, and what for the cause of religion in all ages and at all times? On these subjects you, Mr. President, need no illustration.

But to bring the subject still nearer home, the ladies of our own town have done themselves immortal honor, and the town immortal credit by the various enterprises which they have undertaken and accomplished in the present passing times. Whenever and wherever we go abroad, we hear inquiries after the 'Topsfield Ladies Reading Society.'

Other ladies wish to take pattern for forming similar societies, or remodeling old ones, and particular inquiries are made after the reading department, the selection of books and the mode of using them, how supported and maintained, etc., etc., giving us evidence of the impression they have made abroad, approving and applauding their taste and spirit.

In the present movement, having a double object in view, viz., the observance of our National birthday and the erection of a Social Hall or Vestry for the convenience and accommodation of the place, for all ordinary occasions of meeting together, they are making yet another demonstration of their unfailing resources. We probably should not have had a Vestry for the present, had not the Ladies given the work a propelling impulse, by devoting a very liberal portion of their collections to this end.

This too, without lessening their appropriations for books, of which they have some 200 volumes, and for various charitable purposes. And their charities are not few, if we may judge from the frequent inquiries made of us for objects needing aid. Their footsteps are not always seen by the public, when on errands of mercy, they do not sound a trumpet before them, or publish to the world their goings out or coming in, yet grateful hearts will sometimes reveal their doings. Can it be otherwise than that such examples should have a happy influence on society and the rising generation?

Ought we not, then, to encourage the laudable undertakings of our friends, by responding to their calls, with all the assistance which it is in our power to render, and to second their movements in every other operation got up for such worthy objects?

And who grudges the small contribution levied upon his pocket, when so many of his senses are gratified and entertained? Not the appetite alone is glutted with sweets, but the eye, the ear, the intellect, and the whole soul are all regaled with pleasant and happy impressions, which will not soon, we trust, be obliterated from the record which memory keeps, not till benevolence and virtue cease to charm, till suffering humanity shall have no need of female sympathy, or till time with us shall be no more.

Then give to the ladies of Topsfield their just due, Virtue, Benevolence, and Intelligence."

He was eminently social in his nature. No one more than he enjoyed, even in his later years, social gatherings, and the society of young people, for whose benefit so much of his life had been devoted. They received a cordial welcome to his home, where they met on many happy occasions.

A short poem has been preserved among his papers, that illustrates the social side of his character. It was probably written and sent by a lady admirer.

From his agreeable companionship, his robust and stately form, and engaging manners, we can easily see that he was a favorite in society.

When we consider that he did not marry until he was 52 years old, and was wont to say that he "would if he could," some allusions and expressions in the facetious production, will be readily understood and appreciated.

TO DR. MERRIAM.

What, Doct., still solus? no wife in the chase?

Still afraid of that soul chilling "No"?

Poor faint-hearted soul! how I pity your case,

Here are blue eyes, and black eyes, the fair and brunette.

The grave, the coquette and the prude,

From dignified Lydia to learned Miss Bet.

"I know it, I would if I could."

See Lucia, sweet model of feminine grace,

How can you behold her unmoved?

A temper more sweet, or a lovelier face

Might be worshiped, but could not be loved.

Will sighing and wishing ere bring to your arms

A damsel more charming and good?

Not a single endeavor for so many charms?

"Don't tease me, I would if I could."

On Lucy Ann's eye could an anchorite gaze
Nor kindle amain at the view?
With calmness to gaze on so witching a face,
Was reserved for one senseless as you.

The rose and the lily blend on Margaret's cheek
Her lips how with nectar imbued!
You monster of dullness, Oh! why don't you speak?
"Why hang ye! I would if I could."

Have Lydia's attractions no longer a charm?
Or what can have rendered them less?
Can sweetness so touching and goodness so warm
Excite not a wish to possess?

Your sense of her merit you have after avowed,
I protest you deserve a rattan,
Go whine like a schoolboy, "I would if I could,"
"In six months I will if I can."

Sometime before commencement in 1858, the Hon. George Grennell of Greenfield, his classmate before mentioned, wrote him asking what he thought of a class reunion on the 50th anniversary of their graduation. The proposition was favorably considered. It was arranged that Dr. Merriam go to Hanover by way of Greenfield, both going on from the latter place in company with each other. He did so. He received a cordial and hospitable reception from his classmate. The facilities for travel were not so extensive as now, so that it could not be expected that there would be a large representation of the surviving members of the class assembled. The occasion brought together only three to celebrate their semi-centennial, Dr. Merriam, Mr. Grennell and, I think, Judge Spaulding of Vermont.

The friendly and hospitable entertainment at Greenfield, the meeting of the trio on the scenes of their college life where they called up the events of their student days, and talked over the experiences of the half century, the commencement dinner where the graduates gathered for their annual festival, and where Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes and the Hon. John P. Hale were present as invited guests and made felicitous speeches, made an occasion of much enjoyment and a delightful episode of his declining years.

The professional and friendly relations of the writer with Dr. Merriam during his last seven years, gave opportunity to learn much of him in the different relations of life; to witness the high moral tone of his discourse, his genial and hospitable nature, his interest for the well-being of the community, and the prosperity of the town.

Dr. Merriam was a regular attendant upon the Sunday services of the Congregational Church, and held to the essential doctrines there taught. He was not a member of the church organization. His religion was exhibited in his daily life, and in believing and following the plain teachings of the New Testament.

Concerning his religious views I quote from a letter written after his decease by Mr. Grennell:—"I believe he expressed a sentiment familiar to his heart, in some of the last moments of his life, that 'he could trust in Christ as the Redeemer of his soul.' His letters to me expressed sentiments in accord with the above."

The evening of his days was passed in the enjoyment of home and village life, interesting himself in the state of the country then in the throes of rebellion, exercising the rights and privileges of citizenship, attending public worship, enjoying the society of friends, having the respect of the community, friendly to all, happy in his domestic relations, possessed of a competence, he came to the period when the healing art failed to prolong life, or prevent the inroads of disease, and passed away, with angina pectoris, Nov. 13th, 1864, at the age of 78 years and 9½ months, bringing to a close a life well spent.

HOTEL FOR SALE.

The subscriber, wishing to retire from her present active employment, offers for sale the TOPSFIELD HOTEL, with all its appendages. The spacious and well constructed buildings, consisting of House, Stable, Sheds, Wash-house, Wood-house, Hay-scales, &c, &c., are all well built, of the best materials; and are now in excellent repair. Besides a good Well of water, there is a Lead Aqueduct, which supplies the House and Stable with water from a never-failing spring.

Topsfield Hotel is situated on an eminence that overlooks the village, and commands an extensive view of the surrounding scenery, which is uncommonly beautiful. It has for many years been a favorite summer retreat. Any person wishing to occupy such a stand, will rarely find one combining so many advantages. Seven regular Stage coaches stop at the Hotel every week day and the private travel has been constantly increasing. A good title and immediate possession will be given, and the terms of payment be made to suit the purchaser.

ISAAC CUMMINGS, OF TOPSFIELD, MASS.,
AND SOME OF HIS DESCENDANTS.

ARRANGED FROM DATA COLLECTED BY MISS MARIETTA CLARK, MRS. ABBIE W. TOWNE, W. F. CUMMINGS, AND
GEORGE FRANCIS DOW.

The first mention in Essex County records of Isaac Cummings,* is an entry made by the town clerk, at Ipswich, showing that he owned a planting lot near Reedy marsh, in that town, previous to July 25, 1638. On the 9th of the 2nd month, 1639, he also owned a house lot in Ipswich village, on the street called the East End, next the lot owned by Rev. Nathaniel Rogers. He was a commoner in 1639, and the same year sold land near the highway leading to Jeffrey's Neck. He also possessed, in 1639, land adjoining John Winthrop and William Goodhue, the farm being partly in Ipswich and partly in Topsfield. He was made a freeman, May 18, 1642, and was a proprietor in Watertown the same year. As an Ipswich commoner he was one of those "that have right of commonage there the last of the last month, 1641."

On the first day of the second month, 1652, Isaac Cummings, for £30, bought of Samuel Symonds, 150 acres of land, "being the North-east corner of his farm called Ollivers." This lot of land was in Topsfield and bounded on the *Isaac Cummings, according to tradition, was of Scottish ancestry, claiming descent from the "Red Cummin," of Badenoch, in the south-eastern district of Inverness-shire, a wild, mountainous country, presenting wide stretches of bleak moorland. Here the clan flourished from 1080 to 1330, and then began to decline. Some deduce their origin from Normandy and others from Northumberland. According to the Chronicle of Melrose, the first of the name, who figures prominently, was slain west and north-west by land lately of John Winthrop, on the south and west by land of Francis Peabody, and on the south by land of Daniel Clarke.

This farm began at what is now known as the Hobbs-Bell place, and continued down both sides of the brook, then called "Winthropps," to what is now called Howlett's brook, one hundred acres lying on the westerly side, and fifty acres on the easterly side, probably joining other land belonging to him.

The county court records have the following items: Goodman Isaac Cummings, of Topsfield, having claimed ownership of a heifer in the possession of John Fuller and driven the same to his home, suit was brought by said Fuller. March 28, 1654.

Isaac Comings, sen<sup>r</sup>., was witness against Wm. Duglas, of Ipswich, who was presented "for taking of 19lb of Shorborne Wilson, his late servant, for 9 mo. time, which we think tends to opresion." March, 1656.

Isaac Commins, sen<sup>r</sup>., was sued for debt by Zerobabell Phillips, of Ipswich. March, 1657.

In 1659 Isaac Comins, sen<sup>r</sup>., made deposition that Zacheus Gould, of Topsfield, "in time of singing y<sup>e</sup> psalm one sabbath day in y<sup>e</sup> afternoon, sate him downe upon y<sup>e</sup> end of y<sup>e</sup> Table (about wth y<sup>e</sup> Minister & Cheife of y<sup>e</sup> people sit) wth his hatt with Malcom III, at Alnwick, in 1093, leaving two sons, John and William. From John, all the Cumins in Scotland are said to be descended. Sir John, the Red Cumin or Comyn, was the first Lord of Badenoch, and in 1240 was an ambassador from Alexander II, to Louis IX, of France. His son John, called the Black Lord of Badenoch, was inferior to no subject in Scotland for wealth and power, and was one of those who vowed to support Queen Margaret, daughter of Alexander III, in her title to the crown. At her death he became a competitor for the crown of Scotland, "as the son and heir of John, who was son of Richard, son of William, son of Hextilda, daughter and heiress of Gothrick, son and heir of Donald, King of Scotland." The son of this Lord, called, in turn, the Red Cumin, was the last Lord of Badenoch of the surname of Cumin. In 1335 a number of the Cumin clan were slain in the feudal battle of Culbleau, in Glenwick, where a stone now marks the spot. The badge of the clan, in Gaelic, was "Lus Mhic Cuiminn," in English—the cummin plant.

fully on his head, & his back toward all y<sup>e</sup> rest of y<sup>m</sup> y<sup>t</sup> sate about y<sup>e</sup> Table, & thence spoken to by y<sup>e</sup> Minister & 2 others; ether to shoue reverence to y<sup>e</sup> Ordinance, or to wthdrawe, yet altered not his posture."

Isaac Cummings was chosen grandjuryman in 1675 and was moderator of the Town Meeting in 1676. He was deacon of the church in Topsfield for many years. According to a deposition made Mar., 1666, wherein he gave his age as 65, he probably was born in 1600 or 1601. Of his wife nothing is known save that she died before 1677. He died between the dates of May 8 and 22 in the year 1677.

JOHN CUMMINGS<sup>2</sup> born in 1630; married Sarah, daughter of Ensigne Thomas Howlett. He received, by his father's will, the homestead, consisting of 40 acres with houses, barns, orchards and fences, and in 1680 sold the same to Edward Nealand (Kneeland). This farm was bounded by land of the above Nealand, and by Tobijah Perkins and the Ipswich common land. About 1658 he removed to Boxford. Both he and his wife were members of the church in Topsfield. Dec. 7, 1685: "voted dismission to John Cummings without commendation and dismissed his wife with commendation to the church to be shortly gathered at Dunstable,"—Topsfield Church records. He removed with his family to Dunstable, Mass., about 1680, where he was one of the first settlers. He was a selectman in 1682 and a member of the church in 1684. He died Dec. 1, 1700, his wife having died Dec. 7, 1688.

3

ISAAC CUMMINGS<sup>2</sup>, born in 1633; married Nov. 27, 1659, Mary Andrews, daughter of Robert Andrews. He received, in 1663, by deed from his father, a farm of 100 acres lying on both sides of Winthrop's brook, being a part of the original purchase of Samuel Symonds. He built his house near or on the site of the Hobbs-Bell house. He was elected deacon of the church June 13, 1686, and was an influential man in the town, his name frequently appearing upon the records. He is styled "Sergeant" in the list of those who took the oath of allegiance in 1678. He also served as selectman, treasurer, constable and tithingman. He was made a freeman in 1673, and in 1675 was impressed for the Narraganset expedition. In his will dated in 1712 and probated June 19, 1721, he gives his son Isaac £30, and land in Boxford; to son John, land on the south side of the river "where he now dwells," and also "my homestead house and land * * * in Consideration of what he hath Done Towards mine & my Wives Support while my wife Lived, & upon Consideration yt he maintaines mee honorably During my Naturall Life." Thomas, the other son, "for whom I have Done Considerably already in helping him purchase land," received "my English Dictionary." He died in 1721, his wife having died before 1712.

ISAAC CUMMINGS<sup>3</sup>, born in Topsfield, Sept. 15, 1664; married, 1st, Dec. 25, 1688, Alice Howlett, daughter of Thomas Howlett; married, 2nd, Nov. 23, 1696, Frances Sherwin, of Boxford. She d. Mar. 13, 1770. He received by deed from his father in 1708, 57 acres of land in Boxford, but he probably never resided on the farm, as in 1712 he was living on a farm deeded him by his wife's grandfather, Thomas Howlett. The farm was situated in the vicinity of the present Alfred Cummings homestead, then situated in Ipswich. There are supposed to have been no less than six different houses upon this farm. The first one was situated very near the river and it is said to have been destroyed by Indians. In 1721 both he and his wife were dismissed from the church in Topsfield to the church in Ipswich. He died Aug. 7, 1740.

9

JOHN CUMMINGS<sup>3</sup>, born in Topsfield, June 7, 1666; married, Jan. 23, 1688-9, Susannah, daughter of Joseph and Phebe Towne. She died Sept. 13, 1766, æ. 96. He received from his father by will dated May 8, 1722, 100 acres of land now known as the Hobbs-Bell farm, and fifty acres of land on the south side of the river "where my son John now dwells." As early as 1694 he began buying land on the south side of the river, until he finally owned over 200 acres. He was living in that part of the town as early as 1714, and probably much earlier. He lived in the old house that stood, until its destruction by fire in 1882, on what is now known as the Peterson farm. He was tithingman, constable, and held other minor town offices. He executed a will May 8, 1722, which was proved July 16, 1722.

ix. REBECCA, bapt. Nov. 1, 1713; m. Feb. 2, 1730-1, Thomas Perkins, and d. Aug. 13, 1734.

ISAAC CUMMINGS. "Lydia How her son Isaac Cummings as She called him was Born on y<sup>e</sup> 4 day of december 1719." This boy's paternity does not appear. His will made March 4, 1744-5, "Being Bound in his Majesties Service In y<sup>e</sup> Expedition Formed Against Cape Britton," was brought to an early probate, and another life tragedy and luckless pledge of unwedded love was buried with hundreds of other brave New Englanders, beneath the dark greensward on Point Rochfort, near "the Dunkirk of America." "No monument marks the sacred spot, but the waves of the restless ocean, in calm or storm, sing an everlasting requiem over the graves of the departed heroes." He remembered in his will several cousins, "the church of Christ in Topsfield," and by a codicil made at Louisburg, while "weak of body," one, Mary Marshall, who lived with her guardian in the old home in Topsfield; a sweetheart, who, with "the poor of Topsfield," shared the wage due from the Province to the dying soldier.

10

THOMAS CUMMINGS<sup>3</sup>, born in Topsfield, June 27, 1670; married, Mar. 20, 1704-5, Mehitable, daughter of Joseph and Ann (Hathorne) Porter, of Salem Village. She died May 9, 1738. He was of Boxford at time of marriage, and was selectman of that town in 1713, 1721, 1728, 1731. By will dated 1749 and proved Dec. 25, 1749, he bequeathed, among other items, land lying in Lancaster, a dictionary and a farrier's book.

II

JOSEPH CUMMINGS<sup>4</sup>, born Sept. 1, 1692, in Woburn; married, 1st, Dec. 1, 1714, Sarah, daughter of Isaac and Abigail Easty. She was living in 1748. He m. 2nd, Nov. 11, 1751, Priscilla Lamson. She died Aug. 19, 1780. At the age of twelve, tradition says, he came to Topsfield to live with Thomas Howlett, whose wife was Rebecca Cummings, and by whom he was adopted. In 1715 he received by deed the farm east of the Ipswich river, in "thick woods," of recent years known as the Smith farm. He d. April 22, 1794, æ. 101. Cleaveland, in his Bi-centennial Address, says of him: "With physical energies scarcely impaired, and with a mental vigor not perceptively abated, Captain Cummings lived to the age of one hundred and two. Even after he had completed his 'orb' of years he could mount his horse, unaided, from the ground, and ride many miles. To the last his memory was strong and exact—his judgement clear and sound—his retorts equally quick and keen."

"Died at Topsfield, on the 22d of April, Capt. Joseph Cummings, in the 102d year of his age. He was born at Woburn, Sept. 1, 1692, O. S. At the age of 12 he came to Topsfield, by the invitation of a relation, who gave him a tract of wild land, on which he settled and lived about 80 years. In early life he made a public profession of religion; and, by a uniform piety, integrity, temperance, cheerfulness and benevolence, he supported an amiable and unblemished character. He was not favored with the advantages of education; but strong mental powers, an inquisitive turn of mind, and a tenacious memory, had enabled him to acquire and retain a good knowledge of the principal events and public transactions of the last hundred years. Possessed of a rich fund of interesting and entertaining anecdotes, he was a living history of nearly a century.

Within his memory the people of his neighborhood were in fear of the Indians, and he had himself stood centry at a small fortress in the town. Employed from his youth in cultivating a valuable farm, not with excessive labor, but steady industry—living in a plentiful, but plain and simple manner—and enjoying a uniform cheerfulness—the powers of his body and mind continued in great vigor, to a very advanced age. When nearly an hundred, he would readily mount his horse from the ground; and his reason continued to his last moments. Satisfied with living, and with little appearance of any other disease than senility, he closed this mortal scene, in the cheerful hope of a blessed immortality. His descendents were 2 children, 23 grand-children, 116 great-grand-children, and 32 great-great-grand-children. Total 173."—Salem Gazette, May. 13, 1794.

Children:

18. i. THOMAS, bapt. July 15, 1716. See below (18).

14

JOHN CUMMINGS<sup>4</sup>, bapt. July 17, 1692, in Topsfield; published Feb. 18, 1715, Mary, daughter of Isaac and Martha (Towne) Larrabee, of Lynn. He was a cordwainer, and in his father's will shared with his brother Joseph, his grandfather's homestead, the Hobbs-Bell place. In 1727 he exchanged this share with his brother Stebbens for a farm just over the line, in Middleton, now known as the "Porter Gould place." In 1748 he sold his home in Middleton and removed to Southborough, Mass., where he bought a farm from John How. His son-in-law, Thomas Goodale, bought the adjoining farm from John Gould. In his will, dated Dec. 19, 1755, he mentions his son John, "if he shall ever return from His Majesty's service." He died Feb. 29, 1756.

JOSEPH CUMMINGS<sup>6</sup>, born in Ipswich, Dec. 27, 1745. He married —, Anna Gove, who died in Topsfield, July 22, 1792, aged 38 years, and was buried in the "old burying ground" on the Cummings farm, where lie over one hundred of the early settlers in the locality. The Lamsons, Smiths, and Cummingses. But few stones now remain, and these are of recent date. It is surrounded by a high wall and overgrown with trees. Joseph Cummings graduated at Harvard Coll. in 1768. He studied divinity in Topsfield, probably with Rev. George Leslie, pastor of Linebrook church, who had several students, and in 1778 he removed to Marlboro', N. H., and became the first settled pastor of the Congregational church in that town, at a salary of $133.33. Difficulties arose between pastor and people, and in Dec., 1780, he was dismissed from his charge, the church charging various matters of christian neglect, which were sustained at a council of ministers. He returned to Topsfield and is said to have gone to Ohio as the land agent of the Massachusetts Company. While on his way home from there, he was taken suddenly ill and returned to Marlboro', to the house of his brother Amos, where he died Sept. 24, 1788.

REAL ESTATE FOR SALE.

The subscriber offers for sale, that excellent Farm, situated in Topsfield, on a beautiful eminence about one mile east of the hotel, being the same that was lately owned by Dubley Bradstreet deceased. Said Farm contains about ninety two acres in the homestead, and in point of soil is not inferior to any in that fertile town. There is also a large two story House, two good barns, and other out buildings; two good wells of Water, and otherwise well watered; it is well fenced into lots, with that most substantial fence, stone wall—there is a unit a large orchard of good fruit, now in a bearing state.

There are also about twenty acres of good meadow and wood land, situated within about half a mile. Also, about two acres of good peat meadow, situated near—all in Topsfield.

Also, six acres of good marsh, and one half of a pasture containing about thirty acres in all, situated in Ipswich.

The whole will be sold together and possession given the first of April next; or the owner will reserve the Ipswich land, as best suits the purchaser. It will be sold for a reasonable price, and terms of payment made easy.

For further particulars enquire of

JOHN BRADSTREET.

1881. The first of these is the fact that the word "dog" is used in a very general sense, and is applied to all quadrupeds, and even to some birds. This is a very common usage in many languages, and is especially so in the languages of the East. The second fact is that the word "dog" is used in a very specific sense, and is applied only to the domesticated animal. This is also a very common usage in many languages, and is especially so in the languages of the West. The third fact is that the word "dog" is used in a very technical sense, and is applied only to a certain class of animals. This is also a very common usage in many languages, and is especially so in the languages of the East.

The first of these facts is the most important, and it is the one which has led to the most common usage of the word "dog". I had heard that the weather in Chicago was bad, but it was just what I needed. I had been in the city for a few days now, and I was beginning to feel at home. The people were friendly, the food was good, and the scenery was beautiful. I was in luck. I had found a place where I could relax and enjoy myself. I was in Chicago, and I was happy.

ISAAC ESTY OF TOPSFIELD AND SOME OF HIS DESCENDANTS.

BY GAY ESTY BANGS.

THE first mention in America of the name Esty, or as it is otherwise spelled "Estey, Este, Estee, Easte, Eastey, Easty," is in Salem, where one Jeffrey Esty was granted twenty acres of land in the year 1636. From the Essex County Registry of Deeds we copy the following: "23-6-1651, Jeffrey Esty hath sold the arbadge or after feeding of the five acre lot to Henry Bullock. The planting thereof was formerly granted to Nathaniel Bishop as by a writing dated the day and year above written." Also "A caveat recorded for William Dixie who bought of Jeffrey Estee thirty acres of upland for 30<sup>s</sup> in Mackerell Cove. 6 Oct. 1651, the said Estee being out of this jurisdiction cannot yet be called to acknowledge same." In the year 1651, it seems, Jeffrey Esty had left Salem and was out of jurisdiction. The facts are that he removed to Long Island, settling for a time at Southold, thence to Huntington, and later to Little Neck, where he died Jan. 4, 1657. He made a will, without date, which was probated Jan. 23, following, and was written by Henry Scudder, his son-in-law. This will mentions a daughter Catharine and a son Isaac. Catharine married, first, Henry, son of Thomas and Elizabeth Scudder, of Salem, who made his will Jan. 25, 1661; second, Thos. Jones who settled at Huntington, making his will Feb. 16, 1669.

Isaac Esty, the son of Jeffrey, was born probably, in England, previous to the year 1630, and was quite young at the time of his father's settlement in Salem. He was a cooper by trade, and the following is the first reference to him that we have: "2-5-1653, Job Hilliard of Salem, fisherman, hath sold to Isake Esty of Salem, cooper, one house and land adjoining, being nearly half an acre for 20 li. to be paid as follows. 6 li. on the 15th October next in Codfish or caske, 8 li. on the 15th October 1654 in fish or mackerel, 6 li. ye 15th October 1655, in fish or mackerel or Job to have the house and land again as by deed dated 19-5-1653."

Isaac Esty settled in Topsfield previous to 1660. In 1661, he was one of the commoners appointed to share in the Topsfield common land on the south side of Ipswich river. In 1664 he was rated at 19s. 6d., which was the ministers rate for that year and entitled him to a proportionate share in the division of the common land, those paying fifty shillings to have one of the greater shares, under fifty to twenty to have one of the middle shares, those under twenty to have one of the least shares; in 1669, in the casting of lots he was given the 15th share. In 1672, with Deacon Howlet, Lieut. Peabody, Joseph and Edmund Towne and Thomas Baker he was granted all the swamp meadow, lying upon Ipswich river, extending from the lower part of the Governor's meadow down to the bridge that goes over the river below old Goodman Towne's for a consideration of fifty pounds.

He was one of the selectmen of the town in 1680, '82, '86 and '88. In 1681, '84, '85, he was chosen juryman of trials at Ipswich, and in years 1691 and '96, he was chosen grand juryman; he also served as tything man, surveyor of highways and fences, and was a member of different committees of the town.

In 1677, he is called "senior," his son Isaac having become of age. In 1689 he is styled "Sargent" Esty. He was a member of the church, and one of the committee appointed to secure the services of Mr. Daniel Epps of Salem, as minister in 1681, and also to secure the services of Mr. Capen and to provide for the ordination. The church register for 1684 shows that Isaac Esty, wife and family, were members in full communion. He died at Topsfield, in the year 1712, leaving a will dated March 26, 1709, witnessed by John How, Abraham How, and Joseph Capen (the minister), which was probated June 11, 1712. It reads:

"In the name of God amen I, Isaac Estie senr. of Topsfield in the County of Essex in New England Cooper being at this present of perfect understanding and memory but sensible of my Declining years have thought good to make sum disposal of my Temporal Estate as followeth Commending my soul into y<sup>e</sup> hands of God y<sup>e</sup> maker and Redeemer of it whenever it shall please God to take me hence and my body to descent Interment.

1. My will is y<sup>t</sup> my son Isaac have all y<sup>e</sup> land which he is already possest of being on y<sup>e</sup> south side of Ipswich river which I reckon to be about forty acres of upland and four of meadow be it more or less. My will is y<sup>t</sup> he & his heirs forever have y<sup>e</sup> land aforesaid together with what he hath had of my movable estate.

2. As for my son Joseph my will is y<sup>t</sup> besides what I have already Done for him about building or in Cattle or in purchasing Land which hath been Considerable — he shall have half of my wearing apparel at my Decease.

3. As for my son John he hath already what I intended for him in full & hath signified the same by writing under his hand.

4. As for my son Benjamin my will is y<sup>t</sup> he and his heirs forever have y<sup>e</sup> house & land adjacent, which I formerly designed for my son Joshua. My meaning is y<sup>t</sup> he have y<sup>e</sup> value of y<sup>e</sup> said house and land y<sup>t</sup> is what was sold for to my neighbor John Robinson together with the two cows which he hath had of me already which money for said House and Land he hath had already.

5. As for my son Jacob, my will is y<sup>t</sup> he & his heirs forever have my now dwelling house, together with barn, and other buildings with my orchards, plow lands pasture lands and meadows not already otherwise disposed of together with all my Implements of husbandry, weaving or Copering also my will is y<sup>t</sup> my son Jacob have y<sup>e</sup> whole of my movable estate y<sup>t</sup> shall be left at my decease he taking off & discharging my funeral expenses whom I do appoint sole Executor of this my last will whom I do appoint to pay my grandchild Sarah Gill ten pounds in pay not in money, nor as money, also my son Jacob and his heirs forever shall have all my right in cart or drift way as expressed by deeds.

6. As for my son Joshua for whom I procured a trade and payde some debts for him, my will is y<sup>t</sup> besides what I have already done for him he have at my decease y<sup>t</sup> other half of my wearing apparel eaqually dividing y<sup>e</sup> same with brother Joseph which is all I can do for him.

As for my daughter Sarah Irellan she had her full propotion out of my estate upon her marriage in Cattle bedding or otherwise.

As for my daughter Hannah I have on her marriage with George Abbot of Andover payed her y<sup>e</sup> full of w<sup>t</sup> I intended for her excepting twenty pounds in pay which I thought she should have at my decease payd her by my son Jacob, but inasmuch as my son Jacob hath payd her about seven pounds & ten shillings of y<sup>e</sup> twenty pounds already there remains only about twelve pounds ten shillings in pay due to her by my son Jacob at or before or within one year of my decease and in testimony of ye * *

Signed, sealed and declared to be y<sup>e</sup> last will of Isaac Estie senr as above said in presence of us.

John How Abraham How

Isaac Estie sen

Codicill.

Sarah Gill to have but five pounds.
twenty fourth day of January 1710/11.

Admitted to probate June 11, 1712.

Isaac Esty married Mary, daughter of William and Joannah (Blessing) Towne of Topsfield. She was born at Yarmouth, Norfolk Co., England, and baptized at St. Nicholas church, Aug. 24, 1634. We know but little of her life till 1692, when that terrible witchcraft delusion spread over Salem Village and vicinity. Among those to fall a victim was Mary Esty. Her sister Rebecca Nurse, about thirteen years older, had previously been accused, found guilty and executed on July 19, 1692. Mary Esty was arrested April 21, 1692, kept in jail till May 18, when she was released. On May 21, a second warrant was procured and she was taken from her home at midnight, carried to Salem jail and placed in chains. She was tried, found guilty and condemned to death, and on the 22 of September, 1692, she was executed with seven others. She was the mother of nine children, a woman of sound judgment and exalted Christian character. In intelligence she was far in advance of her age, as the following petition, written while in prison, amply bears testimony :

The Humble Petition of Mary Easty unto his Excellency Sir William Phips, and to the Honored Judge and Bench now sitting in Judicature in Salem, and the Reverend Ministers, humbly sheweth, that, whereas, your poor and humble petitioner, being condemned to die, do humbly beg of you to take it in your judicious and pious consideration that your poor and humble petitioner, knowing my own innocency, blessed be the Lord for it! and seeing plainly the wiles and subtilty of my accusers by myself, cannot but judge charitably of others that are going the same way of myself, if the Lord steps not mightily in. I was confined a whole month upon the same account that I am condemned now for, and then cleared by the afflicted persons, as some of Your Honors know. And in two days' time I was cried out upon them, and have been confined, and now am condemned to die. The Lord above knows my innocency then, and likewise does now, as at the great day will be known to men and angels. I petition to Your Honors not for my own life, for I know I must die, and my appointed time is set; but the Lord he knows it is that, if it be possible, no more innocent blood may be shed, which undoubtedly cannot be avoided in the way and course you go in. I question not but Your Honors do to the utmost of your powers in the discovery and detecting of witchcraft and witches, and would not be guilty of innocent blood for the world. But, by my own innocency, I know you are in the wrong way. The Lord in his infinite mercy direct you in this great work, if it be his blessed will that no more innocent blood be shed! I would humbly beg of you, that Your Honors would be pleased to examine these afflicted persons strictly, and keep them apart some time, and likewise to try some of these confessing witches; I being confident there is several of them has belied themselves and others, as will appear, if not in this world, I am sure in the world to come, whither I am now agoing. I question not but you will see an alteration of these things. They say myself and others having made a league with the Devil, we cannot confess. I know, and the Lord knows, as will . . . appear, they belie me, and so I question not but they do others. The Lord above, who is the Searcher of all hearts, knows, as I shall answer it at the tribunal seat, that I know not the least thing of witchcraft; therefore I cannot, I dare not, belie my own soul. I beg Your Honors not to deny this my humble petition from a poor, dying, innocent person. And I question not but the Lord will give a blessing to your endeavors."

She asked not for her own life; only that other innocent blood might not be shed, and for this unconsciousness of self has been called "the self-forgotten." After sentence was executed Isaac Esty did not weakly submit to what seemed to be the inevitable, but with a keen sense of justice and a recognition of his duties to the martyred wife, he bore in mind the fact that upon him devolved the responsibility of doing all in his power to rescue her name from reproach and his children from disgrace. After nearly twenty long years had passed away he was in a measure successful; the petitions which he presented to the court were recognized; the verdict annulled, and twenty pounds granted him, in acknowledgment of the injustice of the previous decision.

SOUTH SIDE CEMETERY INSCRIPTIONS.

COPIED BY GEORGE WARREN TOWNE.

The South Side Cemetery is situated in the southern part of the town, on the highway leading to Danvers and not far from the "Copper Mine Lot." It is upon a hill and somewhat removed from the travelled road. A time-stained wall of stone, encloses about an acre of green-sward "where heaves the earth in many a mouldering heap."

The great beauty of the spot is found in the trees planted by the different generations of men who have loved this "acre" well. There are the usual native varieties, but one forgets all save the towering pines that whisper messages of rest and peace.

In 1740, Joseph Herrick, who lived on the farm at present owned by William L. Batchelder, "in consideration of love, goodwill and affection I bear towards" David Cummings, John Cummings, Joseph Towne, Nathaniel Porter, Thomas Dwinell, Benjamin Towne, Samuel Curtis, Aaron Estey, Gideon Towne, Nathaniel Porter, jr., Amos Dorman, Thomas Dorman, Israel Towne, Daniel Robinson and Joseph Hobbs, deeded to them "one-half acre of land in Topsfield on the south side of Ipswich River, known as the burying place, inclosed with a stone wall, to be used as a burying place forever. I furthermore grant a priviledge for said persons to pass and repass across my land (Herrick's) to bury their dead."

Dated Mar. 13, 1739-40.

Joseph Hobbs lived on the Wm. Peabody farm just over the line, in Middleton, and John Cummings lived on the Porter Gould place, also in Middleton.

It will be noted that the deed says "known as the burial place," proving that the spot must have been used for burial purposes before 1740. There are no stones to mark the earliest graves and the resting places of only a few of the many Revolutionary soldiers here buried can be identified. There is the grave of Mrs. Esther Estey, who lived to be over a hundred years old, and off in a corner, separated from the other mounds, where the grass seems longer and thicker, is a grave with a large tree at its head, as if Nature was trying to be especially kind to the lonely sleeper. There are two traditions relating to this mound, one, that it is the grave of a slave once the property of the Cummings family, another, that it is the grave of an Indian woman named Sarah Tutoo. The late John H. Gould believed in the latter story.

Judge Cummings, having lost his wife Sally, in 1814, persuaded his father to enlarge the Cemetery by the gift of about half as much land as it then contained, the boundary of the old ground being between the "Herrick row" and the lot of the late David Towne. The land added in 1814 is now occupied by lots of David and Lorenzo Towne, and the Peterson, Johnson, Cummings, Batchelder and Rea families.

The Cummings family built the wall, and it is said, planted the larches and many of the other trees. "Master Sam" Cummings cared for the ground as long as he lived, and after his death, David Towne collected money by subscription and repaired the wall, purchased new gates (the stone gate posts were given by Lorenzo P. Towne) and put the ground in good order. After his death the burial ground became neglected, until in 1893, the neighborhood, to the number of thirty, devoted a day to clearing away the undergrowth. A subscription paper was again circulated and the sum of $262.00 was contributed and accepted by the town in town meeting assembled, as a permanent fund, the income of which forever should be expended in the care of the "South Side Cemetery," a designation adopted at that time.

CAPT. NEHEMIAH HERRICK'S REVOLUTIONARY

Albany, N. Y., January 21, 1845.

DEAR SIR,

I am endeavouring to procure a pension for the widow of Nehemiah Herrick, who was a Captain from your Town in the War of the Revolution, and am referred by the commissioner of pensions for your Town, for record evidence of his services. I have procured a certificate relating to his services from the Secretary of State, which appears as follows, viz.: "The name of Nehemiah Herrick of Topsfield is borne upon a pay roll of Capt. Joseph Gould from April 19th 1775—5 Days as Sergeant. There are no rolls of said Gould after that time in this office. The name of Nehemiah Herrick is signed to a roll of men as Captain, raised by the Town of Topsfield to serve three years or during the war 1777 dated Feb'y 18th 1778. The name of Nehemiah Herrick is signed to a roll of men as Captain raised by the Town of Topsfield to go to Fishkill for nine months under a resolve of Apl 20th 1778, dated Sept. 14th 1778; upon an additional return of two men enlisted into the continental service to serve my company April 9th 1778; upon a roll of men enlisted from said Town of Topsfield to serve nine months under a resolve of June 9th 1779 as Captain." In reply to which, the commissioner says, "The name of Nehemiah Herrick does not appear upon the records of the Massachusetts rolls in this office and the only service satisfactorily established by the certificate of the Secretary of State is five Days as a Sergeant in 1775," he also adds, "That evidence of the length of the Alleged service as a Captain from Topsfield must be procured. The Town Clerks office or the Town rolls from Topsfield in the office of the Secretary of State should shew any service he may have performed as a Captain from that Town."

I would remark that they were married in that Town, a certificate of which has been obtained, in which it appears that he was recognized by the clergyman as a Captain.

I desire to enquire if you can give me any information that will lead to the necessary evidence, either by oral or record evidence. If there are no other records of his services perhaps there may be some persons living who knew him or served under him in the war. I should think from the purport of the above certificate & other circumstances connected with the case, he must have performed considerable service as Captain, and if you can render any assistance you will confer a great favour upon the old Lady who is very poor & destitute, and oblige me, at the same time I shall be in the event of success to fully compensate you, & it will afford me pleasure to do so. * * * *

Yours very respectfully,

WM. VALENTINE,

Albany, N. Y.

J. P. TOWNE, ESQ.,

Clerk, Topsfield, Mass.

The following notes were taken by J. P. Towne during the month of February 1845 and are written on the margins of the foregoing letter.—Editor.

Nath. Porter, 73 yrs. old last October. Cant remember any thing about Capt. Herrick going into army. Does remember hearing Capt. H. talk about his being out but how long a time he said he was out he (P.) cannot remember or what part of the war; thinks it must have been in early part of war & before he was old enough [to] know anything about it. Never tho't Capt. H. was out a long time but cannot say. Has heard him tell about being in a skirmish or battle. He was a Capt. here but never heard of his being in the army but has heard of being a serjeant & about 8 men.

Miss Mary Towne has heard he (Herrick) was Capt. here —knows nothing about his being in the army.

Nath. Fisk, born Dec. 1764, 80 yrs. Dont remember hearing Capt. Herrick say anything about being out in army or any other person say he was out—knew him well. At the taking of Burgoine (or that way he thinks?) a man by name of Low was wounded in the ankle by a ball—died as he thinks in consequence of this wound. At time of Lexington affair Thos. Towne came to his Fathers to give the alarm. His father, uncle Sam, Mr. Dwinell, Jeremiah Towne & Wm.

T. (jr?) went (now Dea. Peabody place). His Father and some others went on foot but did reach. Thinks they went by Middleton.

Elijah Perkins, 79. Dec. 16. Knew Capt. H. Knows nothing about his being in the army. At school on South side of River day of Lexington battle. When he came home after school at night every man in this (his) neighborhood had gone except Dr. Baker (who lived between the Bradstreet farms) who was not a sound man ("kind of a broken man.") Capt. B. Gould, Archelaus Perkins, Jno. Lefavor, Amos Low (Father lived where David Hobbs now does) Ivory Hovey, Hodgkins, D. Hobbs & 1 or 2 others at taking Burgoine. Gun of his cousin Ar.[chelaus] would not go off (British retreating) & Capt. G. told him to throw it down take up another—took up one of British which he kept as long as he lived. Capt. G. & his cousin A. took the first cannon that was taken in the battle. Has heard that cannon was in a——.

Elizabeth Towne, 84 yrs of age. Feb. 19, last. Thinks it likely Capt. H. out but can't rem. anything in particular about it. Has heard her father (or "her folks," her father & uncle Elijah) say that 3 brothers & one sister came fr. Eng. together named Jacob, Joseph & Jesse Towne. Joseph settled where she (Elizabeth) now lives. The sister married a Browning of Danvers. Capt. Ezra Towne was in Bunker hill fight—he went from New Ipswich where he had lived some yrs. His brother Edmund went to New I. (fr. Topsfield) at same time he did.

Enos Estey, 73 yrs., 10th of Decem., last. Knew Capt. Herrick worked with him, a few days several times, dont remember hearing him or any body say any thing about his being out in the army. His grandmother once at door heard a pig squeal & on looking up saw a pig being carried by a Bear from somewhere Bill Bradstreets way. (they pursued) killed the bear. His grandmother sd. used keep tied at door (a horse?) for the purpose of using in fleeing to the fort if Indians came. The Fort was on South East part of Treadwells plain towards David Perkins. He (E) has ploughed up old dishes, pieces of bricks where he thinks the Fort stood. Thinks Indians passed up & down the River after his grandmother came here——doubts about any making their home in this town at that time but thinks they did in Boxford. His grandmother came from Lynn when 16 yrs. old. Married at Lynn——came here on horseback. Thinks she sd. when she came the River meadows were mostly covered with woods. Thinks some places were clear of woods.

Mrs. Peabody, Dea. P's mother said she "had tho't of them pretty much as they are now" or some thing of this kind. There might have been trees on parts or by the Road. "New Meadows" was the 1st name of this place. (Written Feb. 28, '49.)

Mrs. Peabody wid. of Jno. P. & mother of present Dea. P. 80 yrs. 16th March next. Cant say that ever she heard that he (Capt. Herrick) was out in the war. Mrs. P. subsequently remarked that "the more she tho't of it the more she tho't he was out." It appeared rather to be her belief that he was out but in what capacity (private or officer) she could not say. Remembers the day of Bunker [Hill] battle, considerable No. of people (she thinks women & children perhaps 20 or 30) were on the hill. Could see the smoke & hear the guns.

Dominick Moore, 75 yrs. 18th day of June last. He was going with his brother after his fathers horses the 1st or 2d yr. of the war, was going on the road where Nat. Porter now lives & saw them grinding corn stalks for molasses at Capt. Herricks now Nat. P's not far from the time of cutting stalks. He has heard Capt. Herrick say he was out in the army——remembers his coming to his fathers as he understood soon after his return from the army, but what time in the war it was he (Moore) cannot say——should think he (H) was not out in the war a long time——dont know if he was a Capt. in the army. At time burning of Cn. (Bunker H. battle) he, Moore, lived at the small house by J. Balch's——at time of B. Hill battle he has heard that David Balch was hoeing on hill, heard cannon & Balch & he thinks (M.) a good many others started but how far they went he dont know. Thinks the River Meadow was mostly covered with woods when this place was first settled. There was once a house on Perkins Island, East of Joshua Towne's. He has seen bricks & appearances of a cellar——name of man that lived there was Perkins.

CUMMINGS BURYING GROUND INSCRIPTIONS.

COPIED BY GEORGE CLINTON DONALDSON.

This private burying ground, located in the easterly part of the town, was set aside for burial purposes at an early date. Here lie over one hundred of those who lived in the vicinity, which, until 1774, was a part of the town of Ipswich. The Cummings, Smith, and Lamson families here lie buried. But few stones now remain and these are of comparatively recent date.

Notary Public for the State of New York

My Commission Expires on the 31st day of December, 1901.

Notary Public for the State of New York

At Topsfield, on Monday night the 9th instant a respectable number of the citizens assembled at MR. KIMBALL'S, and after partaking of an elegant supper, the following toasts were given:

1. President Jefferson:—May he ever support the Constitution, and may he be clothed with Political Salvation—and may the Republicans shout aloud for joy.

2. The Vice President:—May his great abilities be displayed in the support of Liberty, and the downfall of Tyranny.

3. The Constitution of the United States of America:—May its rights never be violated.

4. Our Republican Friends:—May they be as numerous as the people of America. A Song.

5. May all the enemies of our Liberty be converted to Friends or to Salt Petre to be used in its defence. Three Cheers.

6. Our old President Adams:—May his last days be as happy, as his former have been useful.

7. The Commonwealth of Massachusetts:—May its Elections be ever free from intrigue, and may its citizens be as virtuous, as they are industrious.

8. The first Monday of April, and Mr. Gerry. Three Cheers.

9. The Treaty with France:—May it be a happy means of reconciling the two Republics.

10. Our little Navy:—May it protect our commerce, from all insults.

11. The Ministers of the Gospel:—May they never forget to pray for the President and Vice President.

12. The Poor of our land:—May the warming hand of charity, be ever near to their relief.

13. The Town of Topsfield:—Although small among the thousands of America, yet may it never be the last in the cause of Liberty and Virtue. Six Cheers.

14. The Youth of our land:—May they ever pursue the paths of virtue, and contend for the liberty of their country.

15. The advocates for Britain:—May they see themselves coming out of the "little end of the horn." Three Cheers.

16. The Fair Sex:—May they ever hold a place in our hearts equal to their worth.

VOLUNTEERS.

By Mr. Kimball. Success to President Jefferson:—May he support the constitution equal to Adams or Washington.

Three Cheers.

May the blood and treasure, that has been spent in defence of Liberty, be remembered 'till the latest posterity. Salem Impartial Register, Mar. 16, 1801.

PUBLIC ROADS.

Mr. Carlton,

Among the most satisfactory evidences of the flourishing state of a country, and of the wisdom and sound policy of its government, is the attention which is paid to those improvements and regulations, which tend to facilitate the intercourse between the different parts of it, by means of good roads, canals, and bridges. The continual labour and experience exerted in straightening, widening and repairing the public roads, in the states of Newhampshire, Newyork, and Pennsylvania—and the general improved state of the roads, together with the western turnpikes in this state, are happy testimonials of the flourishing state of our country, and of the attention paid to these important objects, by the respective Legislatures of these states.

The rapid increase in population, and the consequent increased culture of hitherto uncultivated lands in various parts of the country, create a continual demand for new means of commercial intercourse and new means of communication by the establishment of new lines of post. Provided such establishments can do any thing considerable towards their own support, they can scarcely be too greatly multiplied. Every new road opens a new source of wealth to the district through which it passes—and throughout the whole course of it, presents a kind of thorough fare for the fabricating and vending of all sorts of home manufactures. Shoe-makers, Blacksmiths, Hatters, Wheelwrights, Chairmakers, Clock and Watch-makers, Coopers, dealers in Corn and Grain, Retailers, Venders of foreign manufacturers, line these county roads at convenient distances, and exchange their labour or their commodities for the produce of their own country, or goods and raw materials imported from abroad. The shops on these roads may be considered as so many magazines, and Emporiums of traffic for the internal parts. Foreign commodities are brought to the doors of these magazines, from whence they are distributed through an almost infinite number of smaller channels, which every where divide and intersect the most remote parts of the interior country.

Of great importance also is it to straighten and alter the course of old roads—directing them in such a manner as to avoid all those obstacles which impede the traveller, or increase the labour of the team. Among these the principal are, narrow confined passages, low and sloughy places, and long or steep hills. When it is considered, for example, that a hill which might be avoided, of 80 rods ascent, passed over by 100 travellers in a day, will make a general amount of 8000 rods of different and superfluous labor, the seeming shortness of the distance should not any longer be made a pretence for the continuance of such an impediment. It retards the public 8000 rods in a day, that is 9000 miles near- ing in a year. It is the greatest importance too, for the improve- ment of the domestic commerce of any country, that the means of communicating by post should be as much as possible fac- ilitated and multiplied. There is a kind of stagnation of this kind of commerce in these parts where this intercourse is not es- tablished. There are many who wish to purchase and many who wish to sell, who remain equally ignorant of these opportunities and each others wishes, for want of such an established inter- course.

In the County of Essex, at the present time, the mail trav- erses only two sides of it—that is, on the sea board, and on its northern boundary. All the central parts of this populous country, must communicate with distant places, through one or other of these lines of post from which they are about equally distant. The mail from Boston passes through Wilming- ton and Andover to Haverhill— and on the sea coast, through Salem and Ipswich to Newbury- port—thus describing two lines which embrace the body of the county between them.

As some of the most fertile lands in the county lie towards its central points, THERE also must be supposed to be a pro- portionate degree of popula- tion; and in those parts, conse- quently must be experienced many inconveniences from the great distance to any of the lines of post. Such inconveniences ought, and no doubt will in due season be remedied.

There is already an excellent road which intersects the county into nearly two equal parts— leaving the present post line at Salem, and rejoining it at Ha- verhill. This road possesses great “capabilities.” The great- ly increased, and daily increas- ing travel on this road, from Canada, Cohoss, and all the back country, through Haverhill to the sea coast,—and from Boston and Salem, thro' Danvers, Topsfield, Boxford and Bradford to Haverhill, Exeter and Portsmouth, as well as the back country, entitles it to the consideration of the Post Master General as a post road. A mail coach on this road, would after a short period, participate in the advantages of the travel, at present thro' Wilmington and Andover to Haverhill, Exeter and Portsmouth—and the separate travel belonging to the road itself, would be no inconsiderable object.

The only obstacles that present themselves on this road to carriages, are the height and length of some of the hills—in other respects it is a good road. The principal of these hills, lies in the town of Topsfield, adjoining the Bridge. It is by far the largest and most tedious one. A set of horses in the run of a season, with middling freights, would be benefitted by travelling three miles about rather than pass over this hill. Its descent may be about 100 rods—but on a future occasion we shall be more particular—and this descent in many places is rapid. It is obvious how difficult and dangerous such a hill must be to teams and loaded carriages.—Truth is, the country teams are frequently obliged to put on an additional pair of cattle—and those in chaise find it convenient and sometimes even necessary, to walk up the hill to foot to spare their horses. Many dangerous accidents have from time to time happened to travellers in descending this hill—and much labor and trouble, undoubtedly, always attends ascending it. Considering it therefore as a carriage road, this hill must be looked on as a very material obstacle—and in the event of its becoming a mail stage road, this hill would very considerably increase the expence, difficulty and danger of travelling. But it is conceived that this impediment admits of an easy remedy; and it shall be the business of a future paper to offer some remarks on that subject.

A FRIEND.

DIED.—At Topsfield, two Children of Mr. Edmund Parker, of the dysentery—others of the family dangerously ill. A child of Mr. John Perkins, of the dysentery. Mr. Joseph Cummins, of the dysentery, aged upwards of 80. A child of Mr. Moses Bradstreet—and a few days after Mr. Bradstreet, the father, aged 28, both of the dysentery. Mr. Bradstreet was a young man who united to an exemplary piety, uncommon at his age, all those qualities which form a good husband, parent, citizen, and neighbor. He was a man of few words, and was never heard to speak ill of any one. This together with the general prudence of his conduct, endeared him to all who knew him—more especially as the former of these qualities is not apt to abound in small places. He was a man of integrity and punctuality in all his transactions and has left an afflicted widow and children, as well as all his neighbours and acquaintance to mourn and regret his loss—Such a number of deaths in so short a space of time, and of the same disorder, has not happened but once in that place in the memory of the inhabitants. About 30 years ago, Mr. Matthew Peabody, his wife, and one or two grandchildren, all lie dead in the same house, of the dysentery—the two former were buried in the same grave. Salem Impartial Register, Nov. 5, 1801.

The want of the means of intercourse between this town and the northern parts of the county of Essex, has long been felt; and we are happy to see, in the Post-Master-General's proposals for carrying the mails, that one is to pass every Friday from this town to Haverhill and back, through Danvers, Topsfield, Boxford and Bradford. This, it may be hoped will be a prelude to the improvement of the roads to the northward of us.

COMMUNICATED.

On Tuesday last was interred at Topsfield, Capt. Daniel Boardman, with every token of respect for his memory, and sympathy for his afflicted family. As it was on the day assigned to military parade and review, the militia company in the town, the command of which he had recently resigned, appeared under arms on the occasion, commanded by Capt. Bradstreet, and went through those movements and positions usual on such occasions, attended with solemn music.—The order and decorum of the military, made a favorable impression on a numerous assemblage of people. The solemnity observable on the occasion was expressive of the public estimation of an honest man, a good neighbor, and a worthy citizen.
